THE ORIGIN of the WORD HAMMOCK is a matter upon which AUTHORITIES AGREE TO DIFFER.
Our TEUTONIC cousins aver it is derived from the GERMAN word HANG-MATTE, the meaning of which is simply a HANGING MAT. Other persons, equally ERUDITE, maintain that the word is taken from the HAMACK TREE of BRAZIL, the fibrous bark of which from time immemorial has been used by the natives for the making of Hamacks, or Nets, in which they sleep.
We can afford, however, to leave the abstruse question of the name-origin to some enthusiastic LEXICOGRAPHER, and remark that HAMMOCKS, as well as DUST RUGS, MOTOR RUGS, and TRAVELLERS' REQUISITES, are offered at
ANTHONY HORDERNS'

KODAKS AS CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Of all presents the Kodak should prove most welcome. It opens up a great field of interest to both old and young. It is fascinating and instructive, and is always ready for use. No matter what other hobby or pastime is indulged in, the Kodak is always desirable. It can be taken anywhere, and can be used practically anywhere.

Because it is daylight loading and because the exposed film can be developed and printed in daylight, the Kodak is the most convenient camera obtainable.

The No. 3A Folding Pocket Kodak weighs only 41oz, and embraces all the practical features of cameras several times its bulk, yet retains the Kodak simplicity. It takes grand pictures of 3¼ x 5½ in, and is fitted with a Rapid Rectilinear Lens, the F. P. K. Automatic Shutter, two tripod sockets, a brilliant reversible Finder, with hood and automatic focussing lock. Price, £4/10/. Postage, 1/3 extra.

Brownie-Kodaks, from 5/. Kodaks, from 26/. Come in and inspect our great showing of Cameras—the largest in Australia—and let at least one of your gifts this year be a Brownie-Kodak or Kodak. Catalogues sent free upon receipt of your request.

MR. PERCY J. PRATT, Solicitor, lately of the firm of P. J. Pratt, Owen, and Son, Wollongong, has Resumed Practice in Sydney at Colonial Bank-chambers, 105 Pitt-street, Sydney.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

COMMONWEALTH PATENT, No. 10,151, and dated the 4th day of November, 1907, for an invention entitled "A process for rendering the whole of the nutrient constituents of grain, pulse, and the like accessible to digestion," in the name of Dr. Dittmar Finkler.

The public of the Commonwealth of Australia are hereby notified that any reasonable requirements in regard to permission upon royalty, for Manufacturers to employ the said process in Australia, in accordance with the above Patent, will be satisfied by the undersigned (at reasonable cost), on application being made to him.

The invention is of great importance and technical value, inasmuch as it makes the nutriments contained in the abovementioned foods accessible to digestion. Under former treatments of grains and pulses, the essential properties in such foods, being enclosed in insoluble cell walls, were unaffected by the digestive fluids, and therefore a minimum only of nourishment was obtained by the consumer.

Melbourne, the 15th day of November, 1910.

DITTMAR FINKLER (the Patentee), in care of A. O. SACHSE, C.E., Patent Attorney, corner of Collins and William streets, Melbourne.

Dated this eighteenth day of November, 1910.

INDISPENSABLE MOTOR BOAT DEVICES.

Notwithstanding the great progress made by Engine and Boat Builders, the method of combining the motor with the hull remained, until recently, the same old rigid, unreliable, and troublesome arrangement as used by the first builders of power boats. INDISPENSABLE DEVICES have completely changed this unsatisfactory condition.

Experienced boatmen know that all boats, after floating, are slightly distorted from their shape as built on the blocks. Again, the driving action of the propeller against the water resistance at the bows creates a buckling of the hull, which throws the fixed shaft-bearings out of line, thus creating friction upon the propeller shaft.

The only remedy for this evil is Flexible Shaft Bearings that will automatically align with the shaft under changing conditions. Also a flexible coupling between the motor and propeller shafts, which, when the boat buckles, WILL PERMIT THE PROPELLER SHAFT TO CHANGE ITS RELATION TO THE CRANK SHAFT, AND STILL BE UNDER DRIVING CONTROL OF THE MOTOR WITHOUT LOSS OF POWER BY FRICTION.

To meet the above difficulties we have in stock INDISPENSABLE MOTOR BOAT DEVICES, including Automatic Aligning Stuffing Box or Stern Bearing, Flexible Shaft Coupling, Reversible Submerged Exhaust Outlet, Flexible Pipe Fittings, etc., etc.

We are also Agents for the Michigan Wheel Co., and stock their Reversing Gear, Propellers, etc., etc.

Motor Boat Owners, Prospective Owners, and Boatbuilders would find a visit both interesting and profitable. Let us send you an illustrated booklet and further particulars.

THE PRIME FACTOR.

The prime factor is, of course, RELIABILITY. Our Engines are admittedly MOST RELIABLE, and we back them with a FIVE YEARS' GUARANTEE. Note, too, that you get that GUARANTEE at FIRST HAND from us, the MANUFACTURERS, not at SECOND HAND from an agent. We back that GUARANTEE with our SPLENDIDLY-EQUIPPED WORKS, which are the largest in Australia, and where we have a SPECIALLY-TRAINED STAFF. Is it not manifest that our GUARANTEE is not only best in point of length, but also immeasureably best in point of effectiveness.

"INVINCIBLE" Engines are in demand because they are the MOST RELIABLE you can get; the demand goes on increasing, because one user tells the other, and the prestige of the Australian Engine goes on swiftly increasing. That is why the turnover has doubled in a year.

VITTORIA VICTRIX.

BY W. E. NORRIS.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

She proposed to take the night boat from Queenborough to Flushing. She was quite accustomed to foreign travel, and laughed at the idea of my escorting her to her destination. What I might do for her, if I would be so kind, she said, would be to take charge of Joshua until her return, which might very likely be within a week. "For it's ten chances to one that the word of command I shall get will be 'As you were!'"

"Quick march!" was the word of command that Ringstead received an hour later. At first he was for accompanying his betrothed across the North Sea; but he was brought to recognise that such a proceeding was wholly inadmissible, and he likewise bowed to Vittoria's decree that he should go home straightway, in order to acquaint his parents with intelligence which closely concerned them. He was, of course, somewhat disconsolate at being so abruptly bereft of her, yet, after we had conducted her to the station and had seen the train bear her and her stately maid away, he observed to me in confidence that, although this was an infernal bore, it might perhaps turn out to be a disguised blessing. And, as I did not at once take his meaning, he was good enough to put it into plain language for me.

"You see, if anything were to happen to the old chap—I'm not wishing for his death; I'm sure I hope he'll be all right, though the doctor must think pretty badly of the case—if anything were to happen to him, why—it would make a lot of difference with my people."

"Oh, would it" said I. "You anticipate trouble with your people, then?"

"I don't expect them to clap their hands," the young man confessed. "The governor may give in, after grumbling a bit; but her ladyship will be a harder nut to crack. To begin with, she doesn't know I'm here. She thinks I'm in Scotland, and she's sure to accuse me of having deceived her."

"Oh, if that's all!" I put in.

"But it isn't. She has been dead against Vittoria from the first, and all the more so, I do believe, because she can't help liking her. Personally, I think the sort of notions she has are rot. Besides, we have no particular business to give ourselves airs; we were half squires, half yeomen a few generations ago. But she descends from the Plantagenets, and she don't allow anybody to forget it. Tremendously sincere, too, and conscientious and pious and all that. Which makes her deuced awkward to handle."

He frowned at the toe of his neat little boot, with which he was tracing lines upon the dusty platform, and seemed to be waging in advance the battle which awaited him.

"But six thousand a year, or whatever it is, might mitigate the haughty Plantagenet pretensions?" I suggested presently.

He looked up, with a deprecating laugh. "Well, the fact is, we're quite desperately short of coin. Ever since I can remember, it has been rubbed into me that I must marry money. And although Vittoria isn't what people call an heiress in these days, her fortune, when she gets it, ought just about to set me on my legs. So if I could represent that she was coming into her own at once . . ."

"I see," said I. "Well, let us hope that Mr. Torrance will be so obliging as to die; though I am inclined to doubt whether he is either obliging or moribund."

I might have added that I was beginning to doubt whether Ringstead's constancy would resist the onslaught which he so evidently dreaded; but upon this point he gave explicit assurances before he went away. Happen what might, he would never give up Vittoria. I gathered that, if the worst came to the worst, he would even be ready to surrender the meagre allowance made to him by his father and live upon such income as might be obtainable from hers.

It remained to be seen in what light the affair would be regarded by Mr. Torrance, who, even without Plantagenet blood, was perhaps not wholly devoid of pride. But his views were never ascertained; for Fate decreed that he should expire very suddenly an hour or two before his daughter reached Nauheim. We had a telegram from Vittoria, and then, on the following day, a letter from Mrs. Adare, who was much shocked and distressed, and who ingenuously avowed that what added bitterness to this unexpected bereavement was the necessary cancelling of many important fixtures, for which every preparation had been made. Never, it appeared, had Felix shown himself less worthy of his name than in his selection of an opportunity to die. One small comfort was that there would be no need for Mrs. Adare to go to Germany.

"Dick Torrance has already started, and will see to everything. I suppose the funeral will be at Barholme; but that will be for him and Vittoria to decide. You have been so kind to the poor child that I thought you would like to have a few lines. I will let you know as soon as I have any more news of her."

However, she did not write again, nor did we receive any further communication from Vittoria in the course of the ensuing week. No doubt Dick Torrance, whoever he might be, had looked after her and brought her safely home; for I saw in one of the newspapers a short account of her father's obsequies in Lincolnshire, at which it was stated that she had been present. Then, some days later, another journal—one of those weekly publications which concern themselves with social incidents—contained an announcement of a much more interesting, not to say startling, nature.

"The late Mr. Torrance, of Barholme," readers were informed, "had been for many years an invalid, and was seldom seen outside the small circle of his intimates. He was a good landlord and a generous contributor to local charities. Gifted in no ordinary degree with artistic taste and discrimination, he profited, during his youth, by a residence of several years in Italy to get together a small but carefully selected collection of pictures and statuary, which, together with his estates and the bulk of his personal property, passes, under his will, to his kinsman, Mr. Richard Torrance. A sum of £20,000 is bequeathed to his daughter, Miss Vittoria Torrance, who was so much admired last season, when staying with her aunt, Mrs. Adare."

"What," I asked my sister, "do you make of that?"

Lydia owned herself perplexed. All she had to say—and that seemed very little to the purpose—was that she had always told me the man was an old pig."

"Yes," I replied; "but if I remember rightly, you also told me that he was an unpunished felon. Whereas it appears that he lived and died in the odour of sanctity and benevolence."

"Oh, they're bound to say that sort of thing about any dead person who hasn't actually been sentenced to a term of penal servitude," Lydia declared. "And if you speak of felony, what could be more felonious than cutting off his only child with such a pittance?"

"I don't know that anything could," I answered; "I don't know whether it's justifiable or unjustifiable. What I do know is that your imprudence in fostering a love affair which never looked too promising is likely to have deplorable results. The St. Erths might have been squared for £6000 a year; they won't look at £600."

Lydia said it was unlike me and unworthy of me to impute a low habit of mind to my neighbours. She was, at all events, positive that the young people would remain faithful to one another, even though they should, unhappily, be confronted by low aims and low ideals. She said £20,000 ought to bring in £800 a year without risk, and Lord St. Erth could hardly allow his eldest son less than £500. That made £1300 a year, upon which sum it was not impossible to maintain existence. Finally, she charged me with being unwilling in my heart that Vittoria should ever marry anybody.

All this, or a good part of it, may have been true; but it was not specially helpful or pertinent. A man does not disinherit his only child without grave reasons; and since it was impossible to suppose that poor Vittoria herself had been guilty of any misdemeanour, I had to conclude that her mother had been in some way scandalous. Lydia, while provisionally accepting that theory, was not to be persuaded that either Lady St. Erth or anybody else would be likely to care a brass farthing about aberrations on the part of the deceased Mrs. Torrance.

"You know more than I do about people high up in the world, Edwin," said she; "but even I can't help hearing a little, and it's notorious that the middle-class standard of morality doesn't obtain amongst them. I don't doubt that the loss of the money will be a disappointment; but, when all's said and done, money isn't everything. You, who have such a fine disdain for pecuniary considerations, must surely admit that!"

"I don't know that there is anything so very fine in my ability to make bargains or to bring business principles to bear upon the management of my affairs. In other respects I flatter myself that I have the average endowment of common sense, and it was therefore beyond me to echo my sister's confident prediction that everything would come right in the end.

"Anyhow," she wound up by remarking, "we shall soon hear what has happened and is going to happen."

It seemed probable that we should; yet for several anxious days the post brought us no tidings, and when at length I did obtain a ray of side light upon the situation, it was scarcely of a nature to dispel my forebodings. I had been spending some hours in the studio at Hampstead, and was making my way to my [illegible] towards evening, when I saw Ringstead dart out of a gunsmith's shop in St. James's-street and jump into a hansom which was waiting for him. Although he appeared to be in a hurry, he descended to the pavement, in response to my hail, and said he was jolly glad to have come across me.

"Because you'll be seeing Vittoria, I suppose, and you can tell her, with my love, that she may trust me."

"I should have thought," said I, "that that was one of those things which you would do better to tell her yourself."

"So I have, of course, by letter; but I'm just off to Scotland. In fact, I must look sharp to catch the train."

At the risk of causing him to miss it, I maintained my position between him and the waiting hansom. "Why," I inquired, "are you going to Scotland?"

He hastily explained. He had been going, anyhow. He was due to join a shooting party, and Vittoria agreed with him that, under the circumstances, much the best thing he could do was to absent himself.

"What circumstances?" I persisted.

At this he began to show signs of not unpardonable impatience. "Oh, well, you know what I told you at Mundsham, and, as you may imagine, matters haven't been made smoother by old Torrance's outrageous will. A beastly shame, I call it, and it seems to me that if he had made up his mind to do her out of pretty nearly everything, he might at least have given her some warning of what she had to expect. But that's neither here nor there. You tell her from me not to be down-hearted, because nothing will ever induce me to give her up, I say, I really must make a bolt for it now!"

Perhaps he did well to make a bolt for it; perhaps it was wise to remove himself temporarily from the orbit of family cyclones. Yet I could not help feeling that if I had been in his place, I should have preferred to force on a contest which I meant to win. His protestations of fidelity were doubtless sincere; but Ringstead, somehow, had never given me the impression of much stability. Moreover, I did not half like his message to Vittoria. It was pretty cool to exhort her not to be down-hearted, and then leave her—for that was what he was virtually doing, whether he realised it or not—to fight his battles for him. Not after that fashion do lovers who are worth fighting for speak or act.

(a) 11-16, 20-11, 8-22, 25-18, 4-8, 29-24 (or 29-25), 8-11, is a good line.

(b) 26-19, 7-14 (or 6-15, 21-17), 25-22, 1-5, or 3-7 is better for White.

(c) At this point Mr. Lee missed the win, as follows:—12-16, 11-7, 6-2, 20-11, 4-8, Black wins. As played, this position was reached: Black 4, 20, King 31. White kings, 19, 23. Black to play, and White draws.

(d) 9-13 is the correct play. After 7-10 White should have taken the shot, and would have had a good end-game.

GAME No. 1206.—Double Corner.

Black, E. Griffin. White, J. Lee.

9—14	25—9	(b) 7—10	32—28	2—7	31—26
24—20	5—14	22—17	15—18	23—19	5—9
11—15	29—25	8—11	17—13	7—10	26—23
22—18	(c)10—15	28—24	10—15	26—22
15—22	25—22	(a) 3—8	30—25	1—5	W. wins.

(a) Losing move, 4—8, 17—13, 2—7, 23—19, or 32—28 draws, as played between Messrs. Gardner and Schaefer in the international match at Boston, 1905.

(b) In the North of England championship, 1905, 15—19, 23—16, 12—19, 22—17, 7—10, 27—24, 2—7, 24—15, 10—19, 17—10, 6—15, 21—17, 19—23, 26—19, 7—21, 20—16, 1—6, and White won, but instead of (1—6), the last move, 8—11 would have drawn.

(c) Black has plenty of choice, for either 6—9, or 7—11, or 8—11 will draw.

CRITICISM.

Analysis of the following position is invited, with the view of possibly correcting a Single Corner game, which has been the subject of much controversy on both sides of the Atlantic:—

Black: 13, k15, 31, 32. White to play, what result?
White, 21, 22, k8, 30.

NOTES.

The final round in the tournament for the championship of New South Wales was won by Mr. John Lee, who defeated Mr. E. Griffin by 2 wins to 1, and one draw. Having been knocked out in the first round, Mr. Lee had to beat Mr. Griffin twice to win first prize and championship. It is remarkable that in the last championship tourney the winner (Mr. J. Drury) performed a similar feat. The result seems to indicate the value of the two-life or double knock-out system, combined with the two-move restriction, which have evidently come to stay, so far as this State is concerned. The three prizes were presented on Monday evening last by Mr. L. Shaw, president of the Sydney Central Club, who congratulated the winners, Messrs. J. Lee, E. Griffin, and S. Brown.

Mr. Alfred Jordan returned to Sydney from Melbourne by the G.M.S. Bremen on Thursday. He plays all comers at Bowral to-day. He will be at the Sydney Central Draughts Club, 770 George-street South, Monday to Friday evenings next week, and intends to leave for Brisbane by steamer on Saturday next, 26th inst.

Fifteen competitors have entered for the Christmas tournament at the Glebe Workingmen's Institute. Play is to be on the allround system, and no doubt some good original games will result between some of the stronger members of the club.

Newell W. Banks, the young American champion, gave several wonderful exhibitions of simultaneous blindfold play against 11 of the experts present, all the games being drawn.

Dunedin players forward congratulations to their Sydney brethren (especially Mr. J. Lee) on the fine score made against Mr. A. Jordan, the English champion.

AWFUL CASES O' RINGWORM.

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the —— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura, and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use, for it makes the hair so lovely. Mrs. Nora Emmett, 10 Lena [illegible]

CURRENT LITERATURE.

EX ORIENTE LUX.

In "Light from the Ancient East" (Hodder and Stoughton) Professor Deissmann sums up the recent results of New Testament scholarship. The translation has been admirably done by Mr. Lionel Strachan, though some little delay has occurred in presenting the volume in an English dress. As a set-off this has enabled the inclusion of some new matter and a group of important and interesting facsimiles. This is the best account of the new texts available. The author sets out to show the importance of the non-literary written memorials of the Roman Empire in the period that led up to and witnessed the rise and early development of Christianity. This material is mostly sentences on stone, metal, papyrus, or earthenware, made accessible by the archeologist. It must be admitted that it is scrappy and irrelevant enough; nor has it so far brought out any dramatic development. No one, for instance, has found the tablets fixing the date of Felix or of Festus or of the proconsul Gallio. But whereas the previously known literary memorials of the imperial period represented, scantily enough, the feeling of the cultivated classes about the new religion, now for the first time the contemporary ideas of that low-grade and heterogeneous population to which it primarily appealed are being made available. This is one of the chief points made by the writer. "Primitive Christianity stood to the upper class in natural opposition not so much because it was Christianity as because it was a movement of the lower classes." It is therefore in the rubbish mounds of the ancient cities, little market towns, and villages, that the modern student looks for what used to be called "Christian evidences." It is not, of course, merely a matter of acquiring new fragments of early Christian writing, gospels, epistles, and so forth, industriously circulated by the pious among the scattered churches. It is rather a question of attaining a mass of material which will enable us to reconstruct the milieu of the new religion, and so enable us to discern the formative factors that contributed to its evolution. The author confines himself to Graeco-Latin texts, but certainly of no less importance are those Semitic inscriptions that enable us to reconstruct so many of the heathen cults practised alongside the early Church and consciously or unconsciously affecting its doctrinal and ritual development so much. A word must be said as to the material itself. There are hundreds of thousands of inscriptions on stone or on lead or gold tablets, and they have been unearthed practically everywhere in the East. Of late years an enormous amount of scholarship has been spent on these things, though the results are perhaps hardly commensurate with the labour involved. Next come the papyri. This plant substance is of considerable antiquity as a writing material. We have, in fact, an account sheet written upon it as early as 2600 B.C. Some papyrus rolls are 45 yards long; but this, of course, is not the class of material with which the author is concerned. It is interesting that the first recorded purchase of papyri by Europeans took place in 1778, when documents to the number of 50 rolls bought from peasants and belonging to the second century were burned for the sake of their aromatic smell. Now, however, there is a very large body of this material. Most of it has come from ancient rubbish shoots. They are in Greek and Latin, and in most of the Eastern dialects. The discoveries show no signs of coming to a standstill. Of singular interest are early-Christian fragments in the language of ancient Nubia. A third group of remains, the Ostraca, are closely allied to papyri. These are pieces of broken pottery, on which something has been written. Until quite recently they have been ignored by scholar and populace alike, but now they afford important sources of data from the fact that the poorer classes habitually used bits of broken pottery on which to write. All sorts of business and domestic correspondence are thus represented, and portions of gospels are not infrequently met with—though not of very early date. The author proceeds to make use of these results in illustration of New Testament problems. He thus shows in detail that the text is a record of late colloquial Greek, and discusses the literary development of early Christianity from non-literary sources. He then endeavours to trace the effect of various contemporary cults, and, in fact, to place Christianity in a real, instead of an imaginary, historical environment. A mass of the texts themselves is worked into the book, or given as appendices, and the indexing is very complete. Some 68 facsimiles and illustrations give life to the discussion. The book is obviously one the scholar cannot afford to neglect, and the general reader will find its main drift quite intelligible, even if he has to omit the Greek. (Angus and Robertson.)

NERVES AND COMMON SENSE.

Annie Payson Call, who is known as the author of "Power through Repose," writes a sensible little book on "Nerves and Common Sense." There are a good many chapters, and they discuss a rather discursive set of topics, some of them specially for the benefit of women. Thus there is a chapter on irritable husbands and how to manage them that ought to be invaluable to many homes. There is also a good deal about the special trials of the woman who goes to business. The author's general advice is to give up resentment and give up unhealthy resistance. Relaxation is just as essential as concentration. We often attribute our troubles to other people, but they really have nothing to do with it. The secret is to yield to circumstances at the right moment. It will be seen that there is a vein of pseudo-philosophy in the writer, but under most headings her advice is excellent, and more or less practicable. The trouble with all such advice naturally is that those who need it most are unable to apply it. At the same time there are many people made fretful by the minor worries of life, and if some of them find a quiet and sympathetic book helpful the volume will have answered a useful purpose. The modern complaint of "nerves" is partly due to an overwrought social system, but it is also partly due to the fact that too many of us have forgotten how to rest, and any suggestions to that end will no doubt be welcomed by many readers, who above all things want a guiding hand. (Hodder and Stoughton, through Angus and Robertson)

THE INDIAN STUDENT AND DISCONTENT.

Mr. Garland Williams writes a useful little contribution to the Indian problem obviously out of much personal knowledge. He thinks that the students are a grossly neglected factor in the situation, although they and their misdeeds are in everybody's mouth. There has been plenty of denunciation, but, he says, no fair and impartial consideration of their position. He admits they are a serious complication for practically all of them have got hold of the idea that a great injustice is being done to their country. This being the predisposing cause, even justifiable criticism of the administration may, and does, lead to quite unjustifiable results. The point is made that the Indian student is most disadvantageously placed for the foundation of character. "Give me five thousand students of any nation in the world, and put them in the heart of Calcutta under the conditions amid which Calcutta's students have to work and live, and I guarantee that within three months there would be such turmoil and want of discipline as would make you long to have your Bengali students back again." The author knows Indian University life thoroughly, and he works out his argument very forcibly. A practical source of much of the unrest is found in the fact that only 1935 out of 18,000 students reach the degree for which they are striving as a sort of ticket of admission to a Government post: it is easy to realise what the effect must be on the 16,065 who never attain to a wedding garment however sedulously they trim their lamps. The pamphlet is thoroughly well worth reading. (Hodder and Stoughton, through Angus and Robertson.)

MILITARY JAPAN.

From Kelly and Walsh, of Yokohama, comes a hand-book to "Military Japan," compiled by M. Balet. The author remarks that some think that the greatness of Japan is merely superficial, and that she is destined to an ephemeral future. Such critics believe that her "inherited moral virtues" are undergoing dissolution under the influence of new ideas. Others take as unjustifiably optimistic a view. Both admirers and detractors base their judgments on superficial or incomplete data, and the Japanese themselves are sufficiently modern to manipulate their statistics. It is true that the country is accomplishing large reforms with little noise. The author deals here with the military and naval strength of Japan at the present moment, but he proposes to write similar chapters on economic resources and on the social and intellectual aspects of new Japan, and to publish all the sections of his work together. He is clear and concise in his statement of facts, and seems to have gathered them with great care, so that the remaining instalments of his book ought to be worth looking for. As regards the army he says that, so far from being flustered by success, Japan has looked upon her recent wars merely as so many object-lessons, and admirable as her organisation has been proved to be, she has greatly improved on it, and could now put into action twice as many troops as in 1904-5, and much better armed. The post bellum expansion is virtually complete, as far as the army is concerned, but a new naval programme is imminent. There is twenty years' experience at the back of the author's judgment, and he is, therefore, entitled to a good deal of respect. One of the significant points he makes is that Japanese patriotism is not all the foreigner makes it out to be. It is stated by him that a quarter of the conscripts seek to escape by fraudulent means, such as mutilation, the use of dangerous drugs, and so on. Also, even the official statistics show, he says, a great deal of insubordination. There is a very small number of re-recruits, and this makes the provision of non-coms. a special difficulty. The Japanese are proud, vain, and sensitive, as well as being patriotic, and the two currents conflict. The chapters that follow give full details of a technical character as to both army and navy. (Through Gordon and Gotch.)

HOW TO LISTEN.

Mr. Stewart Macpherson in "Music and its Appreciation" tries to lay the foundation of "true listening." This is a worthy ambition, and one that a little experience of concert-going or pianola-playing will show to be very necessary. The author is a well-known and very-well-equipped writer on musical topics, and he here sets out to help the large number of people who are quite able to appreciate music—which is not musical comedy—but who require their intelligence to be directed on to the right lines. Very few people hear what the composer has written; and still fewer have the ability to follow his temperament or his thought. As the author quite rightly says, such comprehension must in the first case be a conscious act, though after a time it becomes sub-conscious. In a word, music is a question not merely of sensation, but of intellect also. The various chapters deal lucidly with rhythmic shape, with design in musical composition, and with instrumentation. The types of structure are fully illustrated by examples, and this forms one of the most useful features of the book. Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and others, down to Smetana and Strauss, are thus turned to account, and the treatment is throughout at once scholarly and interesting. There is also on our table a pamphlet by the same author on "The Appreciative Aspect of Music-study," which is a plea for teaching music as a language and a literature, and is worth attention. (Williams.)

SOME CALIFORNIAN ISLANDS.

No reader of sporting literature requires any introduction to Mr. Holder's books, and a very brief mention of "The Channel Islands of California" will therefore suffice. (Hodder and Stoughton, through Angus and Robertson.) The book has about 150 photographs and maps, and we have long learned to look upon this cleverest of camera work as one of the author's strongest points. The Channel Islands of the Pacific Coast are the particular home of the leaping tuna, and they are at once the Madeira, the Riviera, and the Azores of the United States. Some of the islands are practical national angling reserves, and they naturally arouse the enthusiasm of the sportsman to a white heat. The book is the usual mixture of local history, fishing coaching, bird life, minor adventure in the open air, anecdote, and so on, with which the gifted author has made us familiar in his earlier books. It is the sort of thing that does not lend itself to summary or quotation, but Mr. Holder is a delightful companion, even in a library chair.

THE MEMOIRS OF HEINRICH HEINE.

An important work is "Heinrich Heine's Memoirs," edited by Gustav Karpeles and published by William Heinemann. For many years after Heine's death the rumour had been current that he had left complete memoirs written by himself. A few small fragments of these were issued by Engel in 1884, and they were rich in intimate self-characterisation. Some letters have also been published, and altogether there is a good deal of material related to the extraordinary life of a man who blossomed like some exquisite poisonous flower in the sunless depths of tropic jungle. Never was human being so instinct with tears and with laughter—an ironic smile on the lips of the gods, as Arnold called him. The editor of the present two volumes some twenty years ago worked up the then available material into consecutive narrative, and since then he has been engaged in bringing together all scattered fragments that came to his hands. It is curious that his earlier work never attracted an English translator, so that now for the first time we have an intimate personal account of Heine in our own language. The book covers the whole of Heine's extraordinary career from his childhood and youth, his passionate student years, to his wonder-time of remarkable productivity, and the decade or two he spent in Parisian exile. The text is largely made up of letters, many of which have never before been published, and the whole is a unique document, which only the exigencies of space prevent our dealing with in full detail. It will be enough, however, to say that the work is indispensable to those who know Heine. These may be few. In the hurry and turmoil of our modern years he sleeps in peace, and only the few, perhaps, will care to know and love him still. For those the book is meant, and he of whom it is written would least of all care for praise as he would have been indifferent to blame. It is enough that translator and editor have done all that was humanly possible; while the format of the two volumes leaves nothing to jar on sensitive nerves.

SHORTER NOTICES.

Professor Silvanus P. Thompson's "Light: Visible and Invisible" (Macmillan) is based on some Royal Institution lectures, given in 1896, with some additional matter to form a second enlarged edition. Thus there is an added lecture on radium, and another on the manufacture of light. Those who do not know the book will find it useful and readable.

The latest addition to Murray's "Wisdom of the East Series" is the "Alchemy of Happiness," by Al Ghazzali. The author had in his day a high reputation for philosophy, and an invincible hatred of philosophers. He wrote an autobiography in which he explains how he emerged out of scepticism into the true light of wisdom, and the little treatise here translated is one of his most characteristic works. Its text is the aphorism: "He who knows himself knows God." Some Christian critics have compared him with Origen.

Mr. Alfred Turner's "In Fairylands Forlorn" (Harrap) is a volume of scholarly verses that may be commended to readers of minor poetry. It has real metrical excellence in part, and it is never absolutely trivial and impossible. There is a poem on Captain Cook.

"Mr. Dooley Says" is the new Dooley book (Heinemann). It does not call for any criticism. Those who like Dooley like him. Those who do not do not. There is nothing more to be said. If any person finds amusement in a Dooley book, and apparently some hundreds of thousands do so, there is no more to be said. The writer is certainly clever enough in his way, and he here works his familiar vein as successfully as ever. There is a consensus of opinion among critics that Mr. Dooley is "great." He is certainly no smaller now than he ever was before.

RECENT FICTION.

There have been several sufficiently strong novels lately with a North Canadian setting, but C. W. Dawson's "The Last Chance River" is easily one of the strongest. This is a closely-knit story with a real human interest and an element of gruesome tragedy which, while not overdrawn, is apt to grip the reader in a clutch of ice. The author is inclined to philosophise at random, and he lacks art in other ways, but he has written a book worth reading for those who have a little patience. It is decidedly out of the usual run of polite conventional fiction. (Hodder and Stoughton, through Angus and Robertson.)

Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler can hardly be expected to break new ground, and "The Wisdom of Folly" is rather too obviously Fowlerish. But the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Felkin, to give the lady her proper title, is at least as interesting and clever as she has been in a long series of much-read stories. This one is mainly about the vicar's daughters in a Welsh village, who seem to have a good prospect of uneventful obscurity, when tragedy intervenes in the shape of a young University man, who—but the reader must guess the rest. The motive of the book is a strong one, and the tale is well told, but, as usual, overloaded with dialogue that is not quite so smart as it looks. The central episode saves the novel. (Hodder and Stoughton, through Angus and Robertson.)

We receive from Methuen, through George Robertson, another copy of Maude Annesley's "Wind Along the Waste," already briefly noticed. Looking through it again, one is more impressed by the careful development of the heroine and the closely realistic study of Apache life in Paris. Those who want unadorned sensations will not be disappointed.

Alan Whyte's "The Templeton Tradition" (Blackwood) is a well-written and well-constructed novel, by an author who seems to be taking himself seriously, and who, therefore, deserves a certain amount of respect. There is a background of Scotch labour problems in some engineering works, and Richard Templeton, the principal partner, is made the chief character in the book. His home life, and the lack of success he has in it, balance the interest of the more general problem, and there are some less serious and more lightly-drawn characters, who add an element of humour. At the end "he drew her towards him, and put his arms round her, and kissed her. And as he held her there with his cheek to hers, the cheering died away suddenly, and in the silence that followed they heard Richard's voice ring out, clear, emphatic, triumphant." It seems a little unnecessary, but perhaps it was excusable.

G. B. Lancaster, in "Jim of the Ranges" (Constable), writes another stirring story of the now conventional "colonial" type mostly about police and gold-stealers, and how "Jim" rises superior to very trying circumstances. There is a lurid picture of Jim in a red shirt and revolver on the cover, and a stockwhip curls round the picture.

NOTES.

Sydney School of Arts C.C. Team Matches.—These have been in progress for 10 weeks, and will be shortly concluded. The players who have the best scores are Messrs. Middleton, Lord, and Daplyn.

Mr. A. M'Naught, who has long been an energetic supporter of the game in Sydney, and recently hon. secretary of the Sydney School of Arts C.C., has resigned that position owing to having left for Melbourne. Sydney chess is under considerable obligations to him.

Mr. F. Coombs has been appointed hon. secretary of the Sydney School of Arts C.C. in place of Mr. M'Naught.

Esser v Colman.—The former won the match by 6½-3½. A return match has been commenced on the same lines. It is one of the abiding recommendations of chess that a man who has just received a defeat is not disheartened thereby, but can immediately challenge the conqueror, confident that he can satisfactorily explain exactly how every calamity could have been averted.

The Championship of Holland.—Esser and Olland will play a match shortly to decide if Esser is to retain the title. Play will take place at Amsterdam, Utrecht, and Hilversum.

Masters' Tourney Play, 1851-1910.—Wochenschach has prepared an interesting table of percentages, from which we adopt the following list, showing results of match games: Kolisch 71-3, Murphy 15½-2½, Lasker 108-32, Szen 12½-4½, Neumann 29-11, Rubinstein 95½-20½, Anderssen 78½-35½, Tarrasch 215-90, Pillsbury 175½-81½, Atkins 11½-5½, Maroczy 227-111, Zukertort 106-53, Steinitz 180½-95½, Dubois and Mikowetz 10-10½, Niemzowitsch 42-22, Charousek 41-22, MacDonnell 12-7, Duras 108½-55½, Mackenzie 113-63, Lipschutz 37-18, Lichtenstein 91-54, Bernstein 72-34, Weiss 80½-53½, Schlechter 211½-105½, Winawer 151-95, Williams 131-81, Linko 221-201, Blackburne 254½-231½, Janowski 244½-150½, Burn 207-143, Paulsen 128-99, Marshall 185-133, Englisch 100½-75½, Teichmann 184-144, Vidmar 48-38.

Correspondence Chess.—A player, who modestly grades himself "C," will be glad to find an opponent. He solemnly promises "to be prompt and accurate in keeping the score," which seems the correspondence chess equivalent of "true and just in all one's dealings."

Mr. W. F. Tyler, who is recruiting his health at Waterfall, N.S.W., will be glad to have games by correspondence with any strong player. We would like to see some Victorian or Queensland crack respond, and can promise a good contest.

Tarrasch v Schlechter.—This match has been postponed, and Schlechter was reported to be beginning on 1st inst a tour of the United States and Canada.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. Scott: Thanks. E. T. Calvert: Regret your invitation was not received in time. F. Coombs: Hon. secretary Sydney S.A.C.C. We are always pleased to receive club news. E. J. Stenning: Noted, with thanks. W. F. Tyler: Will be pleased to receive the score of the game you mention. Have no doubt your desire for correspondence games will be gratified.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Although theatrical prices in London are exactly double what they are on this side, it is difficult to see how a theatre that seats only 300 people can be made to pay. Such a playhouse has just been opened, however, by Miss Gertrude Kingston on the site of Coutts' famous bank in the Strand, the bank strongrooms being transformed into dressing-rooms. Stalls only, with seven boxes at the back of them, and no galleries of any kind, constitute the dainty auditorium. A great deal of interest was taken in the first play staged, inasmuch as it was an English version in rhymed couplets of "Lysistrata." The scenery of this play by Aristophanes shows merely the steps of the Acropolis, with a luminous sky beyond, but it was beautiful. Critics find some fault with the version on the ground that "Aristophanes apparently covers a multitude of indelicacies which the Censor would not tolerate from a modern author;" and there is the complaint that such lines as "Are you a herald or an advertisement?" suggest a modern revue at the Empire rather than an ancient classic. In the same way, the number of handsome girls on the stage occasionally suggested a burlesque; but generally Miss Kingston, who played the name-part with grace and humour, was cordially congratulated. The idea of the comedy is founded on the determination of Lysistrata and the women of Athens to refuse to be wives or sweethearts to the men they love until the latter stop the war with Sparta. The men detest the notion, and laugh heartily at it—for a while! Then they leave off laughing, make the welkin ring with their groanings and beseechings, and end by—declaring peace!

The Willoughby Comedy Company, now in its last week with "What Happened to Jones" at the Criterion, has before it a second tour of New Zealand, opening at Auckland December 5 and closing at Wellington February 9. Miss Mab Paul, who has felt the strain of the arduous work of the past year as leading lady, will now recuperate for a month or two at Mount Macedon before resuming work again in Australia, and her place will be taken by Miss Beatrice Day, whose return to the local stage, where she last appeared with Mr. Julius Knight more than a year ago, will thus be longer delayed, whilst she will revisit the Dominion just after starring there with Mr. H. R. Roberts in "The Hypocrites." This favourite artist owed her first engagement in England—that of Mme. Polenta in "Betsy"—to Mr. George Willoughby, so she now rejoins an old acquaintance after an interval of years. This actor-manager will continue his campaign with an entirely new company next Easter, formed to produce "A Woman in the Case" and "A Fool There Was." For these now celebrated pieces Mr. Clyde Meynell has engaged two highly-salaried artists, Miss Lilian Dundas, who has played Claire Foster in "A Woman in the Case," and Miss Mabel Trevor, similarly known for her impersonation of the wife, Margaret Rofe, in the same comedy-drama. These new English artists will open with Mr. Willoughby's new company at the Criterion on April 1.

In all Melba's unique adventures of many lands perhaps she has never had a more odd experience than on the occasion of her concert at Winnipeg on September 28, when, owing to the enormous crush in Walker's Theatre, where the concert was given, two cylinders of oxygen had to be placed on the stage to revive the atmosphere, so that the diva might enjoy the usual facilities for displaying her marvellous breath control. The cylinders were loaned by the Winnipeg Hospital on the suggestion of Dr. Devine, and Melba pronounced the experiment a complete success. The Montreal "Daily Star" publishes a cablegram at an earlier date from Halifax, where the Australian soprano opened her Canadian tour on September 3 at the Academy of Music. The house was packed at five, three, and two dollars—considerably higher than our audiences paid in Sydney, where the admission tariff was five shillings. The diva opened her tour with "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," followed by the "Jewel Song" and "Comin' through the Rye." Her party consisted of Albert Questel, a young Franco-Canadian tenor from the Metropolitan Opera House, "John Lemoine, the great flautist" (our old friend Lemmone, translated into French by the Franco-Canadian printer!), Miss Ada Sassoli, a young harpist, who visited Australia with the star a few years ago, and Maurice Lafarge, a French pianist. Mme. Melba's movements will bring her to London early next year.

Miss Blanche Browne, who, as the heroine of "Our Miss Gibbs," has identified her maiden effort in Australia with the most successful Gaiety piece (judging by receipts) ever produced in this city, will only miss association with a record run owing to the intervention of Christmas changes. The newcomer at Her Majesty's has won all along the line by the personal charm and sympathy of her acting, and, whilst still youthful, has now been fairly launched upon an especially bright career. Miss Browne is a Londoner, who was born in the neighbourhood of Baker-street, and her first appearances were in the children's performances at the Christmas matinees of "Shock-headed Peter," at the London Garrick Theatre. A class for singing and dancing, connected with the theatre, taught her a good deal during the season. Then she joined Oscar Barrett's pantomine at the Fulham Theatre, and played child-parts in Ben Greet's Pastoral Company for open-air performances of Shakespeare. The little doings of her early teens then embraced "coon" business at the halls, and she was one of Bert Coutts' "Pyjama Girls" at the Tivoli and Empire Theatres, of whom Miss Valli Valli, one of several artists who replaced Miss Lily Elsie as Sonia in 1908 during the long run of "The Merry Widow" at Daly's Theatre, was the leader. Miss Browne was the Midshipman in "The Geisha" on tour, she understudied the same part at Daly's Theatre in the more recent revival, and subsequently stayed a good deal in London, understudying in "The Girls of Gottenberg" at the Gaiety, in "Havana," and finally in "Our Miss Gibbs." This year Miss Browne was lucky enough to replace Miss Gertie Millar with acceptance at Manchester in the lastnamed, and then understudied her at headquarters, playing the part at odds and ends of times only, but was more fortunate at the Gaiety in her understudy of Lady Betty, which she played for seven weeks without a break. This brought her an engagement by Mr. J. C. Williamson for Australia, where the young actress has now "made good." Indeed, she is likely to be recognised for the future as an artist who doesn't do more than sing a little and dance a little, but whose comedy gifts as an actress more than justify her present popularity.

Mr. George F. Keppel Stephenson, who temporarily replaced Mr. Chas. A. Wenman during the latter's visit to England last year as stage manager with the Clarke-Meynell Comic Opera Company, was re-engaged in the same capacity by Mr. George Edwardes as soon as he reached London last month. He is now in charge of "The Girl in the Train" at the Vaudeville Theatre, London. He writes that he is pleased to be back again for a time, but adds, "I can't say I like the climate, and my wife, who had never been out of Australia before, misses the sun terribly." Mr. Stephenson himself has been out of England a great deal, as for some years he was on the White Star line, and was then second officer on several of the Orient liners. He was a principal baritone with the George Edwardes companies for a time, stage-managed at the Apollo and the Prince of Wales' Theatres, came to Australia again as stage manager throughout Mr. G. P. Huntley's tour, and returned here two years with Frank Thornton's Comedy Company.

Mr. C. Murray Gibbes, a young baritone who went to London early in the year after a little useful stage experience here in comic opera, first visited Paris, saw M. Bouhy, and arranged to take lessons from that operatic artist and teacher next Easter. In the meantime he has been studying regularly with Reginald Sommerville (composer of "The Shepherd's Cradle Song"), the examiner for the Associated Board who visited this part of the world five or six years ago. Mr. Gibbes remarks that whilst it may be hard to get big engagements, there is much more work offering a modest living for anyone with grit, perseverance, and a pretty good voice, than he had the least idea of. "The great difference I notice between Australian and English teachers is that out there many of them say, 'Close your tones from C upwards,' whereas in London your teachers say to a baritone, 'Open your tones up to E natural.'" Mr. Gibbes finds his voice brighter, easier, and better in every way on the latter method.

ROBUR TEA.

Women's pleasures are few.

Shopping and tea-drinking are said to be the two principal ones; we try to make the first easy and the other delightful. We pack the purest tea—we put it up in regular standard grades, and supply it to grocers in small packages ready to hand over their counters—all you need do is ask your Grocer for "Robur," and tell him which grade you want, and the thing is done.

As regards the drinking qualities of Robur, all we ask is that you give it a trial—it has a delightful flavour—it is absolutely pure—it is the most wholesome tea you can get—it is as good value as any tea you can buy for same money, and it is wonderfully saving tea to use. We believe you will like Robur Tea.

No. 3 GRADE.

This is the cheapest grade of Robur—it isn't fine tea—it is just sound, plain, good honest tea, suitable for Restaurants, Boarding-houses, Tea Rooms, etc.

No. 2 GRADE.

This is fair quality tea—it has a full, soft, silky flavour—it turns a beautiful golden brown, creamy colour when you add milk to it, and it is very saving tea—just the tea for everyday, family use.

No. 1 GRADE.

This is fine tea—as fine as anybody need ask for; it has a delicious nutty, soft, full rich flavour—turns a lovely colour when milk is added. No Ceylon or ordinary blended tea will make so many cups to the pound. It is just the tea for "high-class" everyday family use.

SPECIAL GRADE.

This is the finest tea possible to get—it has a full, soft aroma that fills a room with its deliciousness—it has a flavour that appeals to tea-tasters, connoisseurs, and analysts. We won the gold medal at the Paris exhibition with this tea quite recently. If you are fond of a fine cup of tea—try this.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY LUCY.)

Mr. Balfour and his Party—Murmurs of Revolt—The Portuguese Minister—The Governor of Gibraltar—A Quaint Ceremony.

WESTMINSTER, Oct. 14.

To those familiar with Mr. Balfour's mental method and outward manner there is something amusing in his attitude at the present moment towards the mutinous section of his party. There is a story in Scandinavian lore of the god Thor walking through a vale amid the slopes of which his enemies lurked. As he passed they dropped upon him a chunk of rock calculated to flatten out an ordinary person. "Did a leaf fall?" Thor asked, brushing the dust off his shoulder. Just now, as has happened before, the young bloods of the Unionist party have made up their minds that "Arthur won't do," and bluntly tell him that unless he mends his ways he must go. Mr. Balfour does not even ask "Did a leaf fall?" He goes his way ignoring the existence of his mentors, a more bitter reproof than any that might be voiced.

Through their organ in the London press they told him exactly what he was to say when, breaking the long silence of the recess, he spoke at Scotland. So that there should be no mistake, they drew up a code of policy, a copy of which was forwarded to their leader's latest address, by the golf links. His speech shows no trace of having received the document, much less of reading it. He is the leader of the party, and now that his only possible rival has withdrawn from the lists, he will lead upon his own initiative. If the Unionists prefer that ardent backwoodsman, Lord Willoughby de Broke, they are, of course, at liberty to enthrone him, and Mr. Balfour will not ungratefully take a back seat. He certainly will not be one of two kings at Brentford.

This air of haughty indifference, this habit of ignoring the existence of undesirable persons, he carries into the relationship of social life. I have seen him entering a room, where something like a score of his followers in the House of Commons were gathered to meet him at dinner, walk unresponsive through the upstanding throng, his face lighting up with welcoming smile as his eye fell upon a guest who had no vote in the House, but whom he was accustomed to meet in the closer intimacy of ancient friendship. Naturally this sort of intellectual aloofness does not endear him to the rank and file of the party. At the present period of recrudescence of revolt complaint is specifically made that his followers in the House are habitually snubbed, never being permitted the privilege of enjoying personal intercourse with their leader.

The situation is made more bitter by contrast with the manner of Campbell-Bannerman whilst he was yet with us. Whether as leader of the Opposition or Prime Minister, he was always accessible to the least important of his followers, a tradition Mr. Asquith preserves alike in Downing-street and in his room in the House of Commons. Protest against Mr. Balfour's manner, so far from modifying it, is calculated to confirm its hardness. He knows he is indispensable to the party, and if they don't like it they must—to quote a familiar alternative of puzzling terminology—lump it.

Incidentally the revolution in Portugal will deprive London society of one of its favourite ornaments. In respect of length of service, the Marquis de Soveral is the doyen of Foreign Ministers at the Court of St. James's. Though the country he represents is remote from enumeration among the great Powers, the personal favour of King Edward gave him special prominence. There were few dinner parties in London or week-end visits to the country honoured by the presence of the King to which the Marquis was not invited. In this respect his only competitor was Mrs. Keppel, who, by the way, finding her presence in London under the new Sovereign a little embarrassing, is about to undertake a journey round the world. The personal position of Portuguese Minister was sharply altered on the death of his patron and friend. But as long as things went well with royalty at Lisbon he was assured of the recognition due to an accredited foreign Minister. With the Royal family driven out of the country, and the Republican flag flying over the Government offices in the capital and other towns, the career of the long-time favoured of fortune suddenly and finally closes.

General Sir Archibald Hunter, whom strange, unexpected chance made for a few days the host of the fugitive King of Portugal, will presently take another guest to the spacious, garden-sheltered Government House at Gibraltar, locally known as the Convent. Like Benedick, when Sir Archibald said he would die a bachelor, he never thought he would live to be married. In his 54th year he surrendered, and on November 1 he will take to himself a wife in the charming person of Mary Lady Inverclyde, widow of the former chairman of the Cunard Company, whose death while in the prime of young manhood spread a feeling of sorrow that still broods over a wide circle of friends. Sir Archibald has to his credit a long list of distinguished services in India and elsewhere, being more than once severely wounded in action. The Governorship of Gibraltar, held for a while by Sir George White after he came home from Ladysmith, is one of the prizes of the Army Service. Sir Archibald had only just arrived to undertake its duties when fate brought to his door the exiled King of Portugal.

I have frequently witnessed the swearing-in of a new peer in the Legislative Chamber. Yesterday, for the first time, I had the rarer opportunity of being present through the ceremony of the induction of a new rector to a parish church in the diocese of Canterbury. Following the formulae going back to Cranmer's time and beyond, the doings are even more quaint than those religiously observed in the House of Lords, when it takes to its bosom a new Peer. The parishioners, specially requested to be present, on arrival found the doors of the church locked against them. Presently, from the vestry, arrived a procession of surpliced clergy, led by the Archdeacon, upon whom devolved the business of induction. Arrived at the porch the Archdeacon read the Mandate of Induction. This done, the new rector advanced. The Archdeacon, taking his hand, placed it on the church key, which had been inserted in the lock, and said, "By virtue of this mandate I do induct you into the real, actual, and corporal possession of this church, with all the rights, profits, and appurtenances thereto belonging."

Hereupon the new rector, now legally the man in possession, turned the key, flung wide the door, and entered the church. The parishioners clustered in and round the porch thought that now their turn had come. Not yet. Having let himself in, the rector closed and locked the door in the face of his brother clergy, his church-wardens, and his congregation. A moment later the tolling of the church bell broke the awed silence. It was the new rector signifying to whom it might concern that he had entered upon possession of the church. This done, he re-opened the door and the crowd streamed in.

After a short service there followed a performance reminiscent of the coming and going under command of Black Rod of a new Peer taking his seat in the House of Lords. The Archdeacon, accompanied by the rector, advanced to the font, and the latter was reminded of "his duty frequently to admonish the people that they defer not the baptism of their children." Thence they proceeded to the reading desk, where reminder was made of "the duty of the minister diligently to say public prayer." In succession they went on to the eagle, whence lessons are read, to the pulpit, and to the Lord's Table, the duties pertaining to each enjoined upon the minister, who responded, "I will so do the Lord being my helper." Thus, in an ancient village, far removed from the bustle and turmoil of 20th century life, flashed forth this patch of life and colour from Tudor times.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

Weather and Modes.

LONDON, Oct. 14.

Up to last Sunday we were still enjoying summer weather, wearing thin gowns and light hats, and all the rest of the things which are delightful, but with one swoop came a fierce gale of wind, which brought down the leaves and made it essential that one should get into more seasonable clothing. Women were into warm coats and skirts in a moment, new hats came out in battalions, and this morning, the cold wind continuing, I found people buying furs with great gusto. By the end of the week we shall look quite wintry. But it has been such a glorious end to an indifferent summer, that one must be grateful for the lovely warmth and sunshine which has been our portion for over six weeks.

Now we bend our thoughts to clothes in earnest. It is said on all sides that velvets and velveteens will be the height of fashion this winter. I have seen some charming models, and I have no doubt that in conjunction with furs these velvet suits will be much in evidence. For the woman who has to go about in hired vehicles of all kinds this style of dressing is not suitable. Nothing crushes as easily, nothing absorbs dust more quickly; even the cleverest maid has hard work to keep velveteens up to the mark; therefore we fall back upon serges and tweeds, made as handsomely as possible or as plain as is desired.

Tweeds never were more beautifully woven or more dexterously coloured. The mixtures are so artistic, so quiet, and so workmanlike. I am indulging in a suit of dark blue tweed mixture, with tiny threads of brown, black, and a touch of creamy white. It sounds a great deal of colouring, but the blending is so minute the impression is of one colour. This, being made for a middle-aged woman, is of comfortable width in the skirt; not too bulky, and not too wide or too short, or "too" anything, because it has to serve many purposes, to be worn in town as well as in the country. Therefore I have had no braiding or any trimming. The coat is of a convenient length, beautifully cut, and to wear with it I am having a royal blue silk blouse made, veiled completely with black Ninon, with a touch of blue embroidery. The two go beautifully, and recall the predominant tints of the tweed.

For morning wear pure and simple I have a dark blue vyella shirt made to fasten down the left side, with a white kilted frill like an elongated jabot; white collar and cuffs. On mild days one can wear a white muslin shirt or a silk slip. It will, I think, prove to be a very valuable and sensible costume. Later on in the year, or rather after January, I shall have one of the new wool and silk crepons in a shade of heliotrope or pansy, with a cloth coat to match it, for the days are colder as they get longer.

Many of the more elaborate tailor-made costumes are exquisitely braided, and the wider widths of braid are more worn this year than the soutache narrower varieties. It is not uncommon to see braids ready for the winter costumes five and six inches in width, and I even saw one over 12. They are, however, very expensive when as broad as this, and I fear their principal use will be to edge the very narrow skirts, which, with young, slight people, are apparently the regulation wear this winter. True, the skirt is not gathered into a band, nor is it tied in behind the knees; but at best it hardly measures more than two yards round, and in some instances a quarter of a yard less. They are exceedingly short, and are worn with beautiful shoes and stockings matching the tint of the dress exactly. Unfortunately the type of shoe is not a good one. It savours too much of the ballroom or the smartest style of indoor footwear. And the heels are of the worst Louis Quinze order.

Coats are quite of medium length this year, made with a flat back panel, and as close and straight as the tailor can cut them. A tailor, fitting me the other day, said the sure test of a coat being properly cut was to have it hang quite straight against the figure when unbuttoned. If it slants away or is not straight against the figure the cut is wrong. Sailor collars are the rage on coats, and on all other things which require a collar.

I hear from Paris that the satin stole, with white satin lining, is doomed; it has been made too cheaply, and the Dames du Monde have thrown theirs aside. A pity: it is such a sensible useful form of shoulder wrap and had so many uses.

Evening gowns are becoming more and more sumptuous, and the stage is foremost in introducing the newest types of dressing. Everyone is talking of the beautiful new gowns at the Prince of Wales' Theatre. Wherever Mr. Hawtrey is playing you may be sure that the whole production is of the smartest order, and in the new play, "Inconstant George," the evening dresses are the best to be seen in London. The idea of some of the gowns is almost Byzantine in form. Straight lines with jewelled and embroidered edges suggest the East, the spell of Egypt, the presence of Cleopatra, "Serpent of old Nile." The leading lady, Miss Vera Maitland, has a beautiful evening gown of jade-coloured charmeuse; a jade drapery of chiffon starts from above the high waistline at the back of the gown, where it falls in straight lines, and is brought in scarf form over the jupe in front, knotted near the feet, leaving the front of the gown uncovered; at each side the drapery is heavily embroidered and jewelled, so that there is weight enough to keep it well down. The waist is worn high, and has a very wide kind of belt of cloth of gold shot with amethyst, and there are gold fringes at the edges of the tunic, and on the edges of the sleeves, the bodice being made of folded chiffon over the jade-coloured satin foundation. The head is banded with a scarf of tulle, with gold and amethyst. It is a wonderfully artistic gown, and the shades of colour—jade, sea green, amethyst, and gold—are wholly delightful.

Miss Maitland has another gown which is adorable. A lotus blue and gold brocade, with a mass of blue diamonds glittering on the corsage, veiled with a drapery or creamy Venetian lace, like carved ivory, which is headed with a folded band of gold tissue, caught on one side with a sheaf of gold lily heads, with lotus blue centres. There is a drapery of the same lace, and with a fold of the gold ribbon is brought back to the front of the skirt, where it is imprisoned under a dull blue scarab sunk in an old greeny gold setting. A turban of old gold tissue and gold lace, finished with an ornament of pleated gold cord and a shower of pendant boules, provides the finishing touch. Over this gown Miss Maitland wears a long cloak of slate-coloured charmeuse, hemmed with heavy bands of skunk, and encrusted with a wonderful broderie in tarnished gold tissue and dark pearl palettes, veiled with black ninon, while the lining is carried out in a shade of old gold.

There is a beautiful black evening gown, worn in this piece by Miss Bilbrooke, which comes as a relief to one's eyes after the colouring of the other gowns. Miss Bilbrooke is a very handsome woman, with gorgeous Titian red hair, always a delightful personage on the stage. Her gown was made with a corsage folded over a tiny front of creamy lace, headed with a with a band of jet, into which are worked large jet squares, while the sides are likewise embroidered in jet, the fulness being tucked into a belt composed of a serried row of oat-shaped jet beads. A kind of lattice-work cape of jet falls from the shoulders at the back, while the skirt is fashioned with a species of jet-trimmed apron on one side, and a crossed drapery of chiffon wrapped round it. A magnificent chasuble cloak is finished with the gown made of snowy tailless ermine mounted over black velvet, which provides a most striking magpie alliance, while the lining to this lovely garment is of sapphire blue satin. On her head Miss Bilbrooke wears a filet of jet with large wheel motifs on each side.

Hats are all very curious, and in a confused state. They are either very large beaver satin or velvet shapes, low in the crown, and trimmed with an upstanding tuft of uncurled feathers or a band of velvet caught down with flowers made of broad ribbon or something in dull gold or silver. The smaller hats are like Charlotte Corday caps, with narrow rims and tall crowns, frilled with lace or silk, with a broad bow and swathe of ribbon round the crown. The prettiest I have seen have a gathered binding of velvet. But as yet there is not much to choose from, for these ideas I have jotted down comprise the leading ideas of the winter millinery so far.

WHAT WIRELESS IS.

THE WORLD THE OTHER SIDE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

R.M.S. MARAMA, off Victoria (B.C.).

Far up there on the boat deck, in the little guard's van of a cabin, keeping carefully clear of a row of Leyden jars on one side, and the bare brass ends of a switch board on the other, during the small hours of the morning, and of many another morning, one had the privilege of glancing just for a moment into a world one had never dreamed of—the strange little world that is bounded by the Pacific shore stations and the steamers coming and going along the fogbound coast. When a steamer rents a wireless installation from the United Wireless, the company puts into her as operator a man who may have lived for two or three years almost nightly in the small circle. We are just getting back into it again. To the operator it is obviously like getting back to one's old village after many years.

He knows every voice in it. The people in the world are certain bluff sea capes, low banks at the river mouths, islands shaken by the surf of the whole Pacific, bare-topped hills overlooking city suburbs, here and there an inland town, or the flat, open roof of some huge skyscraper, with the smoke and the noise and the smells of a metropolis rising around it; and outside of all these a certain ever-moving congregation of seacraft, all shapes and sizes, from great liners down to the merest mosquitoes. Nine-tenths of those headlands and sand spits and cities, and the greater part of those steamers, a man on the shore stations may never have seen. But he comes to know their voices, so that when he hears the first brush on the receiver across a couple of thousand miles of sea, he can sometimes say: "That's the Helonian (or whatever she may be). I can't read her, but I can tell her note."

The note, when it is near, sounds like the banging of a cattle bell; or sometimes of a kerosene can; or sometimes like the signal they give you in the telephone when the line is engaged. Indeed, you can hear the wireless working on the ordinary telephone receiver sometimes. Waiting for an answer on a telephone at Darlinghurst one has several times heard the wireless of warships in Sydney harbour, like a distant gong, not loud, but unmistakable. Very distant wireless is the faintest thing on earth. It is like watching on a mirror for the dim signs of the breath of an inanimate man.

THE ANXIOUS TIME.

Early of an evening—in the short stations of that wireless world—the conversation may be brisk. There will be all the talk from the ships, passengers' aerograms handed in about dinner time, dead-head messages, banter from the stations, and a word or so to an old friend who has just reappeared over the horizon. If Marshfield is sending and North Vancouver can hear but cannot answer back, and Friday Harbour can answer back but cannot hear, Vancouver will listen and then tell Friday Harbour to answer. "Tell Marshfield it's O.K.,'" says Vancouver. "But I can't hear him," says Friday Harbour. "Never mind;" says Vancouver. "You tell him to go right ahead." And so the message comes through for certain. But later, at 3 o'clock in the morning, some of the stations close down. Only a solitary youngster here and there is left listening, listening, always listening in case some stray spark may suddenly turn up in the receiver. That is the anxious time. The whole world is suddenly cut off, and any of the ships going silently on their own paths out there in the black may depend on you for her needs—perhaps for her safety. Early in the evening there were plenty who would catch her if you didn't. But now—how do you know the plant hasn't suddenly got out of working order? How do you know the contact of that copper wire on the little lump of crystal on the desk before you is not faulty? The other fellow may be calling all this while, and never a sound come in. You test the contact by working the aerial switch. That gives a spark, and if you can hear it the contact must exist. You test it every few minutes or so all through the night till 7 in the morning.

SOMEONE WORKING.

Sometimes in those long hours you may become conscious of someone working. It is worth while seeing an operator galvanise into life when that moment comes. Have you ever seen a boundary rider's dog lying outside the only hut on the plains suddenly stiffen, when you know that he hears or smells or sees or in some mysterious way suspects the existence of another dog on the same plain? That is how an operator stiffens when he catches a stray spark.

He has to tune to it. It is a wave really, and he has to find the exact length of wire which will best receive that length of wave. He can only do this by experiment—moving certain tiny brass contacts backwards or forwards over bared strips in several coils of insulated wire until he finds the adjustment at which the sound comes in best. Very possibly a layman could not recognise any sound even then.

But he has no more idea what it may turn out to be than a layman. It may be some distant warship—perhaps talking to her fleet at manoeuvres. It may be a station in some far place where the day is still in the working hours. They even say at San Francisco that they have heard the great station at Poldhu, on the coast of Cornwall, talking. If they ever did, it must have been a "freak message"—one of those messages which, on rare occasions, owing to some mysterious condition in the ether, will come through from a distance which in normal times could never be approached. From Cornwall to San Francisco must be about 7000 or 8000 miles.

I asked Mr. Ferland, the wireless operator on this ship, what was the farthest distance at which he had ever heard wireless. He told me that, working at North Vancouver, he had heard Honolulu—2430 miles—and had once heard the Makura talking far on the other side of Honolulu, 2800 miles away. The steamer Korea, which carries a United Wireless, set similar to that on the Makura and on this ship, is said to have kept in wireless touch with the United States stations until 4720 miles out. That is claimed to be the world's record.

C Q D

That faint, barely readable message which comes to hand in the small hours may have another origin. It may come from a ship in distress. Far out on the grey waters, the cold sea sluicing her well deck or creeping into the engineroom, the whole hope of her people may be hanging on the chance of that spark being picked up. For that reason they have one particular signal which may be sent broadcast, which must be given precedence over any other message, however important, and which anyone who hears—even if there are a hundred who hear—must answer. That is the distress signal C Q D.

Mr. Ferland had only once heard C Q D—or, rather, the Pacific Coast substitute for it, S O S. "It was one night when the weather was thick," he said. "Barge 91 of the Standard Oil Company was coming round into the mouth of the Columbia River in tow of one of their tank steamers, the Maverick, when she broke adrift. I could hear the captain of Barge 91 telling the captain of the Maverick to stand by him. They got a line on board, but in the end, as they were bringing Barge 91 over the bar, she dropped anchor just a minute too soon, and the tide swung her on to the bar and she capsized.

"That was the only time I heard S O S." Mr. Ferland went on, leaning forward to pluck the brass wire on the crystal in his detector once or twice to make sure of the contact. "But there was another night at that same station, Astoria, inside the mouth of the Columbia River, when I heard a fellow calling such a way I figured something must be wrong. Astoria was a one-man station, and I was on there by myself, and had to choose the times I thought I was most likely wanted—I used to watch the newspapers and see when ships would be likely coming.

"Well, round the corner there from the river mouth is Puget Sound, and way up Puget Sound is Bremerton, Washington, the United States Navy Yard. It happened early this evening I'm talking of—perhaps 10 o'clock—I heard two cruisers coming down the straits—I could hear them speaking to each other.

"Later on I heard the Colorado—that's one of those two cruisers—calling to beat the band. I don't know what it was—I didn't hear C Q D or S O S—but I sort of figured something unusual was happening by the way she kept on calling. She was calling pretty well every station along the coast, except Astoria. I suppose being a little place she left Astoria out.

"We had a line down to the telegraph station, and I had a brother working there; so I rang my brother up and asked him to put me right through to Portland. 'The Colorado's down the river calling away like mad,' I said, 'and I reckon there must be something up.' He told me he'd put me through. I could still hear the Colorado calling, calling, calling every station except me, and she couldn't make any of them hear. At last I thought I'd jump right in. 'What's the matter, old man?' I says (that's 'O.M.,' you know) 'What's the matter?' I says. 'I reckon you've forgotten me. Just say what it is and I've got a line right through to Portland. I can send your message right along to any place in the world.' But he didn't answer at all—only went on calling. So after a bit I jumped in again. 'You tell me what it is old man,' I says, 'and I'll send it right along to Portland.' He didn't take any notice of that either—just went on calling; so I knew he couldn't hear me. I remembered he'd just come out of the navy yard that afternoon, and I figured he hadn't had time to get his detector just there—in going order. My spark was all right, because I could speak to San Francisco, 700 miles away, though the chap on the Colorado just over the hills couldn't hear me. But I could hear him, if you understand, and if he'd only said what was the matter I could have sent it along to Portland right there.

"However, he didn't hear me, and he didn't say what was up, so I just waited for next day. And when the paper came along there it was, that the U.S. cruiser Colorado had gone ashore last night on the rocks in the Straits. She came off all right next day, but she had to go back to Bremerton. As she went up the river I said to her, 'Was that you calling last night, old man? Next time you're in trouble you just say what's the matter, and we'll be able to help you.'"

STICKING OUT OF THE FOG.

"It's a bit awkward getting into the Columbia River in fog, sometimes. There's a jetty sticks out from the south bank, and there's a bar as well. I remember one time there was a fog bank lying along the shore and an oil-tank steamer was anchored for two days just off the coast waiting for the fog to lift so she could come in. I was 10 miles inland up the river bank, and it was quite clear weather inshore—only this low-lying bank of fog along the coast. I could see the fog, and I could see the tops of both her masts sticking out of it. She was like that for two days. But it struck me afterwards I could have told her how to come in. I could see the river mouth, and I knew where the jetty was, and I could have told her:—'Come up due north—so far—now then, turn around and come east,' and he would have been out of the fog almost at once where he could see his own way.

"Another time, when I was at North Vancouver, there was a fog in the harbour, and one of the C.P.R. steamers that run to Seattle was lying at the wharf there waiting to come out. The captain knew that although there was a fog up at the wharf it was sometimes clear outside where I was; so he signalled over 'How is it at the Narrows?' I had a look outside, and answered 'All fog.' A while later I thought I'd have another look; and it was as clear as glass—all the stars out. I tried to raise the captain, then I tried the wire to the post-office and the wharf. But they'd all gone to bed by that time.

PHONOGRAPH THROUGH THE AIR.

"But the best thing I ever heard was one day I looked into the station at Vancouver—away three miles across the harbour there. One of the operators called to me. 'Here,' he says, 'we've got De Forrest in here. Have you ever heard him?' I said I hadn't, and I took up the receiver, and there I heard a man talking—

"'D'you hear me?' he says. 'How does it sound? Good? Yes? Well then wait now whilst I put on the phonograph.'

"And then the music began to come in—I never heard anything so fine; it seemed to come out of the air from nowhere.

"'Well, d'you hear me?' says the voice, 'How was that? Did you hear that music? How does it sound, fine? Well, wait now, and I'll turn it on again.'

"And he did. 'Course I knew who he was. He wasn't talking to us, and we couldn't talk back. De Forrest was the man who invented this system we have here on the Marama. Now, the United Wireless has bought it from him, and he is experimenting in wireless telephony. He was along in Vancouver, and he had his plant rigged up between two hotels there."

* * * * *

Those, and many other yarns told in the small hours, when sparks were scarce, between Suva and Honolulu, may serve to give others—as they gave oneself—some idea of the world the operator lives in.

He was obviously not nervous about storms. He sleeps with those two lightning conductors running into his cabin within four feet of him. He sleeps with a motor just over his feet, and the blower which it works and the mica silencer, on a bracket to the right of it. About four inches from the toe of his right foot is a condenser of two dozen Leyden jars—tucked in somewhere near the sheet. There are three drawers full of copper wire and brass fittings beneath his mattress, not to speak of a transformer which turns the direct current from the engine room into alternating current for transmission. There is a motor generator beneath his desk, and a storage battery and switchboard above it, and the adjuster and detector and aerial switch just on it. The storage battery is there, so that he would have plenty of current to carry on with even if the ship were in trouble and the engines stopped.

When he starts transmitting there is a triple green spark at the anchor gap on the aerial, a blue spluttering inside the silencer, about 10,000 tiny lilac snakes' tongues around the Leyden jars, odd forks and spittings, and a pale spark on each of the insulators outside. Without the silencer the chief officer next door would not get much sleep. With it, the noise of transmission inside the wireless cabin is not louder than independent rifle firing. But there is very little sound outside.

SUBSIDISED MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is with great pleasure I note, through the medium of your issue of 15th inst., that Mr. Beeby, the Minister for Public Instruction, in response to a deputation from the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, has promised to bring before the State Cabinet a recommendation in favour of granting that orchestra a subsidy.

The fact that the Minister for Education recognises the necessity for fostering music of a high-class character, and has promised to use his influence to obtain substantial monetary assistance towards furthering the work of the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, will be gratifying to all lovers of music, and is certainly a step in the right direction.

At the same time it must be borne in mind that a very great educational work has been performed by the other great musical societies of this State for very many years, and on behalf of the members I wish to press the claims of the Royal Sydney Philharmonic Society for a subsidy.

For over a quarter of a century this society has arduously laboured to elevate the tone of music in this State, and in that period, over £30,000 has been expended. Most of the choral and many of the orchestral works of the Great Masters have been performed at prices within the reach of the most humble student of music. The society is undoubtedly one of the greatest educational factors in our midst, the chorus and orchestra comprising 350 amateurs, who are being directed in the study and production of classical music by our conductor, Mr. Joseph Bradley. They not only give their time to this labour of love, but contribute very largely to the funds of the society.

The Royal Philharmonic Society is hampered in a way that no other society is, on account of the excessive cost of the music necessary for its performances. For instance, the music of "Samson and Delilah" (Saint Saens) cost £73, £40 of this amount for royalty and £33 for the necessary vocal parts. The music of the "Flying Dutchman" (Wagner) cost £70, and that of "Caractacus" (Elgar) £60. Every work performed by the society means a very large outlay for music. £300 to £400 is expended annually in augmenting the orchestra with professional assistance, and the principals for a concert sometimes cost from £60 to £70. In the cases of great visiting artists single fees of from 80 to 100 guineas have been paid.

After its many years' work the society finds itself in possession of nothing but its library of music, and the position has become of too onerous a nature for it to continue.

If a subsidy is granted to the Royal Sydney Philharmonic Society, it will relieve the executive officers of great financial responsibilities, and enable classical music to be performed with every accessory to secure the highest artistic results, thus greatly advancing the musical culture of this State.

I am, etc., W. JOHNSON,
Royal Sydney Philharmonic Society,
Hon. Secretary

REMEDY FOR KIDNEY DISORDERS.

Mr. A. Bottcher, of the Star and Garter Hotel, Sturt-street, Adelaide, writes us, saying:—"For ten years I was a great sufferer from backache, and was under doctor's care for the greater part of the time. While in agony, some two months ago, one of my friends insisted upon my trying Warner's Safe Cure. I am pleased to say that, after taking the contents of three bottles, I found myself relieved of pain and restored to good health. I can and will recommend Warner's Safe Cure to anyone I may know who suffers from the same complaint."

Mr. Bottcher's experience is the normal experience of those who resort for relief in cases of kidney and liver disorders to Warner's Safe Cure. For over thirty years this remarkable medicine has been doing its beneficent work. If your kidneys or liver are affected a few inquiries made amongst your friends and acquaintances will, no doubt, result in your hearing of cases similar to that of Mr. Bottcher. A pamphlet, containing full information, will be sent post free by H. H. Warner and Co., Ltd., Australasian Branch, Melbourne. Warner's Safe Cure is sold by chemists and storekeepers both in the original form and in the cheaper "Concentrated" non-alcoholic form.—Advt.

530 MILES NON-STOP RUN ON THE UNRIVALLED 4-CYL. SIZAIRE NAUDIN!

Mr. H. Knight Eaton recently accomplished a fast run of 530 miles on the 4-cylinder SIZAIRE NAUDIN. Not an adjustment made.

The Route was Sydney to Goulburn, thence to Yass, Bowning, Binalong, Burrowa, Cowra, Blayney, and Bathurst.

It's risky here to state the speed, but most motorists know that to have breakfast at Sydney and arrive in Goulburn in time for lunch is a bit out of the ordinary for speed! Nuf ced!

The roads between Bowning and Cowra were frightful, and would have smashed many a car up if it had made the pace done by this car! Petrol consumption, 28½ miles to the gallon. No mishaps—no trouble—not a spanner used the whole trip!

THE SIZAIRE IS PLAIN LOOKING, BUT

there's nothing in the world to approach its capabilities—nothing to touch it for reliability—nothing to equal it for speed.

There's no frill—no elaborate brass work on it—the quality is in the engine and the chassis!

A SPLENDID TESTIMONY

TO THE VALUE OF

DUNLOP MOTOR TYRES.

S. K. Harrison, Esq., of Sydney, writes as under, date August 25, 1910:—

"Dear Sirs,—Owing to the splendid behaviour of your Tyres on my trip to the North of Queensland, I have pleasure in writing you these few lines of appreciation. The Tyres were two 880 x 120 "Dunlops," fitted on the back wheels of a 15-20 h.p. Car, with four passengers, luggage, etc. Leaving Sydney on June 3rd, we reached Brisbane on June 17th; from Brisbane we toured the whole of the West of Queensland, around then to Townsville, and reached Sydney on August 20th, after a trip of over 10,000 miles. One could not imagine the rough tracks we traversed, and the strain the tyres were put to. Besides being a pleasure to the driver, their behaviour was excellent, and of great credit to the makers."

THE REAL PLEASURES OF MOTOR CYCLING.

The real pleasures of motor cycling are not experienced by the man with a machine that makes frequent trips to the repair shop.

It stands to reason that a breakdown five miles from home, or even half a mile, is sufficient to dampen the ardour of the most enthusiastic rider.

But you can ensure freedom from breakdowns by investing in a "Triumph" Motor Cycle. This is the machine that gives the utmost satisfaction. In all classes of contests—hill-climbing, petrol consumption, long distance, etc.—it has carried off the honours.

We will gladly arrange with any prospective buyer for a trial spin. The "Triumph's" records have always been made on actual tests, and there is no doubt that one would satisfy you. Price for 3½-h.p., £67/10/.

NEW CARS AT ANGUS'.

THE "FLANDERS" (20-H.P.) AND THE "E.M.F." (30-H.P.).

A FOREWORD:

For half a century, we have made and imported the highest class of vehicles used in Australia. We go always after the best in its class. We never have handled, and never will handle, second-rate goods. Since adding the sale of motor cars to our long-established business, we have made great headway, notably with the magnificent "ARMSTRONG-WHITWORTH" car. Most of these superb vehicles (ordered from the greatest engineering firm in Great Britain) have been bespoke before arrival, and stand unchallenged to-day as the finest examples of motor-mechanics ever seen in the Commonwealth. In commercial motors our "ARROL-JOHNSTON" (of the type used by Shackleton on the South Polar ice) is doing fine work all over N.S.W., users writing us in enthusiastic terms of its qualities as a saver of time, labour, and expense. Again, we say, we always go after the best in its class.

THE TWO NEW CARS.

These are from America. From the 55-year-old and world-famous house of Studebaker. They are submitted now as representing the best brains in the automobile industry of the States. Enormous capital has been sunk in the enterprise, enabling Studebaker's to put forward two cars that, while moderately priced, are of splendid construction, and equipped with latest improvements, while costly experimentation has given place to standardisation throughout.

The "FLANDERS" is a 20-H.P. MAGNETO-EQUIPPED, 4-CYLINDER RUNABOUT, designed and manufactured, respectively, by men at the summit of their profession—Flanders and Heaslett, the latter renowned as manufacturer of some of the highest-priced cars in the States. The "FLANDERS" is backed by Studebaker's 55-years' reputation, and most Americans in N.S.W. will tell you what a guarantee that signifies! The "FLANDERS" was secured by us to meet local conditions. It has extra-high clearance, very quick turn, will stand wear and tear, runs smoothly and surely, and is particularly light on tyres. In addition, it is equipped with acetylene headlights and generator, side lights, folding-glass screen and horn. Its low cost (£250) has only been made possible by the enormous number turned out annually, and we recommend it to our customers. Had we not been prepared to do this, we should not have taken the agency.

The "E.M.F." is a 30-H.P., 4-CYLINDER, 5-PASSENGER TOURING CAR, equipped similarly to the "FLANDERS." Perfect manufacturing organisation and long experience together enable the "E.M.F.," like the "FLANDERS," to be turned out in huge numbers, and, therefore, at moderate cost. We have been fortunate in getting this agency. We are confident the "E.M.F." will sell fast when its qualities become known. All essential features of the high-priced car are in the "E.M.F." The workmanship is sound and honest; there is no cheap material, and we unhesitatingly recommend the car. Both Studebaker's name and our own go with these cars.

ANGUS AND SON,

CLEMENT-BAYARD MOTOR CARS

are three years ahead of other Cars in simplified construction. The 1911 Models, 10/15-h.p. and 12/18-h.p., are a revelation of the developments in Motor Science as applied by one of THE GREATEST EUROPEAN MOTOR ENGINEERS, Mons. A. Clement, in his great Clement-Bayard Factory at Levallois, where 3000 men are constantly employed. One of the earliest factories to make Motor Cars. To-day the works are of the largest in Europe.

WHY?

1st. The materials used in each Car are the best for wearing qualities known to motor scientists. (That is why—although Bayards have been running eight years in Sydney—you never hear of a Second-hand one for sale.)

2nd. Every movement is made automatic, and so a driver has absolutely nothing to do except watch the road and steer.

3rd. The splendid materials used ensure special strength and enable much reduced weight, and so secure a very light tyre bill and naphtha consumption.

4th. The ignition is perfect, and the change gear system is so simple that a child can confidently drive the Car.

Although one of the most costly Cars of Europe, our prices will be found to be 25 per cent. lower in Sydney than those of other first-class Cars.

WHY?

Well, Cars are a side line with us—we don't live out of them.

No costly garage rent or interest. No heavy administration fees. We give all these in lessened prices to the buyers of Clement-Bayards.

A Squatter who bought one 2 months ago, and has since driven 3000 miles on it, has advised us:—"That I have never had to lift the bonnet except to put oil in."

CLEMENT-BAYARD, 8/14-h.p., 4-cylinder, with double phaeton side entrance body, with detachable back seat	£275
CLEMENT-BAYARD, 10/15-h.p., 4-cylinder, with double phaeton side entrance body	£355
CLEMENT-BAYARD, 12/18-h.p., 4-cylinder, with double phaeton side-entrance body	£450

"GRAMM" MOTOR LORRIES.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

We have just landed this week a shipment of "GRAMM" MOTOR LORRIES, and any firm requiring a strong, reliable Lorry, would do well to give the "GRAMM" a trial before finally deciding on any particular waggon.

The outstanding features of the "GRAMM" ARE LIGHT WEIGHT, COMBINED WITH GREAT STRENGTH and PLENTY of HORSE-POWER, BODY SPACE, no overhanging tail-board. The carrying area is equally distributed, the driver being mounted over the engine, thus saving the waste of space taken up by a bonnet with the driver mounted behind same. This means that the weight is not concentrated on the back wheels, and in many cases, as you cannot help but notice, overhanging many feet, thus adding more work and decreasing the life of the back tyres. Plenty of ground clearance—at lowest point twelve inches.

ENORMOUS STRENGTH of front and back axles. Exceptionally strong stub-axles. Standard English WHITWORTH THREADS on all nuts and bolts; this means that you can buy them in the most remote country store. Three point suspension on rear, with Platform Spring and Extra Spring mounted over back axle.

IRREVERSIBLE STEERING, NO ROAD SHOCKS through the operator's hands.

THREE FORWARD SPEEDS and REVERSE. Geared to take full load over one in three grade.

All Springs mounted on Rollers—a very smooth-running truck, adapted for carrying eggs.

A Shipment of the LUXURIOUS 1911 MODEL "THOMAS FLYER" CARS, are due to arrive per the MAKURA on MONDAY WEEK, together with a large shipment of the cars specially selected by our Mr. Roy W. Sandford, who has obtained the agencies for all Australia and Tasmania, and who is returning on the same boat.

Mr. BUYER:—Before deciding on your new car wait and see our new cars arriving on the Makura, Monday week.

OUR PRESENT OBJECT IS TO INTRODUCE One Sample of the Famous

L.M.C. MOTORCYCLE,

"KING OF MOTOR BICYCLES,"

into every town and district of New South Wales. Mr. A. Byron, of Temora, writes:—"Re L.M.C. Motor cycle. My customer is very pleased with the machine, which is, I consider, the neatest finished, and most up-to-date 3½-H.P. Motor I have seen. The machine has a good many admirers."

Rev. Norman Gardiner, The Rectory, Candelo, writes:—"The machine is running well, and giving every satisfaction."

Wherever the L.M.C. is introduced all other makes take second place. The cost is a little more than competitors, but if you buy an L.M.C. you have the certainty of riding the best.

CONGO
NEVER-LEAK
ROOFING

CONGO ROOFING is made for all weathers. An unusually severe storm won't hurt it. An extraordinary hot spell won't hurt it. An extra long cold snap won't hurt it. It will stand any kind of exposure. The weather finds no way in which to attack Congo Roofing.

RAIN can't damage it, because there is nothing in it that is affected by water in any way. If Congo Roofing were put at the bottom of a pond, the water would never disintegrate it.

AIR can't damage it, because there is nothing in it that is volatile—nothing that will evaporate. If Congo Roofing were hung out like a flag for years, so that air could get at both sides of it, it would stay just as pliable and elastic as when new.

CLIMATE can't change it, because there is nothing in it that is affected by either heat or cold. The heat on roofs is often terrific, and in cold weather the snow thaws and freezes there for weeks, but Congo has never shown any effects of such exposure.

IT can't rot, because there is nothing in it that can decompose. It is because we know the nature of the materials we use that we venture to say that Congo Roofing is practically indestructible.

EVERY foot of Congo Roofing is carefully inspected as it comes off the machine. No imperfect rolls are allowed to leave the factory. Every pound of the material that enters into the composition is carefully tested before being used, and strictly held to standard. Should it fail in the slightest way, it is immediately discarded. Congo Roofing is handsome in appearance, being of a uniform slate-grey colour.

PEOPLE who buy Congo Roofing for a building once don't buy any more in after years—for that building—because it is there to stay, although the roof costs but little. They do buy more for their other roofs. Everyone who tries Congo is soon a convert, and he becomes more enthusiastic the longer he waits for the roof to wear out.

CONGO ROOFING is put up in rolls 36 inches wide. Each roll contains 216 square feet, sufficient to cover 200 square feet and allow for a two inch lap. The rolls are finished with an attractive wrapper and label, and are capped with a special metal cap to protect the ends of the roofing. A steel rod runs through the centre to hold the caps and cement securely in place.

SUFFICIENT Congo cement, nails, and tin caps for applying are neatly packed in the centre of each roll, so that you pay nothing for extras.

CONGO ROOFING is easy to apply. Skilled labour is not necessary. You don't have to hire an expert to help. If you can drive a nail you can do all the work that is necessary.

CONGO DAMP COURSE.

Congo Damp Course is an effective armour against underground dampness and vapours. It should be used under basement and cellar floors, and cemented tight with Congo Cement. The lime in mortar will not injure it, the earth gases will not hurt it, water is powerless against it, white ants find that it contains certain antiseptics which they cannot attack, vermin and rodents likewise leave it strictly alone. Congo Damp Course costs so little, and is so easily put in place, that you cannot afford to build without it.

SCIENCE NOTES.

W. G. P.

THE HYMENOPTERA.

The insect order known as hymenoptera is distinguished by four scaleless membranous wings, never large, conspicuous mandibles, saw, sting or ovipositor in the female, with great and abrupt metamorphosis. It includes tens of thousands of species, among which are ants, bees, and wasps; and in it what is sometimes called insect intelligence is said to reach its highest point. In the case of the social hymenoptera the workers are in all cases modified females, while reproduction is restricted to a single female, known as the queen; or to a small number of such individuals. The males are generally short-lived and unimportant. Wasps, bees, and ants are the outstanding social insects, but among these there are many solitary species. The segmentation throughout the order is peculiar. Thus the first segment of the abdomen is detached from its normal position and added to the thorax, and behind the head there is a consolidated mass representing the thorax of other insects. Further, great specialisation is shown in the mechanical organs at the body extremity—saws, borers, piercers, or stings. These are all in origin essentially similar, consisting of parts developed from limb-like prolongations on the last segments of the larva—by some they are regarded as modified abdominal legs. Two modes of articulation of the abdomen with the modified thorax divide the order into two great subdivisions, which are correspondingly different in habit and life-history. In the first Sessiliventres) the abdomen is nearly continuous in outline with the thorax; in the second there is a deep constriction between the two parts. (Petiolata.)

PARTHENOGENESIS.

The order is very aberrant in reproduction. Parthenogenesis is common, and takes several distinct forms. The reproduction of some members is said to be wholly parthenogenetic, no fertilisations of the egg by the male being known. In other cases there is a well-marked alternation of generations, a generation wholly female being followed by one of mixed sexes. Other species again produce a very few males, which apparently take no part in reproduction. There are numerous species in which no males have ever been found. There is also a parthenogenesis in which the progeny are all of the male sex. The workers of ants, bees, and wasps, when they occasionally produce eggs, always have male progeny. On the other hand, a male generation may have a few females. Parthenogenesis apparently does not favour one sex more than another; it only decides the general sex of a generation. With regard to the bee, it is stated that the drones, or males, are always produced from unfertilised eggs. No male honey bee ever has a father. Nothing, however, is known of the deep-seated causes determining sex. With regard to the whole subject it is premature to generalise, inasmuch as out of the probable 250,000 species of the order we know only about 25,00.

THE SAWFLIES.

The sawflies are the principal representatives of the Sessiliventres branch of the order. The stem sawflies have slender antennae of peculiar form, and are generally of more primitive structure than any other member of the Hymenoptera. The egg of a typical form is, in Europe, laid in the stem of the corn plant. When the larva hatches out it eats its way up the stem. It is a soft grub, feeding all the summer. It then descends to the root, where it forms a winter cocoon. It has a particularly bad habit just before so retiring of cutting round the stem just below the ear of the corn. A similar insect in America attacks the shoots of young willows. In this case the eggs are laid in the twigs, and the larvae eat their way downwards. The larvae of the sawflies proper usually live on leaves. The characteristic structure in the adult is, of course, the saw with which the female deposits her eggs in a suitable place. The saw is hard and serrate, and is also able to act as a file. Many of these insects are highly injurious to crops, and one of them has a specially bad reputation in the turnip field. It is said that one female will, in three generations, give rise to 27,000,000 larvae. There are about 2000 known species.

PARASITIC HYMENOPTERA.

Of these there are said to be 250,000 species, chiefly occupied in destroying vegetarian insects, a fortunate circumstance for man and the mammals. These constitute the first series of the Petiolata branch of the order. Insect parasitism is extraordinarily prevalent. A single moth is attacked by 63 species of the above parasites. Some of these specialise in the eggs of other insects, while, again, parasites live on parasites. It is usual to recognise about ten families. The gall-flies are minute, usually black, insects which (1) lay an egg in plant tissue, with the production of a gall; (2) lay eggs in the galls of gall-makers; (3) live in the interior of other insects. A very interesting representative of another family is the fig-insect. The eggs are laid in the unripe fig, and the insect gives rise to wingless males, which pass their whole life in the fig, and winged females, which make their escape. It is supposed to improve the flavour of the fruit. Owing to the formation of the young fig being slightly different in the cultivated and wild forms, the insect cannot live exclusively in the first, and hence there is a practice of hanging up branches of wild fig in the cultivation areas. There are a number of remarkable species of fig-insect in South America. Another family includes the Ichneumon flies, of which there are some 6000 described species. The larvae are usually parasitic in the larvae of Lepidoptera, myriads of caterpillars being, fortunately, thus destroyed. If as happens in some cases the eggs are merely laid on the skin the larvae soon bore their way into the interior of the victim. Some of these flies have an ovipositor three or four inches long; used to pierce solid wood within which the host larva is concealed. The extent to which parasitism is carried is well illustrated by one species of which as many as 1200 individuals have been reared from a single lepidopterous larva. In such a case the caterpillar-host feeds enormously, and is merely an intermediary for conveying the plant juices to the parasite.

The second series of Hymenoptera, known as the Tubulifera, are also parasitic, the larvae usually living in the cells of other members of the order. Its principal representatives are the Ruby-wasps, characterised by glowing metallic colours, and a hard, coarse integument. The remaining members of the order are roughly grouped together by the possession of a sting, and known as Aculeata. This is a very large series, including the bees, wasps, and ants, and at present its classification leaves much to be desired. It is worth while noting that a few bees are parasitic upon other bees, and, of course, speaking generally, parasitism is not confined by any means to the first series of the order. Some account of bees and ants must be deferred.

THE WASPS.

A few general notes on the wasps may be given here. Their family classification is still obscure. The solitary wasps number about 800 species, and the members generally construct a small vase-like earthenware vessel, which they fill with food for their young. It is generally said that the caterpillars so used are stung and left alive, but the evidence for this classic statement is incomplete. The egg is not placed among the squirming caterpillars, but suspended from a dome, and the young larvae eats its first food from this point of vantage, making use later on of a suspensory thread. The saliva of such builder wasps acts as a powerful cement, and they have the cunning to use a hard and impenetrable clay. In some cases the nest is attached to the twigs of trees, but more often on walls and similar places. Some species con truct only thin wall cells, and suffer greatly from the ravages of parasites in consequence. A few burrow in sandy ground, and show some extraordinary adaptations—but insects are extraordinary enough in all cases. The cunning of the wasp in concealing and protecting its nest is only equalled by the cunning of the other insects that prey upon the young. In some cases a wasp will kill and store up 150 to 200 caterpillars by way of a sort of competency for its offspring, and indeed the breeding of wasps has been advised for getting rid of these garden pests.

AUSTRALIA.

AS THE WHITE FLEET FOUND IT.

In "Back to Hampton Roads," an account of the cruise of the U.S. Atlantic fleet from San Francisco to Hampton Roads—a supplementary volume to "With the Battle Fleet," by Franklin Matthews, we are given the impressions of a clever and observant American journalist concerning Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Japan, China, and Ceylon, which were visited in turn by Admiral Sperry's fleet.

"If ever a writer had a difficult task, it is that of attempting to describe or give any adequate idea of the intensity of the greeting that came to the Atlantic fleet in Sydney, known as the leading city of the Australian Commonwealth. It is almost impossible to put in cold print anything that will tell fittingly the story of the enthusiasm and the sentiment that inspired a demonstration which simply overwhelmed not only those who received it, but those who gave it." These are the opening sentences of the author's account of the visit to Sydney. And presently he answers the question, "What do you think of our harbour?" "Sydney people," he says, "like to be told that it is the finest harbour in the world. They have so been told by thousands of visitors, and most of the residents believe it. It is within the limit of t[illegible] to say that it is one of the finest harbou[illegible] existence, that the United States has none that can equal it in beauty and ease of access, and that the entire American continent, north and south, has only one that can surpass it. It is that of Rio Janeiro. . . . Like the harbour at Auckland, this one also has an aspect resembling that of Boston. On hills, on rolling country, heavily wooded, comfortable homes, dedicated primarily to the worship of fresh air and good health, were visible. Here and there what might be called palatial homes were in sight. Occasionally what might be called a castle stood out. The city itself, with its teeming, bustling life, and the buildings practically like those found in every American city, was most friendly in aspect, and the word went around the ships long before anyone was allowed ashore that this was just like getting home again. Of course, Sydney cannot approach Boston in the number and extent of crooked streets, but it is a close second in the matter of narrow highways."

It is natural that the author of this book should have something to say of the demand that this shall be a white man's country. "You could see that what the people dread most is that through indifference in the home country, or through the non-understanding of situations in the Pacific, an influx of Orientals may take place into this fair island, which needs settlers by the million, and that it is a real yellow peril that they fear. They are bound to keep this a white man's country, and if the enthusiasm over the arrival and stay of the fleet meant anything unusual beyond the limits of cordial and conventional and unconventional hospitality, it meant that these people were glad to greet the American idea in respect to avoiding a yellow peril, and it also meant that Great Britain should take note of what this real need of Australia is, and of the temper of the people concerning it. Probably that was the most significant undertone of the entire welcome."

The Americans liked our speeches. They thought Mr. Deakin an unusually fine orator. Mr. Matthews describes him as the William J. Bryan of Australia. "He is nearly as rapid in his oratory as the late Phillips Brooks was, and he has the fluency and florid language of a Western stump speaker. If he ever gets out of a job, and wants to get back in public life, and can't do it there, he'd make a hit as an American citizen, and it wouldn't be long before he was elected a Governor or something; and if ever an American national convention is to be stampeded again by a 'Cross of Gold' speech, why, Mr. Deakin in the course of time might even hope to be nominated for President, barring constitutional limitations, such is the force and brilliancy of his oratory. Mr. Deakin's official welcome at the great State banquet, was given in the Town Hall of Sydney, one of the finest meeting places in any building of the world. The Town Hall is a noble building. Mr. Wade is described as 'a mighty fine speaker, of the judicial cast of mind, who talks slowly, and thinks in straight lines.'"

In places Mr. Matthews paints pictures of Australian scenery that will prove a welcome antidote to a great deal of the nonsense that is penned at times by our own writers—that "dreary drivel of drought and dull lives" that is calculated to make the outsider think this country a better place to be out of than in. He describes the view from Medlow Baths as resembling the Grand Canyon of Colorado more than any other place on earth. "The view is simply bewildering in its grandeur, and near by there are other magnificent outlooks that make one feel that if he wished to see what nature did in its angriest of moods millions of years ago, there is no better place in which to see it than in Australia, excepting in the Grand Canyon. . . . Not far away are the famous Jenolan Caves, which are undoubtedly the most beautiful caves in the world." And as for the Botanic Gardens of Sydney, we are told that they are in the front rank of all the world's gardens, and that there is nothing in the United States that can be compared to them, except the Shaw Garden of St. Louis, which is much smaller.

Sydney itself is characterised as the great outdoor city of the world. "It is the most beautiful spot on earth for enjoyment on the water, and no place in existence has anything like its facilities for yachting. The carnivals on Christmas and New Year's nights are scenes of mad merriment, and the whole tone of the people's life is that of getting the utmost enjoyment possible out of existence."

Mr. Matthews has a fund of quiet humour. The Americans were told, he says, that Melbourne was laid out by an American, and more than one of them remarked that if it were true an American laid out Melbourne, why Melbourne had returned the compliment seventy times seven, and seventy times that, by laying out the American fleet. Among some of the old friends the Americans found was the obituary poet, who went out of business in Philadelphia several years ago. Then they were struck with the "In Memoriam" notices of those who had passed away years before. "The idea seems to be that it affords some relief to the afflicted to let the world know they are still grieving."

One must not believe Australia to be an ideal place of government, says Mr. Matthews, though he is hopeful that the practical adoption of the American Constitution will "help it some." According to many of the people, the country was being "cursed with what is known as 'wowser' legislation, which means what we call puritanical legislation; but if it is nobody seems to suffer very much, and the respect for law and order seems to be almost as general and as acute as in New Zealand."

To sum up: "The Australian visit was one of the most remarkable episodes in international courtesy. Australia and America said good-bye with something of a wrench. The fact is Australia feels safer, stronger, surer, now that she has got in touch with her American brother; and it's a mighty comfort to her that he's big, because other folks will be more inclined to pay strict attention to that sign which she has hung out for all the world, especially Orientals, to read: 'This bit o' the world belongs to us.' . . . Australia, the most sparsely settled of any civilised country in the world, presents the great anomaly of having the largest percentage of urban population in the world. Only a tremendously rich country could support such a proportionate city population. How it is done is a study worthy of the attention of the best public economists. What Australia needs most of all is more people—white people. She wants no others, and she wants Great Britain to see to it that none but whites go there. She looks forward with eagerness to the day when the Panama Canal will be opened. With subsidised steamships of an ordinary size Sydney will then be within 25 days' steaming of New York City. Australia wants American immigration, and with the canal finished one think she will get it. She can take care of them by the millions upon millions. If a contented people is a sign of good government, then Australia must have such government, for there is probably no place on earth where there is less poverty and more contentment than in this new Empire of the Southern Hemisphere. Probably it was because Australia sees that it must obtain the greater amount of its immigration from the United States that it rose to the tremendous welcome of the American fleet. Probably it was because of the Big Brother sentiment. Probably it was because Australia was lonely, away out on the outpost of civilisation, fighting an Anglo-Saxon fight all by itself, with little attention from the mother country, and the rest of the world. Probably it was because she feared the Yellow Peril, only a short distance from her very doors. One thing is sure, she was terribly lonely; so put it down that the enthusiasm was due mostly to that fact."

Since returning to America Mr. Matthews has been touring the States, delivering lantern lectures on the countries visited by the fleet. His book and his lectures have done much to advertise Australia, which he describes as offering greater opportunities to the settler than any other country in the world. He ought to be made an immigration commissioner for Australia.

IN THE GARDEN.

PORTULACA OR SUN PLANT.

From Portulaca grandiflora, popularly known as the sun plant, a large number of varieties have been raised, producing a profusion of brilliantly and variously coloured single and double flowers in summer and autumn. They are very dwarf, succulent plants, rarely exceeding 9in in height, and are amongst the most easily grown annuals in cultivation. Portulacas thrive in deep, light, rich soils, in a position fully exposed to the sun, and when well established withstand dry conditions to an extraordinary degree. It is the seasonable time to plant these annuals, which should be set out 6in apart, if grown in a bed by themselves or in rows. When planted in masses and the colours judiciously arranged, their flowers produce a beautiful and dazzling effect in the bright sunshine. These plants also are admirably adapted for growing in groups at intervals on rockeries, or in similar dry situations where the soil is sufficiently deep and loose for their roots to ramify easily. Beyond watering the young plants occasionally until they become well established in their new positions, and keeping them clean of weeds, no further attention in the way of cultivation will be required. More portulaca seed may now be sown in the coast districts to provide plants for flowering in early autumn. Seed can be obtained either in one or mixed colours, and of either single or double flowering varieties.

DAHLIAS.

From dahlia tubers that were previously planted there will now have developed growths sufficiently tall to need supports. Near each plant a stake should be driven firmly into the ground, and left 4ft or 5ft above the surface to support the stem. If several shoots are growing from each tuber, or cluster of tubers, cut all away, except the healthiest and most vigorous one, which should be firmly but not too tightly tied to the stake. In dry weather give the plants an occasional watering at the roots and overhead to keep them in a healthy condition. Dahlia cuttings that were inserted a few weeks ago will now be sufficiently rooted and strong enough to be successfully transplanted to the positions where they are to flower. These plants thrive on fairly strong, deep, rich loam, but will do well in any fertile garden soil. Dahlias make an effective display in bloom, when planted 4ft or 5ft apart in a bed by themselves, especially if their colours are arranged to produce a pleasing contrast. They also show to advantage when grown at intervals in mixed flower borders or judiciously placed between dwarf shrubs.

CONCERNING ROSES.

Climbing roses such as the Banksian, polyantha, Turner's Crimson Rambler, and similar kinds should, now that they have ceased flowering, be pruned. This operation will consist in removing all the dead and decaying wood, and cutting out all the weaker growths where they are too thick. The lateral shoots or flowering spurs should be cut back to three or four buds, and if too numerous, they should be liberally thinned out, always leaving the terminal bud pointing outwards. The leading shoots should then be evenly distributed over whatever supports they are trained on, and if the roses are growing in fertile soil the resulting growths will be healthy and vigorous. Should the soil lack fertility, a little bonedust spread on the surface and lightly worked into the ground near the roots with a push hoe, will greatly benefit the plants. Tea and Bourbon roses will continue to bloom freely for some time yet if their flowers are removed as soon as they begin to decay, and if weak liquid manure is given occasionally at the roots in dry weather. A mulch of some well-decayed natural manure will have a good effect in stimulating new growth and greater floriferousness.

NOTES.

All newly-transplanted trees and shrubs should occasionally be inspected, and if they are likely to suffer from want of moisture at their roots, they should receive a good soaking of water, especially if the weather be dry. A light mulch of short grass or similar material will keep their roots cool, and prevent a too rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil.

On the eastern side of the Dividing Range the first batch of the brilliantly-coloured amaranthus and the attractive, feathery cockscomb (celosia) may now be planted in the open. It is advisable to set two or three seedlings near each other in a group in case of an accident happening to one or more of them. They do best in a deeply-worked, light, rich soil in a sunny, but sheltered, position. If grown in a bed by themselves the groups should be planted four feet apart to allow of perfect development.

In the open borders the hardier varieties of fuchsia are now freely producing their graceful flowers, and in order to prolong that desirable condition give the plants copious supplies of water at the roots in dry weather, and a mulching of rich material.

In the coast districts daisies, polyanthuses, and primroses have ceased flowering for this season, and it is the right time to lift the plants and reset them in a shady position in the reserve nursery ground to rest during the hotter months. Although these plants remain almost dormant during the summer, they must not be entirely neglected. An occasional watering will be necessary to keep the crowns, from which new growths develop in autumn, in a healthy condition. In the colder districts these plants may be allowed to remain where they have been flowering, unless the ground is required for other purposes.

Now that the foliage of anemones, hyacinths, narcissi, and ranunculi has withered the bulbs and tubers should be lifted and cleaned of all extraneous matter, including the stems and leaves. After they are dry place them in a barrel or similar receptacle between alternate layers of dry sand or powdered charcoal, and store them in a cool, dry cellar until the planting season comes round again. It is not absolutely necessary to lift narcissi every year, but the bulbs should never be allowed to grow together until they become overcrowded.

FRUIT GARDEN.

Grapevines are often affected with mildew (oidium) at this season, but as soon as it makes its appearance apply the simple and effective remedy, flowers of sulphur, to the leaves and stems where the disease has manifested itself. Where there are only a few vines grown, the sulphur can be applied to the affected parts through a muslin bag, but if a number have to be operated on the remedy can be more expeditiously applied with a pair of sulphur bellows. On the principle that "prevention is better than cure," some growers use sulphur on the vines during the early stages of their growth in order to prevent any possibility of the mildew affecting the foliage. Sometimes caterpillars are very troublesome, devouring or otherwise disfiguring the vine leaves, at this season. As soon as the young caterpillars are observed no time should be lost in spraying or syringing the foliage with a solution composed of Paris green in the proportion of 1lb to 160 or 200 gallons of water, with a little soft soap added to make it adhesive. The former strength is more effective when the caterpillars have grown to a good size. It is not advisable to spray or syringe the vines while they are in full bloom.

Raspberry plants should now receive attention. Cut out all the weakly and superfluous shoots that have sprung from the base of the old stools, leaving only from five to seven young canes to produce next year's crop. By removing the superfluous growth, this season's fruiting canes will produce much finer samples of fruit, all other things, of course, being equal.

The recently-planted evergreen and deciduous fruit trees will not suffer so much during dry, hot weather if they receive a good mulching of some half-decayed vegetable matter. The mulch, which should be about two inches thick and about 12 feet in circumference, must not be placed too close to the trunks of the trees.

The trunks of both apple and pear trees that are bearing fruit should be bandaged to trap the larvae of the codlin moth. The bandage should be examined every 10 days, and if there are any caterpillars destroy them. Replace the bandages after each examination.

Strawberry plants that are in full bearing should, if dry weather prevails, receive a good soaking of water occasionally, but this must be discontinued when the fruit is near ripening. After the produce is gathered from the early fruiting strawberries allow only as many runners to grow as are required to provide plants for future plantations. If too many are permitted to develop they will weaken the parent plants, and the young ones will lack vigour.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

Oxford-street.—Feather-picking by parrots is a common habit, and is usually due to the presence of parasites among the feathers. Dusting the bird with any of the ordinary insect powders will be found efficacious. Sometimes the feathers are not pulled off, but bitten off. This is usually attributable to idleness, and difficult to cure. Give the bird some pieces of stick to gnaw at, empty cotton reels, or matchboxes; it will thus have something to occupy itself with, and keep it engaged.

Perplexed.—You should write to the manufacturer of your machine, and tell him your difficulty in securing not even moderate results. Perhaps the fault is weak fertility in the eggs.

A writer in the South Australian "Observer" of last week, in advocating a second poultry conference in Adelaide, says:—"They held the first organised gathering of poultry men in Australasia in April last. Some time previously there was a meeting of poultry people at Hawkesbury College, N.S.W., when several papers were put up, and the people then scooted to catch the train." An "organised gathering" and "a meeting of poultry people" are not bad, but the fact is there have been two poultry conferences at Hawkesbury College, and the attendance was much larger than at the Adelaide one. That, however, is a small matter, the benefits derived from listening to papers read being of a very effervescent order. The proceedings at the college are all duly edited, published in pamphlet form, and distributed free to the thousands of farmers and others who make poultry an issue of their operations on the land. Many think it is but a waste of time reading these papers; when in cold type they are permanently useful.

From time to time references have been made in this column to the advantages in the way of good markets our poultry men have over those in other parts of the Commonwealth. Last week's report of the egg-laying competition showed that the average production per hen in the various States and New Zealand was approximately the same, viz., from 176 to 184 per hen, or about 15 dozen for each hen. The feeding was also nearly the same, from 5s 6d to 6s 6d per bird for the 12 months, any advantage then being our better markets, and the published accounts of the financial results of the tests in the various States disclose the following:—The eggs produced in the Hawkesbury College test for the year ended March 31 last averaged 1s 6½ per dozen: in Tasmania the average was 1s 2d; New Zealand 1s 3d. There was no competition in Victoria, but a late official statement was to the effect that new-laids averaged 1s 3d for the year. The Queensland price was 1s 2d, while in the Roseworthy, S.A., eggs averaged for the year but 11½d per dozen. It is these differences which make egg-farming here so profitable; nor is there occasion to take the fifteen dozen per hen laid at the competition as a basis of calculation, as the ordinary flocks of the poultry farmer perhaps do not average more than twelve dozen per hen, which in this State at the 1s 6½d would give a gross return per hen of 18s 6d, the same quantity produced in South Australia, and marketed in Adelaide, returning but 11s 6d, a difference of 7s per hen in our favour. The above are no theoretical deductions, the selling figures being taken from the pamphlets issued by the Governments of the respective States.

Any eccentricity in an egg is a sure sign that the poultry man or the hen is at fault; either the feeding and management are wrong, or the organs of the fowls are disorganised. All kinds of eccentric eggs are more unprofitable than curious, and when they predominate, hatching operations are seriously interfered with. Over-feeding and the use of too forcing a diet are held accountable for such productions as double-yolked, and very often shell-less eggs. In the first case the formation and development are so hastened that two yolks will ripen almost simultaneously, and become enclosed within the same covering; in the second the yolks are developed too rapidly for the formation of shell for all (but less quickly than in the former instance), and some are thus produced as soft eggs, another cause of the latter being an insufficient supply of lime. Yolkless and very small eggs may be an indication of internal fat, and a proof of waste in feeding. Frequently the trouble lies in some derangement of the egg-producing organs of the fowl, and as the average poultry man has but a limited knowledge of these, it is better to kill the bird if she does not improve by dieting.

CHRISTMAS POULTRY.

Although it may appear early to write of Christmas poultry, it has to be borne in mind that the extensive and general adaptation of cold storage has brought about a marked change in the Christmas poultry market. Time was when Sussex-street for a day or two before Christmas was an avenue of feathered stock, ranging in variety and quality from the too common scraggy hen to the more seasonable and fashionable 20lb gobbler. The poultry salesmen's rooms were the same, the wonderment then being how the many thousands of these bipeds could all be prepared and individually disposed of by the poulterers before the holiday, which was not then perhaps more than 48 hours off. This is now all changed, Sussex-street and the other places of disposal prior to Christmas being but a little more than normal in supplies. As remarked, the change is due to cold storage, and the advantages are such that by the advent of August, if markets are favourable, poulterers commence to purchase for the Christmas trade, to the extent that at the present time perhaps a third of the quantities to be consumed at holiday time are lying in the various city cold stores. Indeed, were [illegible]is not so, prices would be almost prohibitive. The other advantage is that these quantities taken off the market in the months of small consumption make the prices better for the poultry farmer. Notwithstanding the above there are immense quantities of poultry still reared for disposal during December, and while the prices will again be good, were chickens and ducklings put on the market in a better condition than usually obtains the extra price received would well repay the two or three weeks' extra attention.

Fattening by cramming is not here advocated, it being a special business, the full benefits accruing to those practising it only obtaining where the fowls are sold dead, as in England. Concerning the best breeds to fatten, it is useless remarking that Dorkings, or a cross with them and Game, make the best table poultry. Dorkings are so scarce on the poultry farms that they need not be considered. Wyandottes, Orpingtons, and Langshans we have in abundance, these breeds and their crosses constituting the bulk of those offered.

To put abundance of flesh on growing chickens of five to six months of age about three weeks are required. They should be shut up in an open-fronted shed, out of sight of other fowls. Very small quantities of food should be given for a day or two, and afterwards as much as they will eat at each meal.

As Sussex ground oats are unobtainable here excellent results will accrue from a morning feed composed of say equal parts of good barley meal and pollard, with a little bran added to make the mass crumble. Milk is the best liquid to mix the meals with, but if not available hot water will do. Potatoes are an excellent fattening food when mixed with the cereal offals, but the present price of these tubers is prohibitive to profitable feeding. A small midday meal may be given of the above foods, to which should be added a little chopped green stuff, of almost any sort. The biggest meal, however, should be the evening one, and about the best, and certainly the cheapest, is maize. This should be boiled to make it the more easily digested. The great point, however, is to get the birds to eat the greatest quantity of food, and to ensure this a change from the boiled maize to boiled wheat and barley is advised.

Food, although the principal item, is not the only one in successful fattening. Of equal importance are cleanliness and quietude, and if these notes were written for English breeders, warmth would be included in the necessary essentials for securing the greatest quantity of flesh in the shortest possible time.

Although there is nothing startling in the above recommendations, well grown healthy cockerels, should they take rightly to the food, will, in three weeks, put on an extra 1¼ to 1½ lb of meat, and the quality will be ever so much superior to that on the birds which have not been subjected to the above process.

A similar diet may be given to ducks, with the addition of rough meat, which cannot be given in too great quantities.

There is hardly any need to treat separately of the fattening of geese and turkeys, for if healthily reared there is never much difficulty in getting them into prime condition. The actual fattening of geese and turkeys should not cover a period of more than three weeks, during which time they should be confined in a shed. Good foods for both turkeys and geese are potatoes, swedes, or mangolds, boiled until quite soft, and then mixed with pollard, barley, or maize meal, with the addition of some rough fat or mutton dripping, which has the effect of making the flesh whiter and more palatable.

While any of the above poultry are undergoing the fattening process there should be good ventilation and plenty of fresh air, grit, and fresh cool water should at all times be available.

ATTACKED WHILE WORKING.

"While at my work one morning, I was attacked with severe griping pains in the stomach," writes Mr. David Howard, Sale, Vic. "I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, and am pleased to say that it cured me in a few minutes. Since then I have had several attacks, and have always used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy with good results."—Advt.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

THE SENATE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The President took the chair at 10.30 a.m.

STOWAWAYS.

Senator Needham (Lab., W.A.) was informed by the Minister representing the Minister for Customs that since 1902 182 Asiatic stowaways were discovered in vessels trading to the Australian coast. The vessels in which the stowaways were discovered were the Ortona, one stowaway, the Orontes one, Omrah one, Orotava one, Prinz Waldemar 35, Gneisenau one, Scharnhorst one, Airlie 15, Guthrie two, Empire three, Changsha three, Chingtu 10, Taiyuan five, Eastern 26, Kumano Maru two, Pervo 16, Sultan 13, Charon 25, Munderoo four, Inkum one, Oceana one, Australian four, John Hardy two, Victoria one, Courtfield 11, Franklyn one, unknown two.

AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE.

Senator Walker (Lib., N.S.W.) asked the Minister representing the Postmaster-General whether Mr. Thomas's attention had been drawn to the great success of the automatic telephone system in Los Angeles and elsewhere in the United States of America.

Senator Findley replied: "Inquiries have already been made into this matter, and it is the intention of the Government to invite tenders for an automatic equipment to be installed in a selected exchange as soon as possible."

REFERENDUM BILL.

The Referendum (Constitution Alteration) Bill was passed through all stages.

CUSTOMS BILL.

Senator Findley (Hon. Minister) moved the second reading of the Customs Tariff Bill. He went over the same ground covered by the Minister for Customs when moving the second reading of the measure in the House of Representatives. He declared that protection was safe in the hands of the Ministry.

Senator Stewart (Lab., Q.): I doubt it.

Senator Sir Albert Gould (Lib., N.S.W.) said that there was no question that a large number of the people of the Commonwealth were induced to record their votes in favour of the Labour party because they were under the impression that they were to have a very early measure of tariff reform. The position of the box-making industry was to be aggravated instead of mitigated under the bill. The Government was going to protect the manufacturer and those employed by the manufacturer. What were they going to do for the rest of the community?

Senator Stewart (Lab., Q.) considered that the position in regard to the tariff was an unsatisfactory one, whether regarded from a Labour point of view or from any other standpoint.

Senator Givens (Lab., Q.) had no expectations; therefore he was not disappointed.

Senator O'Keefe (Lab., Tas.) justified the action of the Ministry. He was a protectionist, but he believed in protecting the employees as well as the manufacturers.

The debate was adjourned till next sitting day.

At 7.30 p.m. the House rose till Tuesday next.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Speaker took the chair at 10.30 a.m.

SEMI-OFFICIAL POST OFFICES.

The Postmaster-General, in reply to several questions, said that the amounts paid in respect of allowance to post offices were governed by the amount of work done. The position with respect to semi-official offices was altogether different. There it was requisite that the person in charge should give hours of his time to postal business. The statement that the salaries would be raised to £110 practically amounted to this, that the semi-official office would go.

Mr. Cook (Lib., N.S.W.): Then, will you be good enough to explain what is the value of the declaration made last night?

The Postmaster-General: We say that where you employ a man eight hours a day you should at least give him £110 a year. If we do that it practically means that we shall be able to have permanent employees of the department to do the work at very little above £110. Instead of employing people outside the department in semi offices we will in future make appointments from inside the service. We do not intend to do anything harsh to those at present in charge of those offices. The intention will only apply in the future. Those offices will then fall under the heading "official." The increase will mean an extra £25 or £30 in the majority of cases.

CUSTOMS BILL.

The debate on the second reading of the Customs Bill was resumed.

Mr. Cook (Lib., N.S.W.) said that under the bill further power was proposed to be taken by the Minister in regard to purity and freedom from disease of goods. The Minister should have all the power he could use, but here he was asking for more than that.

Mr. West (Lab., N.S.W.): He won't use it.

Mr. Cook: That's where the mistake was made. The Minister would exercise it, perhaps.

Mr. West was not aware that fruit had been sent to London branded sound, yet it was rotten when it arrived. Expert opinion should have been obtained.

The Minister for Customs: Experts have been consulted.

A Member: Can you give any names?

The Minister for Customs: I can't.

Mr. Cook: That was unfortunate. One man was to be a sort of Czar in determining what articles should be exported from Australia.

Sir William Lyne (Ind., N.S.W.) said that power should be given to regulate exports, for an attempt had been made to send away rotten butter.

Mr. Greene (Lib., N.S.W.): You know nothing about it.

Mr. Fenton (Lab., Vic.): That is very damaging. It is contrary to fact.

Sir William Lyne: You don't know anything about it.

Mr. Fenton: I know more than you think.

Mr. Greene: It is absolutely contrary to fact.

Sir William Lyne said an attempt was made when he was Minister to export the butter. He was prepared to accept the responsibility for anything he had said. An attempt had been made by the butter agents in New South Wales to have things their own way. When the Government wanted to mark exports those persons tried to stop them. He wanted to see a clean mark on the exports.

Mr. Atkinson (Lib., T.s.) thought that the Minister might take fright and do something rash with the exports that would damage Australian industries.

The Minister for Customs: We have lost our meat trade in the Philippines because we had no restrictions.

Mr. Charlton (Lab., N.S.W.) said that in the event of a famine the Ministers should have power to prohibit the export of wheat in order to save their own people. Power should be given to the Ministers to deal with emergencies. Great care would have to be taken with regard to the grading of butter.

Mr. Thomson (Lib., N.S.W.) thought the bill as it stood left the way open to some future Minister to exercise the power in a way that would check exports. For the purpose of affecting prices, regulations might be framed in such a way as to hamper exports to an extent that would make exportation practically impossible. They had some experience of regulations in connection with the butter industry.

Mr. Riley (Lab., N.S.W.) pointed out that some nine months ago there was an attempt in New South Wales to raise the price of butter. The Minister for Customs should have power to say that no butter should be exported if there was a ring in the country, and excessive exportation caused a rise in the local price.

Mr. Greene: Do you say that this is what the power is for?

Mr. Riley: "No; but one never knows what might happen." At present the Commonwealth was not producing enough leather for its own consumption, because hides were being sent out of the country. He would put a duty on hides sent out.

Mr. Greene: You want to keep down local prices.

Mr. Riley: Yes.

Sir John Forrest: You want high wages and low prices.

Mr. Riley said high prices did not benefit the farmer, as he usually sold his crop before it was cut.

The Minister for Customs in reply said that in regard to objections raised as to the possibility of a Minister unduly exercising certain powers it was not always possible for a Minister to get up and say what had to be provided for. The power sought was to prevent the sending away of goods that would injure Australia's trade. Some people needed to be protected against themselves. He thought it necessary to have power in regard to butter. It was not right to allow a large consignment of butter not of the top grade to go on the London market as prime Australian. There was a case in which it had been proposed to ship butter which had been kept eight months in cool stores in Sydney as this season's butter. He could give an assurance that Ministers would be very careful in the exercise of the powers. The greater the powers he had the more careful would a Minister be in exercising them.

Sir Robert Best (Lib., Vic.): Is that any objection to Parliament having an opportunity of expressing an opinion on trade proclamations?

The Minister for Customs said a proclamation was entirely different from a regulation, but he would be prepared to give the House information of proclamations made.

Mr. G. B. Edwards (Lib., N.S.W.): Is there any idea of prohibiting exports for economic reasons?

The Minister for Customs: I have no such idea whatever, either in regard to exports or imports.

The second reading was agreed to on the voices.

In committee, on clause 4, "Power to prohibit the export of goods," Mr. Greene said that under the clause any Minister not thoroughly conversant with the export business might make injurious regulations. Grading butter practically played into the hands of the speculators.

The Minister for Customs: Why do they get a better price in New Zealand?

Mr. Greene: Taking it all the year round, the farmers of New Zealand got 1d to 1½d per lb less than in Australia. Practically all the butter industry in New South Wales was in the hands of farmers. He was confident that the grading of butter would result in thousands of pounds' loss to the primary producers. He moved to add to the clause the following words:—"Any proclamation made under subsection II shall be notified to each House within seven days of the issue of such proclamation if Parliament is in session, but if not in session then seven days after the meeting of Parliament, and the same shall be revoked by resolution passed by either House."

Mr. Fuller (Lib., N.S.W.) said it was Sir William Lyne and men of his stamp that those interested in the butter industry had to fight in the past. They were the men who had thrown every obstacle in the way of the industry. He (Mr. Fuller) asked the Government to stay its hands in issuing the grading regulations.

The Minister for Customs: I won't bring in the butter regulations till Parliament has a chance to review them. I am prepared to accept the first part of the amendment, but I won't agree to the part saying that the proclamation could be revoked by Parliament.

Mr. Fuller: There should be no grading. Men connected with the butter industry had built up one of the finest assets of the Commonwealth without Government supervision, interference, or grading, and they should be left carry on the work in the way they had done in the past.

Mr. G. B. Edwards (Lib., N.S.W.) thought that the Minister would have too much power under the clause, and he would move that no exports should be prohibited unless by reason of a defect or impurity of quality in the goods, or their preparation or manufacture.

The Minister for Customs assured the House that the Government had no intention of prohibiting the export of any goods unless they would prove harmful to Australia. The amendment was negatived by 29 to 14, the voting was as follows:—

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith, and Justices Barton, O'Connor, and Isaacs.)

A MATTER OF SHARES.

M'Laughlin v de Lauret.

Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. J. H. M'Laughlin, appeared for the defendant appellant, John M'Laughlin; Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. D. J. Ferguson, instructed by Mr. A. G. Arnold, for plaintiff respondent, Louise Guerry de Lauret.

This was an appeal by special leave from the whole of the judgments of the Supreme Court of New South Wales of May 23, dismissing appeals to it by the appellant.

The original action was tried before Judge Backhouse and a jury in the District Court, Sydney, when plaintiff sought to recover damages for breach of contract to deliver certain shares sold under two contracts. The amount of damages, if the plaintiff could recover, was agreed upon by the parties, and for that amount (£281 5s) the jury found a verdict for plaintiff. At the close of plaintiff's case the Judge was asked to nonsuit her on the ground that she had not given sufficient evidence to prove her case. Judge Backhouse refused. After the verdict the Judge was asked to enter judgment for the defendant non obstante veredicto. This he also declined to do. Defendant denied the breach, and said, among other things, that it was a condition concurrent that plaintiff should pay for the shares; also that plaintiff should be ready and willing to pay, and that the plaintiff was not willing and ready to pay; also that plaintiff should keep the shares covered to a certain amount, and did not do so; and, further, that defendant was discharged from the bargain. Subsequently an application was made by defendant to Judge Backhouse in the same court to have the verdict and judgment set aside, and a new trial granted on the grounds, among others, that the verdict was against evidence and the weight of evidence, and that the damages, if the plaintiff was entitled to any, were calculated on a wrong basis. This application was dismissed. Defendant then took the case to the Supreme Court, which dismissed the appeal.

The appeal to the High Court is on the grounds, among others, that the Supreme Court should have held that the District Court Judge should have nonsuited plaintiff, or ordered judgment to be entered for defendant because plaintiff failed to prove any breach of contract; that the Supreme Court should have held that the verdict of the jury was against evidence and the weight of evidence; and that the damages, if plaintiff was entitled to any, were calculated on a wrong basis.

Judgment was reserved.

AN ADMINISTRATION BOND.

Begley v Attorney-General.

Mr. Langer Owen and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. Russell and Russell, appeared for the defendant, appellant, Robert Louden Begley; Mr. Knox, K.C., Dr. Coughlan, and Mr. Watt, by Mr. C. A. Coghlan, for the nominal plaintiff, respondent, the Attorney-General of New South Wales.

This was an appeal from an order of the Full Court discharging a rule nisi for a new trial, with costs.

The original action was on an administration bond—the form of bond sued upon being set out in the Charter of Justice of 1823—in the sum of £916, given by the defendant as one of the sureties for Honorah O'Brien, the administratrix of the estate of the late John O'Brien. The action came on for hearing before Mr. Justice Cohen and a jury in September, 1909, when a verdict was given for the plaintiff for £916. Defendant obtained a rule nisi for a new trial, which was subsequently discharged, leaving the verdict in favour of the plaintiff standing. Three breaches by the administratrix were alleged: (1) That she did not well and truly administer, but wasted the assets and then appropriated them to her own use; (2) that she did not make true and just accounts of her administration; and (3) that she did not pay and dispose of in due course of administration all the rest and residue of the goods, chattels, credits, and effects found from time to time remaining upon the said administration account after the same being first examined and allowed by the Court, or in such manner as the Court by its decree and order did direct and appoint. On the first and third of these the jury found damages at £2773 6s 4d, and on the second at 1s, and returned a verdict for £916, the ful amount of the penalty in the bond. No question arises as to the second of these findings, the new trial being asked for in respect of the first and third.

The appeal to the High Court is on the grounds that the Supreme Court should have held that certain documents should not have been admited in evidence, inasmuch as they related to a suit to which the appellant was not a party, and inasmuch as the order and decree part of the exhibit and made in the suit were not an order or decree within the meaning of the administration bond sued upon; and that the Supreme Court should have held that certain evidence tendered on behalf of appellant for the purpose of showing the amount of intestate's estate received by the administratrix ought not to have been rejected.

Part heard.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Cohen, and Mr. Justice Street.)

APPLICATIONS AGAINST NEWSPAPERS. FINED £100.

The Case of Boris Senkovitch.

Mr. M. R. Shannon and Mr. N. G. M'William (instructed by Mr. W. C. Clegg), appeared on behalf of Boris Senkovitch in support of a motion to make absolute a rule nisi by which Watkin Wynne, manager of the "Daily Telegraph" Newspaper Company, the printer and publisher of the "Daily Telegraph," had been called on to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt in publishing in the "Daily Telegraph" of September 29 last what purported to be a confession by Boris Senkovitch, at present a confinee in Darlinghurst gaol under committal on a charge of having murdered a fellow-countryman named Alexander Elsmond, at Bourke. Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Sheridan, instructed by Messrs. Laurence and Laurence, appeared for the respondent to show cause. The argument in the case was concluded, and the Court had reserved judgment until the argument in a similar case was finished. The latter was a case in which Christopher Bennett, printer and publisher of the "Evening News," had been called on to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt in having published in the issue of his paper of September 29 last what purported to be a confession by Senkovitch. As in the other matter, Mr. Shannon and Mr. M'William, instructed by Mr. W. C. Clegg, appeared in support of the application; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Best, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson, for the respondent.

The Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Cohen and Mr. Justice Street concurring) said the circumstances which had led up to the present application were shortly these: The dead body of a man had been found at Bourke, under circumstances pointing to a strong suspicion that a murder had occurred. On September 27 a coroner's inquest was commenced at Bourke, and on the same day a sworn information was laid before a magistrate in this State charging the present applicant with the murder of deceased. On that information a warrant was issued in New South Wales for the arrest of the applicant. A telegram was then sent to Melbourne, where a provisional warrant was issued, on which accused was, on September 27, arrested in Melbourne. The New South Wales warrant was sent to Melbourne, and endorsed there according to law, and thereupon the accused, who was then arrested, became amenable—if he were not before—to the process of the New South Wales Court. On the sworn information before the magistrate in New Southh Wales, and a warrant having been issued upon that, accused, if he had been in New South Wales, would have been immediately liable to be arrested and brought before the magistrates on a charge of murder. On September 28 accused was brought to Sydney and remanded to Bourke. The article now complained of, dealing first with the case against respondent Wynne, was published on September 29. Accused still remained in custody, and on October 7 he was committed for trial by the coroner at the conclusion of the inquest, and now awaited his trial on a charge of murder. On November 7 a copy of a newspaper of September 29, was purchased at the office of the "Daily Telegraph," containing an article about accused, and on November 11 a rule nisi was granted calling upon respondents to show cause why they should not be committed for contempt. Now, in the first place, one had to see what the article complained of was, and he thought it was impossible to read that article without coming to the conclusion that the writer prejudged the case of the applicant, and it was impossible to escape from the feeling that respondent's case was hopeless from the start. In his opinion there had been a prejudgment of the case which was calculated to exercise an undue influence upon the minds of those who read the article, notwithstanding the lapse of some weeks since publication. It was urged that the Court ought to consider and give weight to evidence to the effect that a certain statement in the nature of a confession had been made at the Coroner's inquest, and which was lawfully published after the publication now complained of. Even if that were admissible and relevant to such a case as this, the matter referred to as a confession in the evidence adduced at the inquest appeared in a very small compass, whereas the article complained of worked up material which was said to have been derived from inquiries in Melbourne, and was accompanied by pictures the whole of which would be calculated to exert an influence far beyond anything that could be gathered from the matters given in evidence before the Coroner. He was therefore decidedly of opinion that the case was one for the intervention of the Court in the exercise of its present jurisdiction, unless there was some other reason to induce the Court to stay its hand. First, he wished to express the opinion that the matters placed before the Court in certain affidavits, and which were objected to by counsel for the applicant, were open to the objection that they were not relevant to the cases before the Court. Now, it was very strongly urged that, even supposing the articles were published at a time at which our law, as now understood, would warrant the intervention of the Court, there were pronouncements in the case of ex parte Smith, and others, which were calculated to mislead the public and newspaper proprietors, and lead them to suppose that until an accused had actually been committed for trial in a criminal case newspapers were perfectly free to comment as they pleased. It was necessary therefore to see what those pronouncements were. (His Honor here referred to the cases of ex parte Bennett, 14 S.C. reports (1876), page 33, and ex parte Abigail (1892), 13 New South Wales Law Reports.) He did not see how those cases, in the light of later cases, could be said to apply. In the case of ex parte Smith, 1 State Reports (1901), page 55, a similar opinion was expressed as in the earlier cases as to newspapers who referred to the case of an accused, before committal, being immune from the intervention of the Court in this jurisdiction. At page 58 the late Chief Justice said, in the course of argument: "The article of the 8th was before the committal, and he had a perfect right to print it. It is idle to argue that doing something he had a right to do can show malice." Mr. Justice Stephen said, immediately afterwards: "At the same time I think it is most highly reprehensible to publish such articles, even before committal, whilst an inquest is proceeding, and everyone knows that a person is under arrest charged with a crime. I am sure such a thing will not be done again once it has been brought to the knowledge of the editors of our papers." Although the opinion he had quoted from the Chief Justice was a clear one, it was not on a matter which went to the merits of the case before him, because the publication referred to was not the one which was made the basis of the application, and, therefore, could not be taken as a pronouncement of the law, which was likely to mislead newspapers and the public. He quoted from the opinion of Mr. Justice Wills, in Rex v Parkes, 2, Q.B. (1903), page 432, and said he did not propose to give any opinion as to the exact point at which abstention from comment became material in this kind of jurisdiction. It was enough to say that when a prisoner had become amenable to the jurisdiction of the magistrate's court by the laying of a sworn information, and the issue of a warrant under which the accused might at any moment be arrested and committed for trial, then the point had certainly been reached at which the fountains of justice must not be disturbed. The case he had just referred to was followed by that of Rex v Davies, 3 Q.B. (1896) at page 132, in which the same opinion was expressed. There remained the question raised as to the right course for the Court to take in the present case, finding, as it had done, that the article was one which was calculated to exercise an improper influence upon the minds of those who might have to consider the case of the applicant. As far as the denial of any intention to interfere with the due course of justice was concerned, the Court readily accepted it, though it could not be overlooked that punishment had been inflicted several times before for similar offences, though, happily, the press of the State seldom descended to morbid newsmongering. It had been suggested that the imposition of a moderate fine would be sufficient to meet the requirements of the case, and he thought also that bearing in mind that until more recent pronouncements there might have been uncertainty or ignorance as to what had previously been pronounced to be the law, he thought that the circumstances of the present case would be rightly met by the imposition of a penalty of £100. But the Court wished to add a warning that if the imposition of a fine and the more full statement of the law should not prove sufficient to prevent other offences of the kind, rendering it necessary for the Court again to intervene, it might be called upon to take more drastic action than the imposition of a fine.

The respondents were then fined £100 each, and ordered to pay the costs of the applicant.

OTHER CASES.

Mr Shannon said that there were two other cases—the "Age" and the "Sunday Times"—in which he had intended to move for a rule nisi, but as the legitimate object of the application had been served by the previous decision, he had decided to go no further. He thought, however, that these papers should express regret for the injury they had done.

The Chief Justice: You cannot convey suggestions to outside persons by a statement to the Court.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Cohen, and Mr. Justice Sly.)

A SOLICITOR STRUCK OFF.

Re John Armit.

Mr. Chubb, instructed by Mr. T. Michell, appeared for the Incorporated Law Institute, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi by which the respondent, John Armit, of Roselle, solicitor, had been called upon to answer the matters continued in the affidavits of Newton Daly (secretary of the institute), and to show cause why he should not be struck off the roll or why any further order should not be made as the Court should think fit. Mr. W. A. Walker and Mr. Bignold, instructed by Mr. R. H. Levein, appeared for the respondent to show cause. The charge arose from a District Court action, and the matter had been referred to the Crown Law Department by Judges Murray and Backhouse, and afterwards sent on to the institute. The particulars of the case have already been given. The main charge against respondent was that he made a false affidavit as to payment of certain fees on a stated date with intent to deceive the Registrar of the District Court while exercising his duty in taxing costs. Affidavits on behalf of respondent having been read,

The Chief Justice, in delivering judgment of the Court, said that the charge against respondent was that he had sworn an affidavit in connection with a matter for the taxation of costs containing a false statement, which he knew to be false, that certain moneys had been paid by him. He did not wish to make any comment on the criminal liability of respondent, because if a criminal charge should be laid against him on the affidavit, the matter would have to be tried by a jury, and it would be open to him to show, if he could, that criminal liability did not attach. But that Court had to deal with him on the present application, and on the evidence before it the Court was of opinion that respondent's name must be removed from the roll of solicitors.

AN INCOME TAX MATTER.

Re J. Davies (trading as W. H. Ariell and Co., appellant) v Income Tax Commissioners.

Mr. Wise, K.C., and Mr. C. A. White, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Company, appeared for the appellant, John Davies, trading as W. H. Ariell and Company; and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the Income Tax Commissioners. This was a case stated by Judge Murray sitting as a Court of Review, at the instance of the appellant, for the determination of the Supreme Court. The matter came before Mr. Justice Pring and Mr. Justice Sly a short time ago, when the particulars of the case were fully stated.

Argument was now concluded, and the Court reserved judgment.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

LITIGATION OVER AN INDEMNITY.

Rudder v Union Bank of Australia, Ltd.

Mr. D. G. Ferguson and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. S. M. Stephens, appeared for the plaintiff (appellant), and moved to make absolute a rule nisi to set aside the verdict found for the defendant bank, and for a new trial. Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. E. M. Mitchell, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the defendant bank in support of the verdict. The action, which was tried in September last, before the Chief Judge and a jury of four, was brought by Albert Ernest Rudder against the Union Bank of Australia, Ltd., to recover compensation for alleged breach of agreement for an indemnity. His case was that he was the agent of Alfred H. Post and Co., of New York, and certain goods were consigned to him by them. T. J. Moncks requested him to deliver the goods to him, and in consideration that the plaintiff would so deliver the goods to Moncks without the production of the shipping documents the defendant company promised that Moncks would indemnify him against all claims in consequence of such delivery, and would hand to the plaintiff the shipping documents on receiving the same. The plaintiff accordingly delivered the goods, consisting of a motor car, to Moncks, without production of the shipping documents. He claimed £400.

The defendants filed a number of pleas, but the main defence was that the delivery of the motor car to Moncks was in accordance with the instructions of Alfred H. Post and Co., that no claims had been made upon plaintiff within the meaning of the indemnity in consequence of the delivery of the goods, and that A. H. Post and Co. in their capacity as carriers and transport agents forwarded the car for the Mitchell Motor Car Company to plaintiff as their agent to be delivered in Sydney to Moncks as agent of the Mitchell Motor Car Company.

Mr. Justice Pring, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that although there were a great many grounds raised in the appeal, when one came to examine the case the really substantial question they had to decide was whether there was evidence to go to the jury in support of the plaintiff's case. If there was, then his Honor was wrong in directing a verdict for the defendants. The bank having guaranteed the due performance of the contract entered into between Moncks and the plaintiff, what the Court had to consider was, had the plaintiff the right of action against Moncks; or, to put it in another way, had Moncks failed to fulfil his contract with plaintiff? Because, if he had, then it would follow that the plaintiff would have his right of action against the bank. There was evidence at all events for the consideration of the jury that Post and Co. did make a valid claim against the plaintiff. There was no doubt that in entering into this arrangement with Moncks the plaintiff was breaking his contract with Post and Co. and this company had made a claim against the plaintiff, Moncks not having accounted to them for the money.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C.: He sent them an account.

His Honor: The money has never been paid.

Mr. Campbell: There is a contra account.

Mr. Justice Pring (continuing) thought that his Honor was wrong in taking the case away from the jury, and he considered that the case had really not been tried, and the whole proceedings seemed to him unsatisfactory.

The application for a new trial was therefore granted, costs of the first trial to be costs in the cause; both parties have liberty to apply to amend the pleadings as they might be advised.

GOULBURN SMALL DEBTS CASE.

Simon v M'Donald.

Mr. Carlos, instructed by Mr. John Connellan, of Crookwell (by his agents, Messrs. M'Donell and Moffitt), appeared for the applicant, Anthony Simon, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi for writ of certiorari directed to F. H. Galbraith, P.M., and four justices of the peace, who adjudicated in a case brought by the applicant in the Small Debts Court at Goulburn against George M'Donald and William Moreton M'Donald, storekeepers, of Crookwell; and Mr. Betts, instructed by Messrs. Betts and Son, of Goulburn (by their agents, Messrs. Pigott and Stinson), for the respondents other than the magistrates.

The facts were that Simon sued G. and W. M. M'Donald to recover £40 is at the Goulburn Small Debts Court, the Act providing that where the amount was over £30 the claim could only be determined by a police magistrate; but here honorary magistrates had sat with him, and a verdict by a majority was given for £13 for the plaintiff. Plaintiff now objected to the jurisdiction exercised by the magistrates.

Mr. Justice Pring (Mr. Justice Gordon concurring) said that it was clear that the Court below as constituted had no jurisdiction, and they therefore made the rule absolute, but without costs, no objection having been taken at the time to the magistrates exercising jurisdiction.

FEDERAL ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Higgins.)

CLAIMS OF MERCHANT SERVICE GUILD.

Further evidence was given on behalf of the Steamshipowners' Association. It was stated by several witnesses doing agency business that rents had not increased to any great extent since 1906—only about 6d or 1s a week.

Part heard.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Judge Heydon.)

SHIP-PAINTERS AND DOCKERS' BOARD.

Mr. Robert Mahoney, secretary of the Federated Ship-painters and Dockers' Union, applied for the constitution of a wages board to deal with the industry of ship-painting and docking. Mr. C. E. Smith, representing the New South Wales Interstate Steamship Owners' Association, the New South Wales Coastal Steamship Owners' Association, and Mort's Dock and Engineering Company, Limited, appeared to consent. Mr. Roe, secretary of the Painters' Union, also consented.

His Honor said he would recommend the appointment of a board to deal with the industry of ship-painting and docking, but such board would not deal with persons or unions covered by any other boards or awards.

On behalf of the employees Robert Mahoney, of 82 Mort-street, Balmain, and on behalf of the employers Charles Edward Smith, of No. 1, third floor, Equitable-buildings, were nominated as members of the board. The appointment of a chairman stood over.

MILLING CONDIMENT-MAKERS' BOARD.

Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared in the matter of the constitution of a board to deal with the industry of milling condiment-making, on behalf of Messrs. Parsons Bros., Robert Harper and Co., Clifford, Love, and Co., Cowling and Co., and others. Mr. Lewis, on behalf of the United Millers and Mill Employees' Union, applied for the board.

His Honor granted the application for the industry for persons employed in the counties of Cumberland and Northumberland not under any previously-appointed boards, or under any award existing. He added that if later on it were found advisable to ask for the dissolution of the board in order that one or other boards to deal with the various branches of the industry might be appointed he would consider the matter with a view to a redistribution of the sections of the industry under such boards as might be deemed proper to handle them. It was probable that the board just applied for would make an award which would only hold for twelve months, because it would be liable to be quashed when the award of the Grain-milling Board, presided over by Mr. Carlos, expired, which would be in about that time.

Michael O'Haiher, publican, Kent and King streets, was nominated as the employees' representative on the board, and the matter of the employers' representative was directed to stand over for two weeks.

IMPORTANT AND NOVEL POINT. APPEAL AGAINST REGISTRAR'S DECISION.

David Reid, coachmaker, of Murrumburrah, appealed from an order of the Industrial Registrar of October 14 last imposing a penalty of £2 under section 43 of the Industrial Disputes Act, together with costs, £6 13s 6d, and professional costs, £3 3s, in default seven days' hard labour, for an alleged breach of the award of the Coachmaking (Road) Board in not paying one Walter Dacey the wages prescribed for a striker of the age of 19 years.

Mr. Piddington, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson, appeared in support of the application, and Mr. C. A. Coghlan, instructed by Mr. P. B. Marshall, secretary of the Amalgamated Coachmakers Railway Car and Waggon Builders and Wheelwrights' Society of New South Wales.

Mr. Piddington said the decision of the Registrar was contrary to the evidence.

Mr. Coghlan argued that under section 3 of the Industrial Disputes Amendment Act there was no right of appeal from the decision of the Registrar.

His Honor, after argument, said the matter was quite new to him, and there was a great deal more to be said for it than he thought there was; in fact, it never occurred to him. He would reserve his decision.

PICTURE FRAMERS. APPEAL AGAINST THE AWARD.

Mr. Croft appeared in support of an application for leave to appeal from an award of the Picture Framers' Board of September 23 last. The application was made on behalf of the secretary of the United Furniture Trade Society, of which Mr. E. W. Cutler is secretary, on the following grounds:—That the rate fixed for gilders by the board was too low and against evidence; that the award in fixing the rate for joiners of four years' experience before he was entitled to the minimum wage was unfair, and enabled joiners' work to be done at less than the minimum wage; that the award in fixing the rate of compo workers and assistants was too low, and that some provision should have been made that there should be one assistant to every compo worker, otherwise the position of the assistant would be prejudiced by the encroachment of improvers; that the award in fixing the rate for overmantel workers was too low and against evidence; that the award in fixing the rate for cutters at £2 2s per week was too low and against evidence; that the award in fixing the rate for fitters at £2 5s per week was too low, and that for the protection in the industry of the male adult some provision should be made fixing the proportion of girls to every male adult employed fitting up; that clause 3 of the award permitting the employment of improvers was unfair and prejudicial to the industry of the skilled worker, and that in view of the conditions of the industry the improver should be totally excluded, but if included he should receive not less than £2 2s per week on reaching the age of 20 years; that the provision of clause 3, permitting of pointing being done by females, was unfair, and that that section of the work done by females was unfair, and that that section of the work was properly the work of the journeyman guilder or the apprentice; that the board was wrong in not making provision for the legal indenturing of apprentices, and the registration of copies of the indentures with the Industrial Registrar; and that the proportion of apprentices should be one apprentice to two journeymen in receipt of not less than the minimum wage.

The application stands part heard.

VICE-ADMIRALTY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Street, Deputy Judge Commissary.)

MOTION TO CONSOLIDATE SUITS.

Newcastle and Hunter River S.S. Company and others v Union S.S. Company of New Zealand, Ltd.

Mr. Broomfield, instructed by Messrs. Creagh and Creagh, appeared for the defendant company, and moved for an order consolidating the four suits. They were brought for salvage services, admitted to have been rendered by the Newcastle and Hunter River S.S. Company's Newcastle to the defendant company's steamer Whangape on Thursday, July 9 last, off Cape Three Points, when the latter vessel had been stripped of her propeller. The plaintiff company not only sued for the services rendered by the Newcastle, but separate writs had been issued by Nilsson (the master), M'Leod and others (officers), and Francis and others, being the crew of the Newcastle. Mr. Broomfield submitted that to issue separate writs in respect of the same services was unprecedented here, and as far as he knew also in England, and could only have the effect of heaping up costs. Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. H. de Y. Scroggie, appeared for the plaintiff company and the master and officers of the Newcastle; and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Brothers, for the crew, to oppose the application. It was stated that the total claim was between £2000 and £3000. His Honor, in delivering his reserved judgment, said that, as was pointed out in the case of the Strathgarry (1895), the matters which ordinarily lead the Court to order consolidation were considerations of convenience and of economy. The several plaintiffs in the various actions now under consideration did not suggest that the actions could not be conveniently consolidated, but they asked that the Court should exercise the power which it possessed under rule 27 of imposing terms upon the defendants as a condition of such consolidation. The defendants had intimated their intention of paying a sum of money into court in satisfaction of the services rendered, and what was asked by plaintiffs was that the Court should make it a term of the order for consolidation that a separate sum be paid in in respect of each action. He did not think he would be justified in making such an order. He ordered that the suits be consolidated and defendants be permitted to pay a single sum into court in satisfaction of the whole of the services rendered.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

FALL DOWN A CELLAR. A BARMAN'S CLAIM.

Gater v Price.

George Gater, barman, of 85 Bathurst-street, Sydney, brought an action against James Price, hotel manager, of Rockdale, to recover compensation for injuries alleged to have been received owing to the negligence of defendant in leaving a cellar door of the hotel premises open and unprotected. Damages were laid at £400. Defendant pleaded not guilty, and denied negligence.

Mr. Cecil Teece, instructed by Mr. J. B. Frawley, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. T. H. England, for defendant.

His Honor found for plaintiff, with damages £50.

WATERED MILK.

Irwin v Sydney Milk and Ice Company.

Celia Ellen Irwin, widow, of 124 New Canterbury-road, Petersham, brought an action against the Sydney Milk and Ice Company, Ltd., to recover £25 damages alleged to have been caused owing to the defendant company's negligence, carelessness, and default.

Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. W. A. Walker, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, for the defendants.

Plaintiff's case was that she purchased milk from defendant company for the purpose of retailing it to her customers. She was prosecuted under the Pure Foods Act for selling the milk, which was watered, and she was fined £5, with 6s costs. She had thereby incurred loss and damage, and was injured in her business and reputation as a milk-vendor. She alleged in effect that they had supplied her with adulterated milk, and not, as warranted by them, pure and up to the standard required by the Act.

The defence was not guilty.

His Honor found for the plaintiff, with damages £20.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and juries.)

Mr. H. Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

PRISONER SENTENCED.

William Gilchrist Bartlem, who was found guilty of bigamy, was sentenced to two years' hard labour. Accused was given leave to petition at the end of nine months for a reconsideration of his case.

Frederick Henry Harris, found guilty of stealing portion of £517, the property of John M'Donald, at Moss Vale, on October 8, was sentenced to 18 months' hard labour.

John Gladstone Hayes, who pleaded guilty to stealing a cashbox, containing two cheques, a postal-note, stamps, and £9 in money, the property of James Reading Fairfax and others, was sentenced to 18 months' hard labour.

CONSTABLE ROBBED.

Hugh Burrell pleaded not guilty to stealing £10 12s, the property of James Thompson Dunnet, a police constable. The Crown case was that the robbery took place on October 28, in a lodging-house in George-street, where accused and the constable occupied the same room. Accused denied the charge, and produced a letter from a Brisbane solicitor stating that moneys had been paid to him. Accused was found guilty, and sent to gaol for 12 months.

ACQUITTED.

Rupert Edgar Brown pleaded not guilty to an attempt to break and enter the dwelling-house of Elizabeth Hunter with intent to steal on October 8. Prosecutrix is a widow, and keeps a shop at the corner of Ross-street and Parramatta-road, Forest Lodge. Shortly after midnight on the date mentioned she heard a noise at the back door. Going out, she saw two boards being prised open. She struck a match, and heard footsteps, and looking through the window saw accused. The defence submitted evidence to show that accused was at his own house at the time of the occurrence. Evidence was also called to show that prosecutrix told a tram man that she had not seen the man's face. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and accused was discharged.

Donald James M'Nally pleaded not guilty to shooting at Lena Breen, on October 19, with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The allegation was that he snatched a shilling from prosecutrix as she was walking along Commonwealth-street, and when she remonstrated he fired at her. The defence was that no shot was fired, and police evidence was given to the effect that when the revolver was taken from accused some time later it was not loaded and was out of order. Accused was found not guilty, and discharged.

"Neither a Borrower nor a Lender be."

Polonius' advice to his son was no doubt in his view excellent, but if carried out in our time many good schemes would be nipped in the bud, many promising projects would never mature. Where would many of our flourishing businesses of to-day be if the advice of Shakespeare's sage had been followed. Much more applicable to present-day conditions is another saying of the immortal bard's: "Put money in thy purse." It takes money to make money, and if the pioneers of many successful concerns of to-day had hesitated to borrow for the purpose of legitimate development, their progress would have been infinitely slow, compared with the strides made on the profits of money wisely borrowed. And if it pays the man in a large way to borrow, so also does it pay those of small means. How many men daily say, "If only I had the money;" yet the same men with stupid prejudice daily let slip their opportunities because they will not borrow. Get over the idea that it is unwise to borrow money. Even Governments and nations must borrow at times. To those in need of cash, but unable to furnish securities acceptable to banks and kindred institutions, our system is a veritable boon. We make a business of lending money at reasonable rates on securities such as furniture, deeds of vacant land or property, second mortgages, life policies, live stock, vehicles, shares in mines or companies, interests under wills, bond warrants, stocks in trade, and similar securities. We lend small sums or large. We have built up our business by courteous treatment, fair and honest dealing, ready accommodation, and favourable terms. We make it possible to borrow money when you need it most. You can have it at shortest notice, to-day, if you wish. We give you the fairest treatment, and you are put to no inconvenience. You can pay the money back on your own terms, in instalments so small that you will not feel them. There is no disgrace in needing money. We are all apt to be short occasionally. We all know those times when a little money in hand would be a veritable godsend. In such a time it is foolish not to take advantage of a legitimate, simple, and inexpensive means of securing the much-needed assistance. In our experience with our own customers we have men who have borrowed reluctantly, who afterwards have freely acknowledged that the best day's work they ever did was the borrowing of the first money that enabled them to attain a position they never could have reached without it. And when you borrow, borrow from us. We have satisfied others, we can satisfy you. Your business is transacted privately, in pleasant, private rooms, with pleasant people. We lend our own money. We do not charge you high interest and vexatious expenses, which the man who does a small business must do. So also must companies with dividends to shareholders and fat salaries to managers. We do a large business with our own money, and are satisfied with a reasonable return. We do not delay your application to refer it to the Board of Directors or other parties interested. We are our own board, and you can get "Yes" or "No" off hand, and we will not say "No" if we can help it. No one need hesitate in coming to interview us privately. Come and talk over your financial troubles with us, and the result may be the means of setting you on the road to better fortunes.

Now, hear what some of our customers say of us. You may have seen some of these extracts published before, and verified as genuine by declaration. They are true extracts, word for word, every one of them, from unsolicited letters received in the course of our business from customers. They will stand republishing. We are proud of them. If any others who lend money can show as many and as good testimonials of straightforward dealing and fair terms, we will be pleased to hear of them. Here are a few. Surely they will convince you that ours is a business fairly and honestly conducted, which has helped these people, and which can help you. We cannot give you our customers' names, as all our business is confidential, which you will admit is only right and proper.

READ THE TESTIMONY.

"You have been good friends to me. Long ago but for your help I would have had to go under, but now, thanks to your aid in time of need, I will soon be on my feet again."

"You have treated me with more leniency and kindness than any of my other creditors."

"Feel more than grateful for your prompt unquestioning manner with which you gave me the advance asked for."

"Please accept my thanks for fair treatment, and wishing you success."

"Should I at any future date require an advance I shall have no hesitation in applying to you."

"My credit is still good there, but I think their charges too high." (This refers to dealings elsewhere.)

"I am quite agreeable to your terms and conditions, as they are extremely fair."

"I have received several offers from other financial institutions in Sydney, but prefer to deal with the Firm whose liberal treatment I approve of."

"Enclosed please find cheque for balance of my account, and in closing I must thank you very kindly for the treatment I have received from you in extending me leniencies when I have been hard-pressed."

"Wishing you every success in future."

"Wishing your Firm what it deserves—good biz."

"Like the two previous loans, has shown me a good dividend, and greatly in advance of the interest charged by you, which was very low."

"The loan was the best bit of money ever I had."

Now, if there is anything else you wish to know, we shall be pleased to tell you. You can get quotations and all information if you will write or call. We have established in a short space of time a successful business and an enviable reputation for providing money expeditiously and equitably.

SYDNEY.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

THE OLD HOMESTEADS.

There is no form of investment which attracts so much public comment and about which every Utopian faddist considers he has a heaven-born inspiration on which to build as that of large privately-owned estates. These for the most part are the homes of the "squatters." In any country there is a large majority of landless people, and in Australia, generally recognised as the home of large estates, the squatters, though forming but a small minority as numbers go, represent a large and profitable target. This, at all events, is the view of the average legislator of to-day, and we find recent legislation aiming directly at that target. The party aimed at is virtually as inanimate as any ordinary target, for legislation which is directed towards relieving him of part of his profits is effective, and the squatter, try as he may, can find practically few ways of passing it on. His profits depend on the season, the grazing or agricultural value of his land, and on manufacturers in Europe. He cannot hold up his wool because he is not offered what is wanted for it, but he must take the market price, whatever that may be at the time. The progressive land tax has laid a heavy hand on many squatters, or rather those who own large freehold areas. Apart from that, however, the policy of nearly every Government in recent times has been directed towards encouraging closer settlement, and coincidently the sacrificing of large estates. This policy has only been effective in regard to estates which come within the category of land suitable for closer settlement, which means, in the main, land suitable for agriculture. The process is, however, being extended, and the pace is getting faster. What was recognised as only sheep country a decade ago is now classed as excellent wheat land, thanks to the encroachment of railway lines into the interior, and to the new system of agriculture known as dry farming. The result of this movement is seen on every hand. Big estates near the main lines are rapidly diminishing in numbers. Others along the branch lines are being sold as farming areas, and even away from the railway other large estates are being subdivided on the prospect of having railways constructed.

The sacrifice of large estates—the homes of squatters or their managers—is going on apace, and as the movement is likely to be accelerated by the land tax, it can be predicted that the days of the "nearer-in" squatters are numbered. Of course estates which lie outside the wheat belt and those which are suitable only for grazing sheep or cattle will not be affected to any degree. One does not often hear the word "squatter" nowadays. Pastoralist or grazier is possibly a more euphonious term. Be that as it may, there is an element of sadness in the gradual disappearance of the big estates, with their comfortable homesteads, and the social connections of a generation or two. The old-time squatter could never bring himself to imagine his fine old homestead being shorn of its large acres and turned into a wheat farmer's residence, with perhaps a thousand acres or two attached. But there are quite a number of such to be found in Riverina to-day. There is something romantic about an old homestead. The low wooden building, with its broad verandahs and shuttered doors, is the highest ideal of comfort as the term is known in the country. In the heat of summer, after some hard riding on the run, what is more consoling than an evening pipe on the broad verandah, or where do you find a cup of tea so refreshing as that served behind the cluster of wistaria on the same spot? The homestead is set in a miniature park, where you find the gum and kurrajong side by side with the pinus insignis, and probably a hedge or clump of saltbush. There is usually quite a little village, made up of the wool shed stables, hay sheds, and blacksmith's shop. Social intercourse, though intermittent, owing to the distances between homesteads, is the salt of life to those in the backblocks, and the feeling of interdependence, in work as well as play, cements friendships, which often become lifelong. Many of the old homesteads, alas, hear the crack of the stock whip no more. A machinery shed has been added to the outbuildings. From the broad, shady verandah one looks across a panorama of waving wheat where once were broad paddocks, grazing thousands of sheep. It is good to see the wheat paddocks, and it is a sign of progress, but there is room at the same time for a lament on the passing of the old—the homestead of the squatter and its lifelong associations. Many of them have passed out by misfortune. An old homestead, which is indelibly stamped on the writer's memory, was one such. The pioneer took up the run half a century ago, in the days when it was out back. The nearest railway was 50 miles, and a drive of 60 miles had to be undertaken to reach the nearest town of any size. The large kurrajong tree still stands near the homestead, inscribed with the initials of the owner and the date of inscription. Since those early days of big distances and big hearts much has befallen. The pioneer has long since passed over to the Beyond. Of his family not one is under the roof of the old home, as the estate fell into the hands of city financiers. The family was torn asunder and scattered, and the tragedy of it all is that the train runs within half a mile of the old homestead, and the land is worth close on £75,000. This goes into a stranger's pocket. A few thousand pounds would have saved the place for the family not many years ago. Now there are prosperous farmers scattered over the estate, which, until two years ago, continued to be a sheep run. This process of disintegration, from large to small areas, from sheep to wheat, is going on all the while, but faster now than ever before. Every year the out-back moves a point closer in as settlement sweeps further west. One sees less of the old picturesque homesteads with their free and easy life, the hard riding and the happy, jolly social gatherings. The droning rhythm of the harvester is abroad in the land, and sturdy plough horses plod up and down all day long, where light, but fleet, stock horses careered a few years back. There are probably the same number of sheep on the combined farms which make up the old station, for with cultivation sheep can be carried on land in the same numbers as formerly. The generation of sheep and cattle men which has passed would find little that attracts in the small farmers' flocks or in cultivation. The young generation—the sons of the squatter—see that farming pays, and on almost every station of the "nearer-in" a larger area of land is being cut up by the plough each year. So though we saw the spectacle a few years ago of squatters fighting, passively perhaps, the tide of closer settlement we now have large station owners actually setting an example in closer settlement. Many are cutting up the whole, or portions, of their runs into farms, while almost every station in Riverina has commenced opening large areas on the run for wheat share-farmers. The fact becomes plain, after all, that the lament for the passing of the more romantic station life must swell into the exultant chord of triumph that sounds the note of progress for Australia—the opening of the land for the people.

WARBLES IN CATTLE.

AN INTERESTING SAMPLE.

Pest-ridden as the country is, it is a consolation to know that there are some stock troubles that we have so far escaped. One of these is warbles in cattle, and a very fine specimen of the damage done by the warble fly may be seen at the present time at Messrs. Winchcombe, Carson, and Co.'s office in Sydney. Mr. Carson, while in England recently, was told by Sir Richard Cooper (Cooper and Nephews) of the trouble the warble fly was to stockmen in that country. He was naturally interested, and the latter gentleman promised to send him a sample of the damage done to the hide of the beast. This has now come to hand, in the shape of a large strip of tanned hide taking in the whole of the back. Needless to say, being tanned, there is absolutely no danger of any contagion from the sample. The whole of the centre of the hide, within a diameter of a couple of feet, is simply riddled with holes, where the hide has perished, owing to the presence of the larvae of the fly. The value of the hide is, therefore, largely diminished, and is probably not worth one quarter of that of what it would be if sound. In addition, it is evident that an animal in the state such as denoted by the hide could never fatten or flourish. The pest is very prevalent in European countries, but happily we have not got it here. That, however, is only due to the alertness of the officers of the Stock Department, as animals imported from the old country are frequently affected with the fly. In such cases close supervision is maintained until the parasites have been destroyed.

Mr. S. T. D. Symons, Chief Inspector of Stock, has supplied Mr. Carson with the following note on warbles in cattle:—

> The condition known as warbles in cattle consists of cyst-like swellings underneath the skin of the back, due to the presence of the larva of the hypoderma bovis, or warble fly. These conditions are brought about during the summer months in those countries where the fly exists, and a common preventive before turning cattle out is to smear their backs with Stockholm tar. Towards the latter period of the presence of these bots they can be easily removed from the back by squeezing them out. Although the common opinion has for long been held that the fly punctures the skin and deposits the eggs underneath, the present belief is that this does not occur, but that the eggs of the fly are taken in to the intestinal tract, and by some method arrive at their terminal destination in the loose connective tissue under the skin. In those countries where the fly is very prevalent the condition brought about considerably detracts from the value of the skin, owing to the holes that remain in the leather.

In regard to the above specimen, Mr. Symons is of the opinion that it is not the hide of an English animal, but one from Central Europe, or some part where care is not taken of the cattle as in England. He does not think such a bad case would be found in the latter country, or at least it would be very uncommon.

THE WOOL TRADE.

A BUOYANT MARKET.

All the best features of late have been more than maintained during the week now closing. There has been a buoyant market, and values have ruled well up to the highest level of the season for all but wasty and faulty wools. The selections have included a smaller proportion of inferior descriptions, and some of the most noted clips have appeared in the catalogues. Competition has been keen, especially for fine quality lines in light condition; medium descriptions have also sold well. It has only been the faulty parcels, including those carrying burr, that have not been in good demand. Greasies have comprised almost the whole of the catalogues; scoureds not being extensively in evidence. With attractive and full offerings the buying side of the trade has responded splendidly, especially the Continental section, and more particularly the operators on German account. Yorkshire seems to be playing a waiting game; in the expectation of scoring later in the selling season when they hope to see their competitors tired out. That consummation may not be attained, and now that it is seen by a carefully-compiled estimate, that this season's export production is likely to be within the region of a 100,000 bales increase; instead of a 200,000 to a 250,000 bales increase, as was forecasted in England months ago, the prospects of over-production in this season's wool output are not at all great. Especially when it is seen that the clean-scoured yield must be considerably below that of last season's record clip.

Nine catalogues were submitted on the four selling days this week, aggregating 43,452 bales; of which 39,950 bales were sold at auction. In addition thereto 2743 bales were sold privately, ex catalogue, and 1850 bales privately uncatalogued; a total realisation for the week of 44,543 bales. The offerings generally were above the previous average, especially on three days, when a very substantial proportion of high-class wools were included in the catalogues. The German section secured the bulk of the offerings, with the French section very active in support. While values cannot be quoted higher, the trend is in buyers' favour for good to super wools, faulty and wasty descriptions still being irregular, and at times difficult to quit. Lamb's wool and crossbred have continued in strong demand, and scoureds have sold fairly well. Short, burry, dusty wools, which have been so considerably in evidence this season, being the only descriptions not to respond to a buoyant market.

DALGETY'S 1910-11 WOOL ESTIMATE.

The annual clip estimate of Dalgety and Co., relating to the Australian wool production for the current season was published yesterday. It is based on this occasion on the over-sea exports, instead of on the net production of each State; as, unfortunately, it was not possible to gauge the net clip production of any one State, for the reason that the Customs' returns of movements of wool between the various States have been discontinued. There is a considerable quantity of wool which goes across the borders, particularly in the case of New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland; and it seems a thousand pities that anything should have been done to interfere with the collection of wool statistics, that are so valuable to each State, and without which no true record can be kept. It is to be hoped that this may be rectified before next wool season comes around. Meanwhile there is a break in the continuity of wool figures, and the best has to be made of a bad job. The table of figures showing Dalgety and Company's estimate for this season's (export) production, is as follows:—

States.	1910-11. (Estimated.) Bales.		1909-10. (Actual.) Bales.
New South Wales	915,000	..	931,000
Victoria	585,000	..	510,000
Queensland	300,000	..	239,000
South Australia	175,000	..	161,000
Western Australia	70,000	..	64,000
Tasmania	20,000	..	17,000
Commonwealth	2,015,000	..	1,922,000
New Zealand	520,000	..	513,000
Australasia	2,535,000	..	2,435,000

Estimated increase for 1910-11 on the previous season's exports, 100,000 bales.

This year's estimate having been delayed beyond the usual time for publishing figures of clip output has permitted of the position being more fully realised than would otherwise have been possible, and it is believed that the trade will find it a reliable guide as to the Australasian wool exports for the current season. The estimate has been based on carefully-obtained interstate and New Zealand information. If the estimated increase of 100,000 bales is borne out by actual export figures at June 30 next, it should forever put an end to the guesses of English writers who have done so much of late to damage the Australian market position through continued exaggerated forecasts of the 1910-11 wool Australian production. In any case, an end should come to consumers paying any regard to guesses; for, if it is impossible for estimates to be made after carefully compiling information from reliable sources in all the States of the Commonwealth and in the Dominion, when the season is well under way, and the bulk of the clip shorn, then obviously it is out of the question for individuals to reliably forecast on the other side four or five months earlier when the wool has not been grown, let alone not shorn. This guessing in London is a great evil, and is prejudicial to Australian wool-growers; it is misleading to wool-consumers, and prompts them to adopt attitudes towards raw wool markets on the one side, and to tops and yarns on the other, that might otherwise not be taken.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS.

On Monday last two catalogues totalled 11,118 bales, of which 10,191 bales were realised at auction. The selection was an attractive one, and the demand particularly keen for the finer lines. The WWW/Belltrees (Scone) sold to /14½, paid for 112 bales A w, and 33 A e /14¼, a wool showing good character and quality, shafty, and in excellent condition. A line of LDN (Dalby, Q.) was passed in at /14½. Scoured sold to /22½.

Two catalogues on Tuesday totalled 10,147 bales, of which 9350 were cleared from the rostrum. The selection included some super lines. The highest price in greasy was /14½, paid for five bales 1st comeback of JM/Tabletop, from Albury, the merino portion of the clip selling to /14, crossbred to /13¾; eight bales A h Longarm (Barraba) fetched /14½, and Blax/Barraba also sold to the same figure. Scoured sold to /21.

Wednesday's selection was barely up to the high standard of the two previous days' offerings. Three catalogues aggregated 10,733 bales, of which 10,043 were sold under the hammer. The offerings included several light-conditioned, well-bred wools, but comprised a large showing of medium grades. There was a strong market, greasy sold to /13½, and scoured to /21½.

On the closing sale day for the week the offerings totalled 11,457 bales, and the realisations at auction 10,236 bales. The selection was attractive, comprising a few super lines, some light-conditioned crossbreds, and a large proportion of good wools, with a few short-stapled, dusty lines. There was a strong demand at the best of recent rulings. Greasy sold to /13¾ for Bon Accord, WW/Colly Creek, and X/AM/Rutherglen/New England.

The offerings and sales were as follows:—

CONTINENTAL USERS AND AUSTRALIAN SALES.

It would seem from our cable, stating that last week the "association of German cotton spinners and wool combers at a meeting at Eisenach, Saxe Weimar, unanimously resolved to support the proposed division of the Australian wool sales into two periods," that the suggestions made by Mr. Alfred Van Rompaey (Ostermeyer, Dewez, and Van Rompaey) in the "Sydney Morning Herald" on July 6 last are likely to be urged with some force in the future. Mr. Van Rompaey became a buyer in the Sydney wool market in 1880, and therefore speaks with considerable experience. His argument was that the Australian wool markets have outgrown the conditions under which they were reared, and that the system of selling needs to be reconstituted. The spinning mills, the combing mills, and the dealers of Germany form three distinct and compact bodies for the furtherance of their trade and for mutual protection. They not only work together within their own circles, but also with each other for mutual protection. Having these facts in view, it can be seen that they form a very strong combination, and that any carefully considered and unanimous resolve of theirs is of great importance to the Australian wool trade. Some few weeks after Mr. Van Rompaey urged the division of the wool-selling periods in Australia, he returned to Europe, and prior to leaving in effect said: "If the antiquated method of carrying on the Australian wool sales is not altered promptly these German associations (which, with only one important exception, command the whole Austrian, Swiss, and also part of the Belgian wool textile industry, and who furthermore have close connection with numerous French firms) will take measures in their own protection. For instance, supposing at Christmas time, when the first requirements have been satisfied by the Australian purchases, these bodies decided that it would be in the interest of the wool trade to suspend the sales for three months, what would be the position of the Australian markets then?" That query was answered in effect by saying: "For want of taking timely precautions the buying power would suddenly vanish, the Australian trade would be thrown into a state of chaos, and no reproach could be made to the European consumers for taking into their own hands a remedy which the Australian selling brokers have failed to accomplish. If the balance of the clip were sent to London, Continental and British consumers would be only too pleased, but would it suit Australia? If such a stoppage in the Australian trade were to take place the result might be a fall in prices, of which the woolgrower would have to bear the brunt, the European consumer looking on with comparative equanimity, because through the present system of selling forward yarns and tops he is in a position to cover himself at any time."

REASONS FOR A LENGTHENED RECESS.

The foregoing statement of the position occupied by Continental buyers urging the division of the selling series into two distinct periods may seem to be farfetched. However, that succinctly puts their view, and it would probably depend upon trade movements whether anything of the kind could be carried out. The fact that the resolution was carried unanimously would point to the importance of the matter at this time, when Australia is in the height of the selling season. Mr. Van Rompaey's summary of the position in July last was as follows:—

> We think a division of the Australian selling season would be a great improvement, for the following reasons:—(1) It would save us having so much wool come forward at one time, and it would distribute payments. (2) It would keep prices in closer touch with world-values. (3) It would, I think, tend to selling more wool, not less, in Australia. (4) It would release the market in Australia from pressure to "hurry up and be done with the matter of selling the clip." (5) It would greatly accommodate buyers in allowing them to keep qualities bought in touch with the demand, and save manufacturers from an accumulation they might find themselves not wanting.
> Between the two series I suggest the manufacturer would be using up supplies and return fresh for the autumn series. In the way of safety and security the advantage would not be less considerable to the woolgrower. He now always endeavours to sell as soon as possible, anyhow, before Christmas, to turn his clip into money, as he puts it; but I shrewdly suspect that this is not the only reason for this haste. When in Sydney alone he sees a compact mass of 800,000 bales looming in the near future, does not, like myself, dread what might happen when the first requirements are satisfied; say, after Christmas? Such misgivings would be amply justified by the experience of 1900 and 1908.
> Why not close up the "Spring Series" clean before Christmas, have three months' recess, and then in March let the "autumn sales" commence. The consumer will have worked up part of his previous purchases, and will recommence his operations with renewed zest; the more so as his autumn purchases will arrive at a time when European stocks begin to get scarce, and when mills are generally busy. Under such altered conditions, if I were a grower, I think I should rather sell my wool in April than in October.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

On Monday last sales were held in Adelaide, when 31,000 bales were catalogued. Selling commenced at 7.30 a.m. There was a full attendance of buyers, and Yorkshire operators secured the bulk of the offerings. The selection was suitable for Bradford requirements. Good light-conditioned merinos were reported, and were quoted par to 5 per cent. above the rulings at the fourth series, medium descriptions without change, and faulty, burry lots par to 5 per cent. lower.

Sales have been proceeding in Melbourne and Geelong on firm lines. The better classes of merino and crossbred have shown a hardening tendency. Yorkshire and the continental sections have been keen for good spinning wools and all descriptions of top-making lines, but wasty and inferior sorts are reported easier.

Offerings and sales in the various centres to dates given, compared to last year, are as follows:—

BRADFORD TOPS.

Our cable message of yesterday's date reports that the Bradford market is quiet, and that quotations are unchanged. On the corresponding date last year only small business was being transacted. Spot quotations were very firm on the strength of Australian wool market cables. The "bears," however, persisted in quoting lower for future delivery. Merino tops were /1½ below spot prices for "futures." The cable gave no quotations for "futures" in crossbreds. Our comparative table of top quotations is as follows:—

AUSTRALIAN WOOL.

WINS AT ARGENTINE EXHIBITION.

Captain A. W. Pearce writes:—We have to-day received a cable from Buenos Aires reporting that the exhibit of merino and other wool we collected for the Centenary Exhibition in that country has taken first prize, and that the wool from Mr. C. P. Davis, Mount Camel, Redcastle, Victoria, comprising four fleeces from stud rams and ewes, has taken the grand prize.

IRISH BLIGHT.

MILLTHORPE.—At the local branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association the following important resolutions were passed in regard to potato restriction. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. Lennox. It was moved by Mr. S. Warburton, seconded by Mr. F. Evans, "That this meeting, owing to the prevalence of Irish blight in Victoria, views with alarm the great risk of blight being introduced into our clean districts by early potatoes coming through from that State, accompanied by a certificate which we deem insufficient safeguard. We also would like to impress upon our Hon. Minister that we consider potatoes from infected States, or from infected areas in our own State, should not be allowed into clean districts, but if deemed fit for human consumption should be sent to Sydney for consumption only, and thus do away with the great risk we at present run." This was carried.

THE SCOTTISH COMMISSIONERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Scottish Agricultural Commissioners left by the steamer Oonah for Burnie on their Tasmanian tour. They are due back in Melbourne on the 27th. Some members of the Commission stated that they are greatly impressed with Victoria and its resources.

VICTORIAN FRUIT.

MELBOURNE.—Reports received from the principal fruitgrowing centres indicate that the crop of stone fruits will be light, and that of apples and pears moderate.

DAIRYING.

DENMAN.—The output of butter for October manufactured by the Denman Co-operative Dairy Company, Limited, amounted to 61,199 lb. of commercial butter, the value of which was £2780. This was manufactured from 17.4 cans of cream, which contained 136,019lb. Comparing the month of September with October, the increase for the latter month was 279 cans, 21,721lb cream, making 9511lb of butter. Grass is now very scarce, and a dry spell seems to have settled on this district. The outlook is not at all promising. Grasshoppers have made an appearance, and are very thick, especially along the low lands adjoining the Hunter River. All crops practically failed, and now that we have the hot weather on us, together with strong winds, what little feed there is will soon disappear. Milking machines are being installed in several of the larger dairies.

MOLONG.—During October the Molong District Dairying Company manufactured 21,339lb of butter. For cream supplied the sum of £957 was distributed amongst the suppliers. The business of the company has during recent weeks shown a considerable increase.

ULMARRA.—The Clarence River Pioneer Dairy Company's local factory manufactured 60 tons butter during October. Cream suppliers were paid tenpence per pound net for first-class, and ninepence net for second-class butter. Milk suppliers were paid /3 7-8 per gallon on an average test of 3.5. The supply is now rapidly increasing, owing to bounteous rains.

WINGHAM.—The Upper Manning and Wingham Butter Company paid 9½d for first-class and 8½d for second for the month of October.

THE CROPS.

MANILLA.—Harvesting is in full swing in the western portion of the district, which was not much affected by the October frost. Many farmers have averaged seven and eight bags to the acre of good sample wheat for the week's harvesting.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS.

DUNGOG.—At the usual monthly meeting of the Underbank branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association it was decided to communicate with the Minister for Lands, through the member for the district, urging that portions of our scrub lands in the Durham and other electorates should be granted to the landless sons of local farmers in these districts free, subject to certain conditions of residence and improvements, such grants to be limited to a living area. It was also resolved to communicate with the Minister for Justice asking that before the creation of any new justices of the peace the aspirants should be nominated by six electors in the police district in which they live, and that such nominations should be confirmed by a majority of the whole of the electors in that police district, and be decided at election time only by referendum. It was approved that an invitation be extended to the general secretary to visit the district and stimulate the farmers generally in the district to form branches.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

DENMAN.—John Smallman, drover, in charge of a mob of 1150 bullocks which arrived from the Hughenden (Q.) district, this week, after travelling on the route for 29 weeks, reports a fairly favourable time. Feed was very patchy, and most of the travelling stock reserves are completely eaten out, owing to the Government having leased them to adjoining landholders.

MILLTHORPE.—The district right throughout looks splendid, the late rains having made a vast improvement in the growing crops. The majority of local farmers view present conditions as a favourable indication of gathering in of a good harvest. Others, however, view it in the direct opposite, laying great stress on the bad effects of the frosts that have occurred at frequent periods of late. A drive through the district dispels all these pessimistic ideals of future results. There is not the slightest doubt that a good harvest will result, as the weather of late has been ideal growing weather, being warm and showery. The only crops likely to suffer from the late frosts is the early potato crop. These, in many instances, have suffered, but not to an extent to greatly injure the crop. Potato-planting is going on to a large extent throughout the district. The ground is in perfect condition for the planting process, it being many years since it was in such excellent condition at planting time. Messrs. Noonan Bros., Garryowen, and also Mr. W. Marriott, The Elms, are greatly extending their potato areas this season, and throughout the district a much larger area will be under potatoes than last year.

STOCK MOVEMENTS.

COONAMBLE.—For the week ended 18th, 30 shed rams, Caiga to Junee, J. H. Fitzpatrick; 1015 mixed sheep, Pine Vale to Emu Park, Joseph M'Dowell; 2500 ewes, Eurmine Plain to Murranan, J. A. Gilligan.

HAY.—The following stock movements are reported:—November 8: 40 rams, Wanganella Estate, Deniliquin, to Euragabah, Booligal, Molesworth and Waite, owners; 4611 wethers and rams, Ulonga to Conoble, A. T. Creswick, owner; 1100 wethers, Mallow to Echuca, E. and W. Naughton, owners; 41 rams, Widgerum, Hay District, to Booligal, G. Barnett and D. K. Ireson, owners; 20 rams, Widgerum to Apsley and the Hiad, Gunbar, B. Doyle and J. Gibson, owners; 20 rams, Llanelly to Pine View, Hay, R. D. Weir, owner; 490 mixed weaners, Emu Scrub to Dioura, Carrathool, John Arnold, owner. November 12: 1570 mixed sheep, Lerap, Hay, to Echuca, E. R. Cameron, owner; 2000 lambs, Dumossa, Whitton, to Llandilo; Mrs. E. Wakley, owner; 500 ewes, Cooinbil to Yarraluma, Fred. SOCIAL.

The gardens in and around Sydney are just now a blaze of colour, and one cannot fail to admire the beautiful blue jacaranda trees which are at the present moment in such perfect flower, while the Cape chestnut, the yellow tecoma, the scarlet hibiscus, and other flowering trees form such masses of brilliant colouring that their wonderful beauty fascinates every lover of the flowers. The roses, too, are to be seen in great profusion, also the sweet pea, Madonna lilies, and carnations, especially in the suburbs along the line, and on North Sydney. Visitors to Melbourne, who have just returned, were lost in admiration of the roses in the southern capital, which they say are in richer colourings than here, and especially did they notice how charmingly they were grown in one corner of the lawn at Flemington, near the grand stand, where there were festoons of the most beautiful blooms. The gladioli in our parks and the water-lilies in the ponds are also a joy to behold, and every shrub seems to be flowering to perfection. The weather has not been too warm this summer, and we have, so far, fortunately escaped any of the scorching winds which we usually have at this time of year.

Sydney has been very quiet during the week, the opening of Parliament on Wednesday being the principal social gathering. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Chelmsford are out of town, having officially visited Newcastle on Thursday and Friday, where they met with a most enthusiastic and hearty reception. To-day Lord and Lady Chelmsford will visit the Newcastle Hospital, and in the afternoon will proceed to Baroona, where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dangar until Monday, when they will return to Sydney.

The Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. Allen Taylor) entertained Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson and Lady Henderson at dinner at the Town Hall on Thursday evening, when the following guests were present:—Sir Samuel and Lady Griffith, the Chief Justice and Mrs. Cullen, Mr. C. E. Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. T. M'Gowen, Lady Simpson, Sir E. Barton and Lady Barton, Captain and Mrs. Rolleston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Garland, Mr. A. W. Meeks, M.L.C., and Mrs. Meeks, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Gordon, Dr. Ward and Miss Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Kelso King, Mr. J. M. and Mrs. Sandy, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lance, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Street, Sir W. and Lady M'Millan, Major and Mrs. J. R. Carey, Mr. and Mrs. A. Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dixson, Captain Haworth Booth, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holman, Professor David, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hordern, Mr. A. Pitt, Miss Harris, Mrs. Thompson, Sir J. and Lady Graham, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Sly, Mr. T. R. Johnson, Captain Creswell, Lieutenant Slee, Mr. H. W. E. Manisty, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Layton, Mr. R. M. Pitt, Staff Paymaster Treacy, Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Borchard. The dinner was served on small round tables, which were artistically decorated with sweet pea and carnations, the prevailing colours being of varying shades of pink, and the tall palms placed about the room added a picturesque effect to the whole.

Parliament was formally opened by his Excellency the Governor last Wednesday morning, and the Legislative Council-chamber was crowded to its utmost capacity with visitors, there being hardly standing room. The balcony and verandah at Parliament House were also crowded with a gaily-dressed throng of spectators. His Excellency the Governor, who was in full uniform, was attended by Captain Verney and Captain Dumaresq. Amongst the large number of ladies present were Lady Chelmsford, accompanied by Mrs. Verney, Mrs. M'Gowen and the Misses M'Gowen, Miss Suttor, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Holman, Mrs. Trefle, Mrs. Flowers, Mrs. Nielsen, Mrs. Edden, Miss Ketchel, Miss Baker, Mrs. M'Court, Mrs. Kater, Mrs. T. Hughes, Mrs. De Burgh, Mrs. J. Ashton, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. and Miss Johnson, Mrs. Leslie Wade, Mrs. Robison, Mrs. Delohery, Mrs. Irving Keys, Miss Beatrice Day, and Mrs. King. At the conclusion of the ceremony the President of the Legislative Council, Sir Francis Suttor, entertained Lady Chelmsford, the Archbishop and Mrs. Wright, and a few other friends at morning tea, served in his rooms. In the unavoidable absence through illness of Lady Suttor, Miss Suttor acted as hostess. The tables were decorated with a most beautiful display of petunias and gorgeously coloured gladioli, the admiration of all who saw them, the flowers being grown by Mr. Lawrence, one of the messengers of the House.

"To meet Lady Henderson," Mrs. Pring invited a number of friends to afternoon tea at the Australia Hotel last Tuesday. Tea was served in the winter garden, and music added to the enjoyment of the guests, amongst whom were Lady Henderson, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Adrian Knox, Mrs. Alexander Gordon, Mrs. Layton, Mrs. Mansfield, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Baring Dick, Miss Marston, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Hotham, and Miss Pring. Apologies were received from Lady Poore, Lady Renwick, Mrs. Rolleston, and Mrs. Pascoe, who were unavoidably prevented from being present.

Last Saturday afternoon the grounds of Greenoaks, Darling Point, presented an animated scene, a display being given by the members of the Girls' Aid League. Lady Chelmsford was present, accompanied by Mrs. Verney and Miss MacGregor and Captain Dumaresq. The vice-regal party was received by the president, Mrs. Hugh Dixson, Mrs. Wilfred Docker (treasurer), Mrs. W. H. Ayres (secretary), and other members of the British Empire League. Lady Chelmsford presented the prizes to the successful competitors, and gave a short address to the girls. Afternoon tea was served on the lawn, and the band of the Royal Australian Artillery contributed an excellent selection of music, which added greatly to the pleasure of those present. The visitors included the Primate and Mrs. Wright, Lady MacMillan, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Meeks, Mrs. Russell French, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cohen, Dr. and Mrs. J. Lane Mullins, Mrs. and Miss Flower, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Newmarch, Miss Dixson, Mrs. and Miss MacCallum, Mrs. Earp, Mrs. Murray Will, Mrs. and Miss Garran, Mrs. Kater, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Winchcombe, Mrs. Bavin, Miss Roberts, Mrs. A. Scott, Mrs. Bowker, Miss Valentine, Mrs. R. R. Terrey, Mrs. Stiles, Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. H. C. L. Anderson, Mrs. Gordon Marr, and Mrs. and Miss Monk.

The annual exhibition of the Society of Artists at the Queen Victoria Markets-buildings was formally opened by the Minister of Education, Mr. Beeby, on Wednesday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of visitors. Amongst those present were Mr. Justice and Mrs. Street, Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen, Judge and Mrs. Fitzhardinge, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hughes, Mrs. James Ashton, Mr. and Mrs. Lane Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Osborne, Dr. and Mrs. Murray Will, Mr. Mrs. and Miss Souter, Mr. and Mrs. T. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Russell Jones, Mrs. Langer Owen, Mrs. and Miss Bowker, Judge and Mrs. Hamilton, and many others, a continual stream of visitors coming and going all the afternoon.

During the past few weeks many well-known members of the social world have left for England. Some to take part in the winter sports on the Continent, and others to secure accommodation before the expected influx of visitors to London for the King's Coronation, and the consequent high increase in prices. Dr. and Mrs. W. Chisholm are amongst those leaving on Saturday next, November 26, and are taking with them their daughter and their sons. Those Australians who have been in England during the past year are beginning to return to this land of sunshine, and Miss Ethel Stephens is once more in Sydney, having arrived last week, after a most enjoyable trip. Mrs. Lassetter returned to her home at Redleaf, Double Bay, on Wednesday by the Mongolia, after a short visit to her daughters in England and Scotland.

The annual school entertainment in aid of the New South Wales Home for Incurables was held at Shirley, Edgecliff-road, last Wednesday and Thursday evenings. A play, entitled "The Queen's Jest," of the time of Marie Antoinette, was presented, and scenes dramatised from Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop." Musical items were rendered between the acts. The hall was filled on both nights with an appreciative audience, composed of friends of the principals and pupils.

A large number of invitations have been issued by the president and board of management to a "linen tea" and floral fete to be held at the Children's Hospital, Camperdown, next Wednesday afternoon, November 23. Special arrangements will be made so that visitors may view the hospital, a band will provide music, and refreshments will be served on the lawn. As there is a pressing need for a supply of linen for the institution, it is hoped the numerous patrons will generously bring or send contributions. Parcels with card attached, also flowers and pot plants, may be forwarded to the hospital addressed to the secretary, Mr. Clarence R. Moss. During the afternoon a pleasing ceremony will take place, for it has been decided to present the president with a cheque (being the proceeds of the concert recently given at the Town Hall in aid of the hospital, and organised by Mrs. Alexander Gordon and Mrs. Ewan Frazer, assisted by a large and influential committee of ladies). The hon. secretaries and hon. treasurers would therefore be glad to receive any money outstanding for tickets sold before that date, so that they may hand in the full amount.

A drawing-room concert was held at the residence of Mrs. W. T. Farrell, Swan Isle, Darley-road, Randwick, last Tuesday evening, the entertainment being promoted by the members of the North Randwick School of Arts. Mrs. Farrell placed her large drawing-room at the disposal of the committee, and the attendance was large. Refreshments were provided by Mrs. and the Misses Farrell, and the concert programme, which was under the direction of Mr. Nicholas J. Gehde, consisted of songs by Miss Elsie B. Peerless, Miss Irene M'Pherson, Mr. Roy Allen, and Masters V. Brown and J. Henley; recitations by Miss Macnicol; violin solos by Mr. Warwick Mackenzie, and humorous Scotch songs by Mr. J. M'Kay. At the conclusion of the concert Mr. J. G. Carter, president of the North Randwick School of Arts, tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. and the Misses Farrell. The net proceeds of the concert will amount to about £15.

At Endellion, Randwick, last Tuesday afternoon, the Misses Gladys and Myra de Lissa gave a "linen tea" to Miss May Wentworth Perry, in honour of her approaching marriage to Mr. V. de Miklouho-Maclay.

At the University last week Miss Jessie Lillingston, who will be leaving for England upon graduation at the end of the year, was presented with a handsome suit-case by the women students in recognition of her success in forming "The Sydney University Women's Sports Association."

A pleasant gathering took place amongst the women medical students at the University on Friday week, when a student afternoon tea was held to celebrate the opening of the new common room for women in the Medical School. For the past few months the limited space of the old common room has been severely taxed by the large influx of massage students. With the addition of the new wing to the Medical School, room has been found for two new common rooms for women—one for the medical, and one for massage students.

A wedding took place at Stanwell House, Stanwell Park, on Wednesday, October 26, when Annie Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Fenton, Waterfall, was married to Edward Samuel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hopkins, Stanwell Park. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. C. Roberts, in the drawing-room, which was artistically decorated by friends, a wedding bell being suspended beneath an arch bearing the initials of the bride and bridegroom. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Charles Hume, wore a handsome dress of Japanese silk, and the embroidered veil was arranged over a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet, the gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Ethel Hopkins, sister of the bridegroom, in white embroidered lawn; and the Misses Ruby Evans and Bertha Kempton, in white silk. They all carried shower bouquets. Mr. P. G. Tonkins was best man. Subsequently a reception was held, and the guests, numbering about 100, were entertained at breakfast. The wedding presents, which were numerous and handsome, were on view. Later Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins left for their honeymoon to Bathurst.

St. Andrew's Church of England, Summer Hill, was the scene of a wedding on Wednesday, October 19, when Miss Hilda May Ross, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Ross, of Bogan-street, Summer Hill, was married to Mr. Frederick Toole, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard West Toole, of Muttons Falls, Tarana. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Vaughan, rector. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore soft white silk, relieved with ivory silk fillet insertion and fringe, and a trail of orange blossoms, white true lovers' knots trimmed the corsage and skirt. A coronet of orange blossoms and veil completed her toilette. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and heath, and wore a turquoise and pearl wreath brooch, gifts of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were the Misses Lyna and Nita Ross (sisters of the bride) and Miss Elsie Toole (cousin of the bridegroom), their dresses being of soft white silk, and white hats trimmed with pink roses. They carried shower bouquets of pink carnations and sweet peas, and wore amethyst and pearl brooches and gold enamel bangle respectively, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. C. H. Toole acted as best man, and Messrs. P. B. and R. Ross were groomsmen. As the bride proceeded down the aisle she was presented with a floral horseshoe as a token of good luck by her little niece, Miss Mollie Ross. Subsequently a reception was held at Balnagowan, Bogan-street, Summer Hill, the residence of the bride's parents, where the newly-married couple received the congratulations of their friends. Refreshments were afterwards served in a marquee on the lawn, which was decorated with palms and ferns.

The marriage of Mr. Harold Hamilton Pope (of Nauru, Marshall Islands), second son of Major Robert Hamilton Pope, of Manly, with Miss Caroline Barrington-Baker, only daughter of Francis Barrington-Baker, of Croydon, took place at St. John's Church, Ashfield, on October 22, the Rev. G. North Ash officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome dress of ivory-white satin, trimmed with point lace, the train and bodice being embroidered with pearls. Her embroidered tulle veil was arranged over a coronet of orange blossom, and she carried a bouquet of white stock and watsonia, which, with her diamond and pearl ring, were gifts of the bridegroom. She was attended by three bridesmaids—Miss Hazel Loveridge, Miss Muriel Pope (sister of the bridegroom), and Miss Aileen Jackson, who wore dresses of white Swiss muslin and Cluny lace, with hats of biscuit-coloured straw, trimmed with pale blue roses. Their bouquets of pale pink roses, and pearl brooches and pendants respectively, were gifts from the bridegroom. Mr. R. E. Blenchard was best man, and Mr. Reginald Tobin and Mr. Walter Pope the groomsmen. During the signing of the register Mr. A. R. Jamieson sang "Because." After the ceremony a reception was held by Mr. and Mrs. Barrington-Baker at Ealing, Ashfield (the residence of Mrs. G. E. Jackson), where the bride and bridegroom received the congratulations of their many friends prior to their departure for the Mountains.

At the Hunter-Baillie Memorial Church, Annandale, on Wednesday, 26th October, a marriage was celebrated by the Rev. James S. Scott, between Alma Australia, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sullivan, of Bowraville, Nambucca River, and Harold Cooper Moseley, of Lewisham. The bride, who was given away—in the unavoidable absence of her father—by Mr. W. Barry, an old friend of the family, wore white chiffon taffeta silk, handsomely soutached with silk braid and trimmed with malines lace, and a white picture hat. She carried a "Victorian posy" of white carnations, which, with a pair of ruby and pearl earrings, were gifts from the bridegroom. The bridesmaid—Miss Dorothy May—was in a white lingerie dress, and wore a white picture hat, simply trimmed with cornflowers. She carried a posy of pale pink roses and carnations, which, with a gold bangle, were gifts from the bridegroom. Mr. Harold Price acted as best man. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Coutts, Balgove, Stanmore, where the wedding breakfast was served.

She carried a bouquet of choice white flowers, which with a diamond and sapphire ring and a gold bracelet studded with sapphires, was the gift of the bridegroom. Her only other ornament was a pearl and ruby brooch, the gift of her mother. The attendant bridesmaids were the Misses Edith and Grace Breeze (sisters), Miss Minnie Hewish (sister of the bridegroom), and Miss Vera Watts (cousin of the bride). Mr. William Hewish was best man, and Mr. Arthur Clingham groomsman. A reception was afterwards held at St. George's Hall by the parents of the bride, where the newly-married couple received the congratulations of their friends and the wedding breakfast was served.

A quiet ceremony was solemnised at St. Philip's, Church Hill, Sydney, by the Rev. P. de Laure Musgrove, rector of Wickham, assisted by the Rev. Canon Bellingham, M.A., rector of St. Philip's, on Tuesday, the 8th inst., when Miss Lottie Lukey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Lukey, of Glanworth, Ashfield, and granddaughter of the late B. J. Jeffrey, of the Manuscript Department, British Museum, was married to the Rev. W. A. M'Donald Reay, rector of Coppernook, son of Mrs. and the late Mr. D. M'Donald Campbell, of Alstonville, Richmond River, nephew of the late Major M'Donald, and grand-nephew of Lord Reay, Baron MacKay. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome travelling dress of grey shantung silk, and a grey chiffon toque embroidered with silver and trimmed with a long white feather, her pearl and peridot pendant being the gift of the bridegroom. Afternoon-tea was served at Petty's, and later the happy couple left for the South Coast.

COAL-LUMPERS AGAIN.

NIGHTWORK DISCONTINUED.

Coal-lumpers as individuals, apart from their collective capacity as unionists, are showing a disinclination to continue night-work coaling vessels at the existing rates of wages. On Tuesday night there was something approaching a general stoppage of coaling, but it was thought that the signing of an agreement for three years with the stevedores would bring the trouble to an end. Last night, however, very few men turned to after 6 o'clock, and some of them stated that there would be very little work done during the night time until the commencement of the new agreement, which will be the 28th instant. How far this threat will be carried out the union officials do not profess to know. The pay for night-work now is 1s 7½d per hour. Under the new agreement it will be 1s 9d per hour. Some men who refuse nightwork hold to the opinion that the agreement should not have been made under 2s per hour. The agreement has, however, been signed, and is to extend over three years. The executive of the union is anxious that work should proceed as amicably as possible.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

SUICIDE OR ACCIDENT?

TWO WOMEN VICTIMS.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

A shocking tragedy occurred to-day, about half a mile from Mitcham, on the southern railway line. The 4.42 train from Clapham had just left for the city, and was approaching the level crossing when two women were noticed on the roadway close to the line. According to the statement of an eye-witness, directly the engine reached the middle of the road one of them jumped in front of it, and the other followed. The whole incident occupied a second or two. A doubt has not yet been cleared as to whether the death of either of the women was accidental or premeditated. The train was travelling slowly at the time, and was pulled up within its own length. It is visible from the crossing for at least a quarter of a mile. The unfortunate women were killed instantaneously, and the body of one was found in the cattle-guard, dreadfully mangled, while the other was lying in the middle of the roadway, beneath the last carriage. What was left of the bodies was placed in the train, fragments being collected and placed in a sack. The ages of the women, who are believed to be strangers to the locality, and have not yet been identified, were evidently about 55 and 20 years.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

THE FREMANTLE STATION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Federal Cabinet has decided to reject the sites nominated by the Australasian Wireless, Ltd., for installations near Fremantle. THE PERICLES WRECK.

SALVAGE BUTTER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

There was an echo from the wreck of the Pericles off Cape Leeuwin in a case inquired into by the Collector of Customs, at Whitton yesterday. Among the salvaged cargo were 101 cases of butter, consigned to the London market. This was brought to Melbourne, and reworked by the company that purchased it. On analysis by the Federal Analyst the butter was adjudged to be below the required standard. A representative of the exporting company stated that the test made by the company's private analyst did not agree with the results of the Federal officer, and pointed to the fact that the butter before despatch by the Pericles had been passed by the Federal Analyst, as further proof that the consignment was in order. According to the Federal Analyst's second test, the amount of butter-fat was stated to be 91.93 per cent. The standard is 82 per cent. The case will be referred to the Minister for his decision.

BARRIER WAGES AGREEMENT.

RESULT OF CONFERENCE.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The conference between the Mining Managers' Association and the A.M.A. over the wages agreement was concluded last night. The managers stated that the requests of the men would be considered, and referred to the directors. When a reply was received another meeting would be called, and the men's delegates informed of the result.

The Masons and Bricklayers' Union and Trades Labourers' Union are submitting claims to the mining managers, and will ask for a conference.

The terms of the claims so far submitted are being preserved a close secret, but the A.M.A., it is understood, is asking for increased wages and shorter hours, and the Engineers' Society, it is reported, is asking for 12/6 per shift for certain men. The general feeling appears more hopeful and buoyant.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

TEMORA, Friday.

Augustus Death, Meagher and Co.'s cellarman, while talking with two shunters at the railway to-day, was killed. He was leaning against the buffers of a truck, when a long train, shunting, moved one truck, and it bumped against the one deceased was standing against, pinning him between the buffers. He was dragged out immediately, but died 20 minutes later. Deceased was 26 years old, and was a well-known cricketer.

HARVESTING ACCIDENT.

CAUGHT BY REAPING KNIVES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Thomas Adkin, a farmer of Waaia, met with a terrible accident to-day. Adkin was assisting his father-in-law, Mr. H. Caldwell, to cut hay, and Charles Caldwell was driving the reaper and binder, when something went wrong with the canvases. Caldwell got off the machine to assist Adkin to put them right, leaving the reins in such a way that he believed he could immediately grab them if the horses started. Adkin had just commenced to rectify the trouble when the horses bolted, the windboard knocking Caldwell over and preventing him stopping them. The knives caught Adkin, and inflicted awful injuries on his legs. Both legs had to be amputated below the knees.

THE CHURCHES.

The Archbishop presided at the opening of the new school hall at St. Saviour's parish, Redfern, last evening. The hall, which is a gift from an anonymous sympathiser, is a very fine building, finished off with the latest improvements. The old school hall had fallen into a dilapidated condition, and the congregation applied for permission to sell portion of the church lands in order to provide funds for a new structure. The Archbishop and synod, however, opposed the suggested disposal of lands, and as the church carried a heavy debt of over £2000, there seemed to be little hope of anything being done to relieve the position until the generous offer was made by a churchman. The congregation was congratulated by the Archbishop last evening upon having received such a splendid gift.

The former site of this church was resumed by the City Council, necessitating its being demolished and re-erected on a new site. The Rev. J. Young Wai is the minister.

Plans have been adopted for the erection of a new Presbyterian church at Belmore, where a good site has been secured. This district forms part of the congregation under the Rev. Charles Bell, of Campsie, and it is proposed to erect a new church at this place also, where a good central site has already been secured.

In connection with the Presbyterian Home Mission settlement at Woolloomooloo active steps are at present being taken for increasing the value of the work in the district, and the committees representing the W.M.A. and the home mission committee of the Church are vigorously pursuing a system for the securing of the necessary finances for the permanent maintenance.

The president also joined in the congratulations, and presented the robes, with which Mr. Bromilow was duly arrayed.

It was resolved that the petition be signed by the chairman on behalf of the meeting, and sent on to be presented to Parliament asking for the insertion of an exemption clause for children whose parents have conscientious objections to military training.

THE CRISIS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Not since the time of the first Reform Bill has any issue been put before the people of Great Britain and Ireland so clearly as that which they will be asked to decide at the coming general election. Sir Robert Peel was returned to power in order to defend the corn laws, and to reform the administration. Mr. Gladstone appealed to the country for authority to disestablish and disendow the Irish Church, and to give Ireland Home Rule. But on all these occasions there were many subsidiary topics by which the judgment of the electors might be diverted. This year, even although Mr. Asquith's public declaration has yet to be made, we may assume that there will be one question only for them to consider. The form of this question was suggested by Mr. Asquith in his speech at the Albert Hall prior to the last elections and it was definitely framed by him when introducing the resolutions for the Parliament Bill into the House of Commons. By these resolutions, and by the subsequent debate, the Liberals definitely refuse to make the constitution of the House of Lords the first item of their policy. They committed themselves instead to a rearrangement of the relations of the two Houses of Parliament; in other words, to the legal subordination of the Lords to the Commons, not in finance only, but in all things. As was natural, the Conservative leaders have foreseen and done their best to frustrate this line of tactics. The plan of reform submitted by Lord Lansdowne on Wednesday afternoon was only the last series. It had been preceded by the report of Lord Newton's committee and by the scheme which Lord Rosebery has got discussed again. The attitude of the Government to these, and to any similar schemes, was stated by Lord Crewe, and the reasons were given by him. In the future it may, and probably will, be necessary to discuss plans of reconstruction. Even in a subordinate body it will be impossible to recognise the hereditary principle, and the domination of a single interest. But for the present it is essential to the existence of the Liberal party and of their allies to establish the ultimate supremacy of the House of Commons over whatever other branch of the Legislature there may be in the State.

It is claimed that this supremacy will be secured by the passage of the Parliament Bill as it was settled after an exhaustive debate. The clauses of the bill were set out in our issue of yesterday. Their effect was stated by Mr. Asquith in his introductory speech. They will not make the House of Commons at any time omnipotent, nor will they make the Constitution a patchwork of black and white, as Mr. Balfour described it, unicameral for two years and bicameral for another two. If a bill introduced in the first sessions of a new Parliament is objectionable to the peers they will have the power of postponing it for two years, a sufficiently long time to ensure its rejection, if it is really unpopular. If a bill is introduced in the last sessions the Peers may cause it to be carried over a general election, when, if reaffirmed by the new House of Commons, it will thereby become law. Obviously the provisions of the bill do not go as far as some of the Government supporters would have liked. Their actual effect is to put the House of Lords in the position of a revising chamber, which most of the theorists of the last century, and many of its own leaders, assigned to it. Many Liberals and most Labour members would have preferred to see a declaration that the will of the people, once clearly ascertained, should certainly prevail. All the Government supporters must see that even when the bill is passed they will still be at a great disadvantage as compared with their opponents. For many years it has been the rule that the Lords will either revise or reject all Liberal legislation, but will let the Acts of a Conservative Government pass without comment. Still, the bill is one on which the whole of the present majority can agree. That section among them, which, in a continental Assembly, would be called the right, must admit that the State has a protection alike against popular passion and against a party which has ceased to be in touch with the constituencies. The left, the Labour party and the Irish, will content themselves with the prospect that their most cherished ambitions are no longer hopeless, if only they can obtain the consent of a majority of the people.

How great a practical change will have been achieved if this new reform bill is passed can easily be ascertained by a survey of the legislation proposed since 1906. With two exceptions, none of the measures of social amelioration, which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman put before the country, has been carried into law. The Lords could not reject the Old-age Pensions Bill in face of the previous declarations of their leaders, and of the whole Unionist party in the Commons. They could not reject the Budget when it came before them a second time, because their excuse for their vote on the first occasion was that it contained novel principles which had never received the popular assent. In every other case of the first importance they considered neither the size of the majority in the Commons nor the prominence given to the proposed law at the previous general election. Their action made the prospects of the Liberals hopeless, and the existence of the Government futile. It will probably be now considered that Mr. Asquith was mistaken when he did not dissolve after the defeat of the Licensing Bill. But, like his immediate predecessors, Mr. Asquith was placed in a grave dilemma. He had to carry on in the hope of better treatment, or go to the country knowing the reluctance of the British people to deal with abstract topics, and without having attempted to carry a number of proposals to which his party was committed. On the present occasion he is in no such difficulty. Last February the country gave him a majority of 120, united only on two topics—the Budget and the abolition of the veto. The Budget has been passed, the veto remains; and since the King apparently will not exercise his prerogative, as his Prime Minister has asked him to do, and since there is no probability of the Parliament Bill becoming law without his intervention, there is no course open to Mr. Asquith but to dissolve or resign. Until the franchise was settled, and so long as parties were divided, mainly by tradition or on questions of foreign policy, it was easier to tolerate the anomaly of a co-ordinate Upper House, than to destroy it. But since 1885 the great "condition of the people question" has come to dominate every other. Englishmen still realise that their first duty is to defend their country, but have learned to acknowledge that it is as important to make it sound within as to protect it from invasion. It is the revelation of the incapacity of the peers to deal with social questions affecting property, or to cope with masses of men newly grown into strength, that has made the ultimate triumph of the Liberals certain, even though it may be postponed beyond the life of the next Parliament.

AUSTRALIA AND CHINA.

The remarks made this week by the retiring Consul-General for China, Mr. Liang Lan Hsun, on the relationships of his country and Australia deserve notice. They embodied the sort of protest we might have expected from such a quarter against the rigorous and needlessly offensive interpretation which our Federal administrators in the past have placed upon the Alien Restriction Act. The commercial prophets among ourselves are not slow in pointing to the enormous trading possibilities that are rapidly opening up to enterprise in China. But, trade, by its very nature, involves a certain reciprocity, and we cannot say that Mr. Liang is entirely unjust when he charges us with harbouring the desire to take all and give nothing. To a far greater extent than is the case with any other nation, the exterior commerce of China is affected by personal considerations, and if past experience is to be taken as a guide it is very improbable that the great Chinese merchant houses will ever be very enthusiastic distributers of the goods of a country against whose people a sense of grievance exists. There is no reason to believe that official China is at all resentful of our desire to keep Australia "white," and the stoppage of yellow immigration in the ordinary sense carries with it no affront. But when we come to Chinese travellers, students, merchants, or officials, our procedure is rightly termed insulting. The same may be said in respect of the Japanese, or, indeed, the people of the East generally. To guard this country from inundation by coolies is one thing; but to inflict personal indignities upon educated and responsible Orientals who may wish to form business or intellectual associations with this country is quite another. Not only does such a policy tend to stunt the trade from which Australia, because of her contiguity, expects to derive such advantage in the future, but it surely contributes to the building up of a sentiment of ill-will that may in time to come find expression in ways embarrassing, if not disastrous, to Australia.

It should be the aim of the Federal Government to administer the exclusion Act in such a way that, while it gives us the essential immunity desired, places no obstacle to the free entry and departure of those classes of Chinese and other people of the East whose visits here would be to the interest of this country as of their own. Notwithstanding the exclusionist feelings of the Pacific States, America has found it desirable to offer every encouragement to Chinese and Japanese students and commercial representatives to visit the United States, and in the case of the latter to establish themselves there. And if America, with only a commercial interest to serve, finds it politic to do this, how much more so should it be in the case of Australia, which has (taking the probable developments of the future into account) a relatively larger commercial interest at stake, and, in addition, a national interest in the promotion of genuinely friendly relations. It is, however, only a Labour Government that can effectually correct the over-emphasis which the militant elements of our democracy have been assiduously taught to lay upon the very letter of our exclusionist law. For a Liberal Government to do so would be interpreted as a cunning move to undermine the Restriction Act. A Labour Government's action, however, should not provoke unworthy suspicion as to motives, and as to the policy of it the duty is laid upon the members of the Government to educate their followers up to a reasonable appreciation of the necessities of the larger view.

In the meantime we have that close student of the East, the "Times'" correspondent at Peking, reminding the Empire of the great strides forward and upward which China is making. What we have become accustomed to speak of as the "awakening" of China has its source in the discovery by the Chinese themselves that there are certain features of Western civilisation which they must engraft upon their own if they would preserve their national integrity, and certain others which they may adopt to their material advantage. Hence the coming into existence of an army and navy equipped and trained according to the best European models—a militant preparation of enormous possibilities, although frankly regarded by the best Chinese minds as a concession to barbaric necessity. Hence also the railways and factories, and the energetic exploitation of the resources of Western science and technology. Hence, furthermore, the recognition for the need for change in the organisation of government. The Constitution promised in the Imperial edicts of 1906, if it comes at all, is much more likely to be a purely Chinese conception, than a slavish copy of any Western model. A people essentially democratic in sentiment, most of their institutions rest upon a democratic foundation, and, unlike most other democratically-minded nationalities, the Chinese are prejudiced by centuries of heredity in favour of government, if not always by the wise, at least by the intellectually qualified. It is this consideration which invests with particular interest that aspect of Chinese reform, less noticed perhaps by the outside world than some others, but immensely more important because fundamental and certain of an early harvest. That is education. The opening of primary schools for both boys and girls, and of technical schools, has been already entered upon, and although the progress attained in different parts of the Empire is dependent largely upon the measure of enlightenment of the official on the spot, the remarkable thing, as attested by informed authorities, is the enthusiasm for a modern education which animates many sections of the people. The University of Peking signalises the beginning of the higher education, involving the assimilation of Western knowledge on Chinese lines. Another, and from the point of view of British interests, more important is the establishment of a Chinese university at Hongkong, on behalf of which Sir F. D. Lugard is at present issuing an empire appeal. Here the object sought is the training of as many as possible of the men who will be the future officials, merchants, and professional men of China, through the medium of the English language, and their endowment with an understanding of the British point of view, while still not mentally divorcing them from those phases of life and culture which are peculiarly Chinese. Japan, Germany, and the United States already have found that the surest gateway to Chinese regard is the mind of the Chinese student—a fact which should not only commend Sir F. D. Lugard's scheme to Imperial sympathies, but give point to Mr. Liang's suggestion, that Chinese students should be admitted to Australian universities.

To-day's "Herald."—Sir Henry Lucy (page 5) sketches the nonchalant attitude of Mr. Balfour towards the young bloods of his party who early last month were repeating, as they have long been repeating, that "Arthur won't do." They are not saying that just now, to judge by the cablegrams. The Marquis de Soveral falls by the Portuguese Revolution from a singular assured position in English society which he held by reason of the late King's friendship. The old world process of inducting an English rector is also described. The writer of a "Woman's Letter" (also on page 5) gathers up a deal of information on the fashions of the late autumn. Our special commissioner in the eighth of his letters "Via America" (page 5) devotes particular attention to the immense network of wireless around the Pacific coast of America. They do not seem to muddle wireless over there to any extent. Another sketch of special interest just now is a selection from Mr. Franklin Matthews' new volume on the White Fleet, and how they discovered Australia (page 7). Our contributor in his notes "In the Garden" (also page 7) deals comprehensively with current work in the borders and the orchard.

Steel Rail Manufacture.—Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins, the Lithgow ironmasters, had an interview with the Premier yesterday. Mr. M'Gowen discussed with them the capabilities of their works in respect to the manufacture of rails. The firm, in a contract for Government supplies, undertook to provide steel rails whenever possible, and some months ago the Minister for Works was informed that at a certain date the Lithgow establishment would be turning them out. The discussion yesterday was as to what the firm really are prepared to do, and full particulars are to be supplied to the Premier shortly.

Correction and Apology.—In the "Herald" of 11th instant, under the heading "Alleged Incendiarism," it was stated that at the Coroner's inquest on a fire at Lawson, a verdict was returned that Mrs. Mabel Pounds wilfully and feloniously set the premises on fire. This was incorrect, the Coroner's finding being as follows:—"I find that the premises called 'The Brackens,' situated at Lawson, in the State of New South Wales, were, on August 31, totally destroyed by fire. I further find that the premises aforesaid were on the same day wilfully and feloniously set on fire, but by whom the evidence does not enable me to say." We sincerely regret the error, and the annoyance it has caused to Mrs. Pounds.

A practical demonstration in the working of the Muir-Vincent Smoke Consumer and Fuel Economiser Company's apparatus for the consumption of smoke and economising of fuel, was recently given at the Phoenix Iron Foundry, Pyrmont, in the presence of a large and representative gathering of engineers and others.

Horderns' in Pitt-street have forwarded us a copy of their Christmas catalogue.

An interesting display by Platers, Limited, of their art metal work, illustrating the strides that are being made by Australian manufacturers is to be seen in the window of the Government Tourist Bureau, Martin-place.

We are informed that the announcement in a marriage notice in the "Herald" of 12th instant, referring to the "late Norman Lecesne Browne," was incorrect, Mr. Browne being alive and well.

We have received a copy of "Australia To-day"—the annual publication of the United Commercial Travellers' Association of Australasia.

PERSONAL.

Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson, accompanied by Lady Henderson and some of the members of his staff, visited the Sydney Cricket Ground yesterday afternoon to see the match between New South Wales and South Africa. Last night Commander F. R. C. Brownlow (Naval Commandant, N.S.W.) and the officers of the N.S.W. division of the Commonwealth Naval Forces, entertained Admiral Henderson and staff at their quarters at dinner. The guests also included Captain W. R. Creswell (Naval Director), Captain Francis F. Haworth-Booth, R.N., Lieutenant J. A. Slee, R.N., Staff-paymasters H. W. E. Manisty and A. M. Treacy. This afternoon Admiral Henderson will inspect the naval militia at Rushcutter Bay Park. The Admiral will leave for Wollongong, Port Kembla, and Jervis Bay on Tuesday morning, returning to Sydney on Thursday. Twofold Bay will then be visited, and after that Admiral Henderson will go to Melbourne.

In the Full Court yesterday the following were admitted to practice as solicitors:—John Pierce M'Carthy, Norman Clyde Oakes, William Murray, Norman Baylis Mackenzie, Percy Davy Wynne, Alexander John Grant, Hubert Stanley Palmer, Stephen H. [illegible], and Abdy Fellowes Edwards. Conditional admission was granted to Joseph Frederick Millington (English solicitor) and Alexander Crothers (Victorian solicitor); and the conditional admission of Henry Warrington Hood (Victorian solicitor) and Edgar Harold Newman (South Australian solicitor) was confirmed.

The Minister for External Affairs, Mr. Batchelor, has received from Commodore Voss, of the Netherlands squadron, a message of farewell and thanks on the eve of the departure of the vessels from Australia. Mr. Batchelor has sent a number of souvenir books for distribution on board the warships, and the Commodore states that the gift has been highly appreciated.

Mr. Edwyn Mitford Lilley, of Brisbane, has been appointed a K.C.B. He was called to the Bar on April 4, 1882.

The conversazione to Mr. Wade will take place in the Town Hall on November 28. Lists of subscriptions to the souvenir to Mr. Wade will close on Friday, November 25. Tickets issued for the 21st will be available on the 28th.

At the request of the New South Wales Government the appointment of Mr. G. A. M'Kay as Land Tax Commissioner will not be gazetted until his successor has been appointed on the New South Wales Public Service Board. Mr. M'Kay will, however, go to Melbourne to organise the Land Tax Office.

Senator J. C. Neild, who, in company with Major Lorcke, was visiting Maitland on Wednesday, has been admitted to a private hospital suffering from a recurrence of an old complaint. The attack, however, is not of a serious nature.

Dr. L. O. S. Poidevin arrived by the German mail steamer Bremen yesterday. Dr. Poidevin expressed the view that had the Davis Cup negotiations not failed England would have had more than an equal chance of winning the cup from Australia, owing to the absence of Wilding and Brookes not [illegible].

Formal approval to the six months' leave of absence granted to the Chief Justice of Queensland, Sir Pope Cooper, was given by the Governor-in-Council yesterday.

Mr. William Christie, who is well known in Sydney as the proprietor of several umbrella establishments, died suddenly yesterday afternoon. Mr. Christie was walking in Victoria-street, Randwick, near his home, when he was noticed to stagger and fall. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, and died before assistance could be obtained. Deceased was 39 years of age.

FIRE INSURANCE.

THE COMMISSION'S REPORT.

COMMENDED BY COMPANY MANAGERS.

The report of the Federal Fire Insurance Commission, details of which were published in yesterday's "Herald," has been favourably received by the fire insurance companies. "In fact," said one manager yesterday, "the report appears to be a very fair one—fairer than some of us expected it to be."

At the same time, it was doubted whether all the recommendations would be adopted. For instance, it is proposed that the contribution of fire insurance companies towards the maintenance of fire brigades should be discontinued, and if this is done the insurance companies will have won a battle they have been fighting for years. "We have always held," said the manager of one of the biggest fire insurance companies, "that we should not be called upon to support the upkeep of fire brigades. We are here to pay our losses, and calculate a premium which we consider fair to cover a risk, and we are prepared to stand by that.

"Generally speaking, I think the report is a very excellent one. I see nothing to object to in the proposal that every company doing business in the Commonwealth shall deposit approved securities with the Federal Government to the value of £20,000. The conclusion of the Commission that it is undesirable that the business of fire insurance should be undertaken as a State or municipal function is, of course, with our entire approval. There was some idea of establishing a municipal insurance system here. Then there is the question of protecting Government and municipal property liable to damage by fire. The Commission recommends that such property should be protected by means of insurances, and this is another thing we have been a long time fighting for."

CHARGED WITH FALSEHOOD.

WITHDRAWAL NOT ACCEPTED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

There was a dramatic episode during the proceedings of the Baptist Union of Victoria to-day. The Rev. E. L. Watson moved the suspension of the standing orders to make a personal explanation. He said that in the heat of discussion yesterday on the question of the work and pay of home missionaries he had declared that a falsehood had been told. He now wished to withdraw. The Rev. F. J. Wilkin, secretary of the Home Missions Committee, said that although Mr. Watson had withdrawn what he had said, he could not consent to the matter resting at that. It was a cruel statement to make, and his feelings had been deeply hurt. He had never told any man a lie, yet he had been charged with a falsehood, and his character had been blackened. The Rev. Mr. Watson's withdrawal was not sufficient, and he demanded the appointment of a committee of inquiry into the allegations which had been made and seriously affected the home missions. A committee of nine were appointed to investigate the charges made, and to report to the next meeting of the Baptist Union. The Rev. E. L. Watson said he welcomed the appointment of the committee.

FEMALE SHIRTMAKERS.

INTRODUCTION FROM ABROAD.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for External Affairs has received from a Melbourne firm applications for permission to introduce under contract five female operatives from the United Kingdom to engage in shirtmaking at piecework rates which will enable them to earn at least £1 weekly each. The Chief Inspector of Factories has certified that the rates are in accordance with the wages board decision. Mr. Batchelor said to-day: "While I have no power in the circumstances to withhold assent to the application, I have granted it with very great reluctance. I am surprised that the shirtmaking industry does not offer better wages than £1 a week for piece-work for adults."

THE YARRABAH MISSION.

STRONG STATEMENTS IN PARLIAMENT.

BRISBANE, Friday.

In the discussion on the vote for the relief of aboriginals, in the Legislative Assembly to-day, Mr. Mann, referring to the Yarrabah mission, said the mission was conducted with too much "churchianity," and not enough Christianity.

Mr. Murphy: Too much prayer, and not enough tucker.

Mr. Nevitt said the reports bore out his conviction. The treatment of the aboriginals was the blackest page in the history of Queensland. He read a letter from a Mr. Chapman, written six days before he was speared by the blacks, urging the Government to assume control. Criminal aboriginals were harboured in the reserves.

THE BRITISH CRISIS.

BUDGET TO BE DISCUSSED.

PARLIAMENT BILL IN THE LORDS.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

As another result of the interview of the King with Mr. Asquith, the Prime Minister, and Lord Crewe, the leader of the House of Lords, the House of Commons will discuss the Budget while the House of Lords is debating the Veto Bill.

Mr. Asquith has promised to make an important pronouncement at the National Liberal Club on Saturday.

It is announced that Lord Crewe will move the second reading of the Parliament Bill in the House of Lords on Monday.

Nov. 18.

The "Daily Chronicle" writes that there will be profound satisfaction among Liberals if the Budget is passed before the dissolution. It depends on Mr. Asquith's announcement how the Irish will vote.

POWERS OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLIES.

SOME DIFFICULTIES FORESEEN.

Mr. A. W. Samuels, K.C., speaking at Dublin, said:—"If war occurred under Home Rule all round, how could Ireland and Wales be compelled to contribute in the absence of an Imperial executive. Had there been a Welsh Parliament led by Mr Lloyd-George at the time of the Boer War it would, like an Irish Parliament under Mr. Dillon, have refused to contribute a penny."

A LIBERAL SECESSION.

REFORM OF THE LORDS.

LORD ROSEBERY'S RESOLUTIONS.

A PEER'S MELANCHOLY.

"A LOT OF US HAVE TO GO."

LONDON, Nov. 18.

In the House of Lords last night the Earl of Rosebery moved two resolutions declaring for reform of the House. They were:—

(1) That in future the House of Lords shall consist of Lords of Parliament,

(a) Chosen by the whole body of hereditary peers from among themselves and by nomination by the Crown;

(b) Sitting by virtue of offices and of qualifications held by them; and

(c) Chosen from outside.

(2) That the term of tenure of all Lords of Parliament shall be the same, except in the case of those who sit ex officio, who would sit so long as they hold the office for which they sit.

The first resolution was carried without division. The second was not discussed, and was withdrawn on the ground that it was too detailed.

Lord Rosebery said that the principles of the resolution would to a large extent solve the constitutional problem without the convulsions attendant upon continuous elections. Differences between the Houses could be settled by conferences between the two Houses or by the referendum. The latter mode would only be resorted to in acute cases.

Lord Courtney of Penwith asserted that the scheme was such a phantom that it was hardly graspable by any rational man.

The Earl of Selborne considered that the reforms were bona fide, and contained no mental reservations. It was impossible that one-half the public should coerce the other. The Government was not able permanently to settle the question on its own ideas alone.

Lord Newton said: "The melancholy fact is that a lot of us have got to go."

The Marquis of Lansdowne declared that he was prepared to support Lord Rosebery's scheme. He attached great importance to nomination by the Government of the day as a means of mitigation of the disparity of strength of the two parties.

The Earl of Crewe, the leader of the House, said that until the Liberals had a voice in framing legislation, discussion of details of reform of the House of Lords would be futile.

CANADIAN AFFAIRS.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

RECIPROCITY WITH UNITED STATES.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 17.

The Canadian Parliament was opened to-day.

Reference was made in the speech from the Throne to reciprocity negotiations with the United States.

The Speech stated that a bill for the construction of a railroad to Hudson Bay would be introduced; also a bill to revise the law of copyright.

The hope was expressed that reciprocity with the United States would soon be achieved.

The debate on the second reading will take place on Monday.

It is probable that Mr. Richard M'Bride, Premier of British Columbia, will hold a high position in the next Conservative Government of the Dominion. The belief is growing that the Liberals are losing ground.

THE ONTARIO GOLDFIELDS.

It is officially stated that no deaths from exposure or want of food have occurred in the Porcupine gold camps in Northern Ontario. Great hardships, however, have been experienced, and many miners are starving.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

Lord Roberts, on behalf of the Imperial Cadet Association, has invited 24 cadets from the Commonwealth, 12 of whom are to be juniors, who are eligible to take part in the Roberts Imperial Competition, to visit England next year.

Detachments similar in number have been invited from New Zealand, Canada, and South Africa.

Twenty-four English cadets will leave on a world's tour in August, and will probably accompany the colonial cadets on the voyage to England.

CONSERVATIVE POLICY.

MR. BALFOUR'S SPEECH.

TARIFF REFORM ENDORSED.

RECONSTITUTED SECOND CHAMBER.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, the leader of the Conservative party, had a stirring reception yesterday at the meeting of the National Union of Conservative and Constitutional Associations at Nottingham. There were many members of the House of Commons and Conservative candidates present. The audience consisted wholly of men.

Mr. Balfour spoke for an hour and a half. He said that tariff reform was still the great constructive policy of Unionists. If it would involve burdens on the wage-earners he would not touch it. If it increased the cost of bread compensation would be given in tea and sugar.

"We are trying the Dominions too highly," he said, "by deferring indefinitely the response to preference so gladly and generously given."

Speaking of the Constitutional Conference, Mr. Balfour said: "Had the Unionist delegates to that conference agreed to the only terms on which terms were possible they would have betrayed the cause."

Mr. Balfour expounded the Unionist proposals with regard to land, the navy, and the licensing question. Unionists would be false to their traditions if they did not extend workmen's insurance, which would be ever associated with Mr. Chamberlain's name to other forms of industrial misfortune.

Going on then to speak of the House of Lords, Mr. Balfour declared that the second Chamber should be diminished in number, and include persons qualified from the Public Service; also a peer-elected element, which would carry on the tradition. Another element should represent the movements of ideas and great bodies of external public opinion. These should at least be equal to the number of peers sitting by right of their services or of election by their fellows.

Amicable conferences or joint sittings should deal with deadlocks. As a House of Commons man he did not want an elected Second Chamber, which would usurp the position of the First Chamber. The supreme arbiter should be the people.

The Government was going to destroy the Constitution in obedience to the will of American subscribers. "Mr. Redmond is the conqueror who squeezes terms from the conquered," Mr. Balfour asserted. "If party government has brought us to that degradation, then the party system has broken down, and we are no longer self-governing, but are governed by log-rolling factions who care nothing for the Empire or the country."

THE PROGRAMME ADOPTED.

PREFERENCE AND UNION.

The National Union of Conservative and Constitutional Associations, at the annual meeting at Nottingham, approved of Lord Lansdowne's action in regard to the reform of the House of Lords, and the exclusion of the hereditary element.

Resolutions were passed which approved of fiscal reform, including colonial preference, small ownerships of land, unalterable opposition to Home Rule, and modification of the licensing duties.

The meeting condemned the abandonment of a two-Power standard for the navy.

THE ROYAL TOUR.

THE WELCOME IN RHODESIA.

CAPETOWN, Nov. 18.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught were presented with an address of welcome on arriving at Salisbury, Rhodesia, yesterday. In replying to the address, his Royal Highness said that he recognised the great hardships and the severe depression which the settlers had undergone, and to which the address referred but lightly, but this was the spirit in which the Rhodesians always met their difficulties.

The Duke added that he was glad of their rapid progress in agriculture and mining, on which the future of Rhodesia depended.

The welcome which the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and their daughter received was everywhere of the most cordial description.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 18.

At the American Federation of Labour Conference at St. Louis a dispute has arisen over the method of the affiliation of the Canadian Federation to the American body. COUNT TOLSTOI.

CONDITION MORE FAVOURABLE.

REASON FOR LEAVING HOME.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 17.

The condition of Count Tolstoi is more favourable.

The Countess has refrained from seeing him, lest he should become excited.

It is stated that Count Tolstoi left his home partly on account of his wife and children upbraiding him for his refusal to accept the Nobel Peace Prize of £8000, and his rejection of an offer of £100,000 for the publishing rights of his works.

The news of his death emanated from a member of the family. It caused the cancellation of many lectures and the publication of lengthy obituaries in the press throughout Europe and England.

ASTOPOVO (Russia), Nov. 18.

Count Tolstoi's temperature is 101 degrees, and his pulse beats at the rate of from 100 to 120 a minute. There are frequent intermissions of respiration, and he is without appetite. A BARONET'S DEATH.

SUCCESSOR A NEW SOUTH WALES SQUATTER.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

The death is announced of Sir A. E. Fairlie-Cuninghame, Bt. The successor to the title is Mr. W. E. Cunninghame, of Marengo, near Young, New South Wales.

Sir Alfred Edward Fairlie-Cuninghame was the 12th baronet of the baronetcy of Cuninghame of Robertland, Ayrshire. He was born in 1852, and succeeded his brother in 1897. Sir William Edward Cunninghame, the 13th baronet, is a second cousin of the late baronet. He married in 1887 Georgina Maud, daughter of the late Mr. Edward Hardman Macartney, and there are seven children issue of the marriage.

The family is descended from the Hon. William Cunningham (1st of Craigends), and son of the first Earl of Glencairn. The first baronet, who was master of the works to King James VI. of Scotland, was created a baronet with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever. At the death of the 4th baronet the title remained dormant until assumed by William Cunninghame on being served heir in 1778 to his great-grandfather, Sir David Cunninghame, of Robereland, who was grandfather of the 1st baronet.

YOUNG, Friday.

Sir W. E. Cunninghame, who now succeeds to the title of baronet, is slightly over 50 years of age, and has owned the station property Windemere, in the district of Marengo, about 20 miles from Young, for many years. He has been a member of the shire council and pastures protection board from the beginning. He is a gentleman of most retiring habits, and is held in highest esteem in his own and neighbouring districts, taking a lively interest in all matters of public concern. His assistance has always been available. He is most hospitable. Sir W. E. Cunninghame was never known to disclose his home connections. His succession will be a source of general congratulation.

FIFTY-THOUSAND TONNER.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

The Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., has invited tenders for a 50,000-ton liner with a speed of 23 knots, and which will have accommodation for 3790 persons.

The steamer will be 885ft long, and have a beam of 95ft. Her cost will be £2,000,000. Her equipment will include a swimming bath and a theatre. She will be driven by turbine engines.

The Lusitania and Mauretania, engaged in the Transatlantic trade, are 790ft long and 88ft broad. The Olympic and Titanic are, however, 882ft long and 92½ft broad. Some Hamburg-American vessels are 910ft long and 95ft broad. The White Star liner Olympic has a displacement of 50,000 tons; is 45,300 tons gross, and has horse-power which will enable her to maintain a speed of 21 knots. Her engines are a combination of twin reciprocating and low pressure turbines, and she carries three propellers. She is regarded as the largest vessel afloat. It will be seen that the new Cunard liner will be 3ft longer, but 2½ft less in breadth.

DESPERATELY IN LOVE.

NOT COUNTING THE COST.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

At the Adelaide local court August Rehder, a farmer of Spalding, sued Ada Fricker, a young woman of Hyde Park, for the return of a piano valued at £80. The case for the plaintiff was that in July, 1907, he bought a piano, and gave it into the custody of the defendant to be held by her until their marriage, which, however, had not been solemnised. Plaintiff is 72 years of age, and was 69 when he alleged that he proposed marriage to the young woman, who denied the engagement. She admitted kissing on both sides, but said it was only platonic. The Bench found that the evidence was abundantly in favour of defendant. It was quite clear that plaintiff fell desperately in love with defendant, but he did not count the cost, and was lavish in his gifts to her. The young lady—and it was to her credit that it was so—had the piano thrust upon her. That had been proved by plaintiff himself saying in one letter that he knew she had accepted it against her wish. The plaintiff did not draw a line in regard to gifts he bestowed on her, and gave the piano doubtless with hopes that it would lead to gaining her affection, for which object he was willing to sacrifice anything. The evidence was clear that the piano was a straight-out gift, and judgment would be for defendant.

AUSTRALIAN WORKERS' UNION.

ARBITRATION COURT CLAIMS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A plaint has been filed in the Commonwealth Arbitration Court by the Australian Workers' Union, in which a demand is made for a new award throughout the whole of the pastoral industry. The respondents cited in the plaint are the Pastoralists' Federal Council of Australia, the Pastoralists' Association of Victoria and Southern Riverina, the Pastoralists' Union of New South Wales, the United Pastoralists' Association of Queensland, the Pastoralists' Association of South Australia and the Western Darling, Dalgety and Co., Ltd., the London Bank of Australia, and the Union Bank.

The plaint sets out that for some time past a dispute has existed between the claimants and the respondents in respect of rates of pay, the terms and conditions, and hours of employment, and the rates for overtime; and then follows in detail a list of every calling in any way connected with the pastoral industry. The dispute, it is affirmed, extends beyond the limit of one State, and it is asked that all work in connection with the pastoral industry shall in future be carried on under the conditions set out in the plaint, and that the rates, terms, and conditions shall be embodied in written conditions to be signed respectively by each employer and employee. The proposed conditions for each branch are then set out in separate paragraphs, covering some 25 or 30 pages of typewritten foolscap. The conditions include an increase in wages, how payments are to be made, and on through a long list down to the utensils to be provided for washing, the duties and wages of cooks, proper hut accommodation for the men, the lumber rooms for their bicycles, and the agistment for their horses. Next comes the question of rations, and it is demanded that where rations are provided for shed hands or scourers they shall be upon the scale appended. A fixed allowance per week of the following items is asked for:—Flour, tea, sugar, plums, currants, baking powder, condensed milk, curry, rice, tapioca, maizena, potatoes, vegetables, jam, dried fruit, essences, ground ginger, and candied peel. At the end comes "One bar of soap and 2lb of washing soda to be allowed for every 10 men." For the shearers themselves an increase is asked on the rates under the existing agreement. The estimated yield from the wheat crop of Great Britain is 7,604,900 quarters (60,839,200 bushels).

WHEAT MARKETS.

The wheat markets are steady, though rather inactive, closing very firm on adverse rumours concerning the Argentine crop and higher American quotations. Farmers throughout the world are disinclined to sell.

Both choice and choicest qualities are meeting an improved demand, but there is only a limited inquiry for inferior sorts and for stored. The cold weather is stimulating the market, and the tone is better all round.

Dalgety and Co., Ltd., report having received the following cable respecting the condition of the London produce market:—"The official quotation for Danish butter was advanced two kroner (2/3) per cwt yesterday. The London market is firm at 117/ per cwt for finest Danish, 108/ for finest Australian salted, and 110/ for finest Australian unsalted; but the demand is chiefly for very choicest quality. THE GOVERNOR ON TOUR.

VISIT TO A COAL MINE.

MR. EDDEN PICK-SWINGING.

BANQUET AT WALLSEND.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The programme arranged during the visit to Newcastle of his Excellency Lord Chelmsford, the State Governor, and Lady Chelmsford, leaves the vice-regal party very little time to themselves. At 10 this morning his Excellency, attended by Captain Dumaresq, A.D.C., visited the Cook's Hill Superior Public School, and saw the children performing the routine of an ordinary day's work. Returning at 11 o'clock he proceeded by special train to the Newcastle Wallsend Colliery for the purpose of inspecting the Wallsend Colliery "C" pit. The train, which also conveyed the Mayor (Alderman J. C. Reid), Mr. Alfred Edden, Minister for Mines, Mr. J. Estell, Ministerial Whip, and a number of other prominent public men, stopped at the Wallsend station, where his Excellency alighted, and was presented with an illuminated address by Alderman Daniel W. Jones, Mayor of Wallsend.

At "C" pit, after inspecting the surface workings, the Governor descended the shaft in a cage, together with Mr. A. Ross, manager of the mine, Mr. Alfred Edden, and a number of others. After divesting themselves of their coats, and being supplied with the necessary pit lamps, the members of the party set off along the main drive, and turned off to a working place, where a couple of coal-begrimed miners were busy holing. The sight of the sweating men, with their greasy little lamps suspended from their hats, swinging their picks, and causing the coal dust to fly into the faces of the visitors, was one which went right to the heart of the Minister of Mines.

"She seems a bit woody," said Mr. Edden, raising his lamp, and critically surveying the face of the coal.

"No, she ain't so bad, Mr. Edden," replied one of the two miners, pausing on his stroke to give a smile of recognition to an old friend.

"Mr. Edden seems to find a friend everywhere," remarked his Excellency, closely watching the operations of holing performed by the miners in a recumbent position.

"Oh, yes," said the man, "we all know him in his electorate. I'm going to make him pay his footing to-day."

"Here," said Mr. Edden, unable to resist the impulse. "Hand me a pick, and I'll see what's she's like." After a few strokes the Minister for Mines was satisfied to declare that he had enough, and was fully convinced that "she was not so woody as he thought."

A shot that had been prepared was then fired by his Excellency, the miners declaring it had been done in quite a workmanlike way.

The party returned to the shaft, and after his Excellency had been initiated into the mysteries of such problems as "siding over," "bords," "pillars," "little tops," and a host of other questions, the ascent was safely made.

In a huge marquee, which had been erected in close proximity to the mine, his Excellency and the visitors were entertained to luncheon by the Newcastle-Wallsend Coal Company. Mr. C. H. Myles, chairman of the company, presided, supported on his right by Lord Chelmsford, and on his left by the Minister for Mines. Among others present were: Alderman J. C. Reid, Mayor of Newcastle, Mr. F. J. Smith, M.L.C., Mr. Livingstone Learmonth, chairman of the Colliery Proprietors' Defence Association, Mr. H. De Y. Scroggie, director of the Newcastle-Wallsend Coal Company, Mr. P. S. Morse, superintendent of the Sulphide Corporation, and the Dean of Newcastle, Dr. Golding Bird.

After the loyal toast had been honoured, the chairman proposed the health of his Excellency Lord Chelmsford. He regretted that the district was so depressed, the depression was hanging like a cloud over the district, and when it would lift no one could tell. This depression was the result of strikes, and every strike had enabled their competitors to develop mines in other parts of the world. New mines had been opened up in Japan, Peru, Java, and, coming nearer home, they had an instance in the Powlett River mine in Victoria. These strikes had terrible effects upon both masters and men, and it would be a happy day for Australia when someone could solve the knotty problem of how to avoid them.

Mr. Edden: "It is solved now, if you will follow the Christian doctrine."

His Excellency, in responding, said that he had been dining the previous evening with the Chamber of Commerce, and returned home before the witching hour of midnight. On asking Mr. Edden that morning at what hour he had returned home, that gentleman had told him 2 o'clock in the morning. According to the programme which he had, Mr. Edden was with them on this occasion as Minister in Attendance on the Governor. He had pleaded when he arrived home at 2 o'clock in the morning that he was in attendance on the Governor. (Laughter.) "Now I should like to warn Mr. Edden so early in his Ministerial career that that is an entire reversion of all constitutional custom and usage. If a Governor goes wrong he can always plead that one of his Ministers is responsible, but if a Minister goes wrong, he is not entitled to plead that the Governor is responsible." (Laughter.)

Mr. Edden: "Oh, but we are going to alter things now."

His Excellency: "I see; Mr. Edden says they are going to alter things. Well, I hope my shoulders are broad enough to bear the burden of Mr. Edden's sins."

Continuing, his Excellency said he had just been down one of the mines, and he was glad to have been able to see there that the old Adam was still strong in Mr. Edden. He couldn't resist taking the pick and having a go, to show the younger generation how they ought to do their work. Evidently, he was not in the best condition for that kind of physical exercise. He hoped he was better braced up for the mental exercise which would be required of him during the coming year. The Governor said he was very glad his lot had been to live his life above ground. Life in the pit was not the form of work he should envy, and therefore he had the greatest admiration for those men who gave up their lives obtaining a livelihood in that way.

Mr. J. Smith, M.L.C., proposed the toast of the State Ministry, and Mr. Alfred Edden responded. The latter said some of those present might think it was a great thing to be a Minister of the Crown, but it was not all honey, and they should not forget that while they were drinking his health he had missed a drink. (Laughter.) Mr. Ross, who was present with them, had given him (the speaker), the first day's work he had in this country, 31 years ago, when he, Mr. Edden, was practically penniless. He was not bad to work for, and had always treated him well, but he had never treated him as well as he was treating him that day. Mr. Edden said he did not think he would get swelled head. During the 19 years he had been in Parliament he was always ready for a free lunch when he could get it, and although a Minister of the Crown he promised them he would not alter in this respect.

Lord Chelmsford proposed the health of the chairman, to which Mr. Myles replied briefly, and the party then returned to the tram, which proceeded to the Agricultural Showground.

Here the Governor opened the Newcastle Agricultural, Horticultural, and Industrial Society's spring show. When the train arrived at Broadmeadow, the Governor was met by Alderman Brien, Mayor of Hamilton, who presented him with an illuminated address.

AT THE SPRING SHOW.

An escort of Australian Light Horse accompanied his Excellency from the Broadmeadow Station to the showground, where on his arrival close on 6000 school children were performing the grand patriotic flag march, under the direction of Captain Reddish. After driving round the ground the Governor was conducted to the grand stand.

In declaring the show open, he said that the best products Australia could produce were the children. Sometimes they heard that the population was falling off, but he had to admit that he saw no signs in that direction in Newcastle, and certainly the quality seemed to be always up to the quantity.

A number of varied displays were given by the school children during the afternoon. The show, apart from the children's displays, was also a decided success. The attendance was large, and Mr. C. W. Donnelly, secretary of the association, stated that, unlike the first spring show held last year, this year's event would prove a strong financial success. Last year the function was marred by wet weather. The exhibits included numerous entries for shrubs, pot plants, cut flowers, and poultry. The fine arts section was on the weak side, Mr. Julian Ashton, who judged the exhibits, stating that there was a lamentable lack of original contributions. The needlework section was well represented.

FURTHER ENGAGEMENTS.

His Excellency attended a Masonic reception at 7.30 p.m., and a Masonic banquet at 9 p.m.

While his Excellency was at the colliery this afternoon Lady Chelmsford visited the kindergarten. Lady Chelmsford also attended the Orchestral Society's concert at the King's Hall at 8 o'clock to-night. To-morrow his Excellency will visit the Sulphide Works at Cockle Creek, and proceed to Toronto by launch, where lunch will be provided at the Toronto Hotel.

Lord and Lady Chelmsford will leave Newcastle for Singleton at 3 p.m. to-morrow.

THE SPRINGBOKS.

ALL OUT FOR 300.

FAULKNER, STRICKER, AND NOURSE SCORE AGAIN.

KELLEWAY'S FINE BOWLING.

TRUMPER AND BARDSLEY GET GOING.

Sydney people yesterday for the first time saw the Springboks in action. Hitherto they had only read about them, and seen their pictures. And having seen the redoubtables, they liked them. They liked the sturdy set of Nourse, as he crouched to meet Cotter's lightning deliveries. They liked the graceful style of Aubrey Faulkner, the African champion, as he mercilessly smacked the loose ones of Hordern and Emery to the railings. They also liked the clean cricket of Louis Stricker, and the brilliant big hitting of young Pearse. But perhaps—and this is only natural—the crowd relished best of all the last half-hour of the day, when Trumper and Bardsley simply pasted the cover off the googlies.

At last the South Africans have tried their skill on a typical Australian wicket—fast, glazed, and fiery. In Adelaide and Melbourne they opened up on damp, soft, slow English wickets. Here, however, they struck the real Australian turf wicket. Sunny New South Wales was no misnomer. And the ground, like the pitch, was at near perfection as possible. All the visitors pronounced it fine. None had ever seen such a splendidly-appointed arena. The cosmopolitan Llewellyn spoke for the crowd when he briebly ejaculated, best in the world.

And for a first essay under novel conditions it must be admitted that the visiting batsmen, on the whole, made good. To be sure, 300 is little enough on such a wicket. But for men fresh from the matting, it is by no means discreditable. Faulkner quite justified his title of champion, by top scoring in the graceful, attractive style of an artist. Stricker and Nourse, as at Adelaide, provided a valuable partnership. Pearse quite delighted the onlookers by going right at the bowling and hitting up 45 in brilliant style. If he always bats like that Australians will turn out to watch him.

As for the local trundling, it was no light task to dismiss on a perfect wicket the men who trounced the pick of England. Kelleway carried off the honours, bagging five for 60, and bringing off a couple of brilliant catches. It was an excellent performance, marred only by his having five no balls registered against him. Cotter's one wicket cost 66 runs, but, excepting Faulkner and Pearse, the Springboks were not quite comfortable facing him. Folkard got two wickets in successive balls. Emery was expensive, yet he bagged the two best bats of the side. Hordern failed to rise to the occasion. The Africans did what they liked with his pseudo googlies. Macartney might have been used more in place of Hordern and Emery. He bowled finely for three overs, only one run resulting. On the whole the local bowling quite rose to the occasion.

Had it been an ordinary interstate match not one of the thousands round the oval would have had the slightest doubt of the ability of the local champions to hit up the 300 set them. But a new and potent factor, the "googlie," had been introduced into the national pastime. So it was with a delicious sense of expectation that the crowd awaited events. They had not long to remain in doubt. Bardsley was at home instanter, and started out after another century. Trumper after a few uncertain strokes also got a move on, and the pair rattled up 76 in just over 40 minutes. Schwarz's googlies had no terrors for them. Vogler the great made no impression. Nourse's swerves failed to penetrate their defence. Llewellyn looked simple. Swerves, googlies, and straight ones were punished indiscriminately. All was grist to the mill. It was just like the old days of Trumper and Duff, and the crowd enjoyed it hugely.

For an off day the attendance was very good, 8000 visiting the oval. This meant a gate of £349, of which £126 goes to the South Africans, £35 to the trustees, and £187 to the association. With Bardsley and Trumper going strongly there should be a great crowd to-day.

THE PLAY.

From the African team Hathorn, Pegler, and Campbell stood out, leaving the side constituted as follows:—P. Sherwell (capt.), G. A. Faulkner, A. E. Vogler, R. O. Schwarz, S. J. Snooke, C. B. Llewellyn, M. Commaille, A. D. Nourse, L. Stricker, Z. W. Zulch, and C. Pearse.

New South Wales was represented by the following:—V. Trumper (capt.), W. Bardsley, Rev. E. F. Waddy, E. L. Waddy, C. E. Macartney, C. Kelleway, H. Carter, B. J. Folkard, A. Cotter, S. H. Emery, and Dr. H. V. Hordern.

The umpires were Messrs. Bruton and Curran.

It was very warm, tempered with a nice north-easter, when Zulch and Stricker opened for the Africans, the Glebe pair, Cotter and Kelleway, being entrusted with the attack. Cotter's fast ones were a shade quicker than the batsmen were accustomed to, and twice the ball, only half-played, rolled dangerously near the sticks. A full one from the Glebe express was nicely placed to leg by Zulch, Stricker in turn late-cutting the same bowler. The Africans now seemed more at home. By clean off-driving Cotter to the boundary Stricker reached double figures. Then the first casualty came. Zulch, opening out to Kelleway, sent the ball right to Folkard at third man, and the Balmain representative made no mistake. The young Afrikander played carefully enough for his 14. Snooke now entered, with everything in his favour to retrieve his earlier failures on the turf. After a couple through the slips he executed his favourite stroke—a clean late-cut to the track at Kelleway's cost. Then he emulated Zulch, opened his shoulders to one on the off, and Emery, at third man, made good. Kelleway had secured his second wicket at a cost of 16 runs. A hearty reception was next accorded Nourse, the hero of the Adelaide contest, and the fighter who, with Faulkner, ineffectively tried to pull the Melbourne match out of the fire. Off Cotter Nourse did his famous scoring stroke, a clean chop to the off railings. But Cotter's fast ones on the leg side Nourse quite failed to time. A full-toss on the off was again cut to the boundary, 52 appearing exactly at the rate of a run a minute. Then Dr. Hordern was brought on to administer to the Springboks a dose of their own googlie medicine. Nourse relished the change, swinging the initial volley hard to the cycling track. A slow break from Hordern Stricker lifted over square-leg for four. Nourse in his turn off-driving the same trundler with tremendous force to the ladies' stand. Seventy-five now appeared, the crowd applauding Nourse's hard-hitting more than they did Stricker's graceful timing. Two overs from Hordern quite sufficed, for the Springboks helped themselves to 16, so Macartney, the pride of Gordon, was requisitioned, a maiden resulting. Kelleway was rested now, having bowled 11 overs for 25 runs with a solace of two wickets, Folkard taking command. A sequence of maidens was rudely broken by Stricker pulling Folkard to the fence. Macartney's three overs only yielded one run, but just before luncheon Cotter's services were again commandeered; but the pair that put on 300 in Adelaide had settled down for good, and when luncheon came they were going strong, Stricker being 36 and Nourse 27, and the aggregate 90 for two casualties.

Over 6000 people were in attendance when the game was resumed. Kelleway was applauded for twice cleverly fielding hot cuts from the Soldier, and then bowled again from Coogee end. A maiden from Kellaway was followed by the burly Natalian cutting the express smartly to fence. Another Kelleway maiden saw Nourse again opposite Cotter, and the favourite chop brought the first century up in exactly 100 minutes. Stricker executed a quick pull, also from Cotter, and when Kelleway sent down his third maiden Emery supplanted the fast trundler. Singles supplemented the score somewhat, then Stricker crisply cut Kelleway to the members' stand, and lifted a full toss from Redfern's elect to the fence. This was followed by another boundary from Emery, a late cut which gave Stricker his half-hundred to the accompaniment of encouraging applause. Nourse was 40, and playing for keeps. The pair had established a claim to be considered the most prolific run-getters of the Springboks. Then came disaster. Nourse touched one from Emery, and Kelleway, close up in the slips, snapped him up. Three for 122 was the record when Faulkner partnered Stricker, the champion opening with a graceful couple on the leg, following it with a similar stroke to the grandstand. Emery sent a full-pitcher to Stricker, who promptly banged it to the boundary, and Emery struck a better length in consequence. Each man took a few, and 150 appeared, Stricker well in the sixties, and batting finely. Faulkner, by perfect cricket, reached a score, a leg-pull off Emery being a gem reminiscent of Trumper at his best. The next casualty came at 166. Stricker being clean bowled by Kelleway for 73. It was his first mistake in 140 minutes, ten fours gracing his record. Llewellyn, the Hampshire "pro.," now emerged, and saw Faulkner again swing Emery to the fence.

Kelleway was mixing them nicely, his fast Yorker always looking dangerous. Faulkner played him with confidence, but Llewellyn was ill at ease misjudging the flight of the ball. Emery was rather erratic, full-tossers and half-wayers, alternating with an occasional length ball. Faulkner dearly loved the short ones, smacking them mercilessly to the fence. Faulkner reached 32, while the left-hander saw the unlucky 13 appear against his name. Once again that figure proved the Springboks' undoing, as Llewellyn was bowled by Folkard. Schwarz, who succeeded, was clean bowled first ball by the Balmain champion, and the board showed six for 192. This was not nearly so good as the Springboks should have done, on so excellent a wicket. Faulkner delighted the crowd now by thrice pulling Emery to the railings, and the ringside critics freely advised Trumper to take him off. The second century now emerged, and Cotter took the place of the expensive Redfernite, from whom 64 runs had been scored. The newcomer's first ball was sent scurrying to the on boundary by Faulkner, who thus reached 50 by superb, chanceless batting. Vogler now did his share by cutting Folkard to the fence, and lifting him high to the on boundary. A little more force by the little man would have meant a sixer. But the famous trundler had cut his dash. Cotter clean bowled him next over. He had hit up a round dozen in very fair style. Pearse came in with the score at 221 for his second essay on the turf. He is one of the youngsters of the team—quite a batting stylist when he gets going. Against the M.C.C. in Africa he averaged 17, which sounds less than his worth warrants. He executed a couple of graceful strokes, then the tea spell came, the scores being 227 for seven wickets. The champion was 54.

Cotter and Folkard continued after the recess, Pearse hitting the first-named solidly to the ladies' pavilion. The home fielding was excellent, and the picking up clean and sharp. Pearse opened out, merrily placing both Cotter and Folkard to the boundary. His driving to the on from balls pitched right on to his toes was really excellent. His timing of Cotter was great. He hit up 25 in 14 minutes, the briskest batting of the day. Hordern now relieved Cotter, the change suiting Faulkner, who pulled the initial googlie to the leg fence, and entered the sixties. Then Hordern sent a tempting one to Pearse, who jumped out and lifted the ball right out of the ground into the ladies' pavilion for 6. A short-pitched one followed its predecessor for 4, bouncing on the cycling track and landing again among the ladies. Pearse was 37, and batting beautifully. Faulkner, now seized with the spirit of emulation, swung Folkard to the fence, and reached the seventies. Two overs sufficed for Hordern, from whom the Springboks had helped themselves to 30, so Emery came on. The crowd thoroughly enjoyed Pearse's exhibition. It was the brightest batting of the day. But he now lost Faulkner, who was beaten and bowled by a beauty from Emery. By perfect cricket he had compiled in 98 minutes 74 runs, in which 12 fours were included. Commaille, the Bannerman of the team, who stonewalled so effectively in the Melbourne match, now appeared, the score being 292 for eight wickets.; but Kelleway soon silenced Commaille, who got in front of a straight one. Sherwell, the Springbok skipper, was the last man in. Ordinarily he goes in early in the innings, but since the Melbourne match has not been quite fit. He was accorded quite an ovation by the crowd, and opened by a 4 from Kelleway. A single brought 300 up. Then Pearse opened out to Kelleway. The Glebe trundler jumped high, and by a sensational catch brought the Springboks' innings to an end. Once again Faulkner, Nourse, and Stricker were responsible for the majority of the runs.

When the Springboks emerged, they were roundly cheered. So also were Trumper and Bardsley, who opened up for the home team. A new departure in bowling tactics was tried by Sherwell, Nourse being given first shy at the wickets. Vogler went on at the Coogee end, and the three opening overs realised 10. At 17, Nourse made way for Schwarz, and the googlies commenced. Trumper once hitting wildly at where the ball was not, Vogler nearly bowled the captain. Bardsley jumped out and drove Schwarz for a single. Then the Glebe crack opened his shoulders, driving Vogler to the sightboard. His skipper did likewise. Forty came with level pegging, both men having a score to their credit. Then Schwarz nearly bowled Trumper with a wrong'un, which broke back sharply. Bardsley got going, and banged both bowlers to the leg-boundary. Fifty came; then Llewellyn took Vogler's place. Runs, however, continued to come, both players hitting freely, and when play ceased for the day the board showed none for 76, Trumper being 41, and Bardsley 35. The Welshmen were on a good wicket.

CENSURE MOTION.

PROBABLE DEFEAT.

GOVERNMENT MAJORITY OF 11 EXPECTED.

It is expected that the debate on the Opposition's amendment to the Address in Reply, censuring the Government for the abolition of the freehold, will be brought to a conclusion by the end of next week.

The defeat of the amendment is regarded as a foregone conclusion, especially since the speech delivered by Mr. David Storey, the leader of the Independents, in the House on Thursday evening.

The Labour party came back to the House with 46 members, as against 36 Liberals, and eight Independents. Since then a Labour member has been elected Speaker, and Mr. Price has left the Independents for the Liberal camp. Thus, as matters now stand, there are 45 Ministerialists, 37 Oppositionists, and 7 Independents, and if the Independents voted with the Opposition, the Government would have a mere majority of one. Mr. Storey, however, made it clear that the Independents are not in favour of a motion of censure at the present stage, so there is a possibility of the division showing the Government with a majority of 15.

But the opinion is entertained in several quarters that the whole seven of the Independents will not be found voting with the caucus party—that at the last moment one or two of them from the country will baulk at giving a vote for the abolition of the freehold, for, notwithstanding all political quibbles, that is what it will be tantamount to. Allowing for the holding back of two of them—though no indication has actually been given that two or any of them will hold back—the Government will have a majority when the division bells ring of 11.

There was some apprehension early in the week that Mr. Wade's indisposition might prevent his taking part in the division, but he has progressed so well towards recovery that there is now no doubt about the matter. He was able to leave his bed on Thursday and yesterday, and it is his intention to leave Sydney to-day for a few days' stay on the mountains.

THE INDEPENDENTS.

Mr. Price, M.L.A., gives a somewhat different version of the facts leading up to his retirement from the ranks of the Independent party from that published yesterday by the chairman (Mr. David Storey) and the secretary (Mr. G. S. Briner).

The member for Gloucester says that at the meeting of the Independent party he intimated that he was desirous of seeing the question of freehold versus leasehold tested in a division at the earliest opportunity. He was obliged to leave the meeting to keep an appointment. He admitted he was wrong in having stated in an interview that the Independent party carried a resolution at that meeting, but there was a tacit understanding not to test immediately what to him was an all-important question, so that next morning he wrote a letter to Mr. Storey, thanking him and the members of the party for the uniform courtesy extended to him, and intimating his intention to withdraw from the Independents' room, as he could not concur with them. He also intimated that he himself intended testing the policy embodied in Mr. Nielsen's minute of leasehold versus freehold at the earliest opportunity. Mr. Price denied the accuracy of the suggestion that pressure had been brought to bear upon him by the members of the Independent party to induce him to withdraw from amongst them. It was not a personal matter with him, and the only reason for his defection was that he did not concur with the Independents in not desiring to challenge the Government at once.

AUSTRALASIAN ASSOCIATION.

PROPOSED CHANGE OF HEADQUARTERS NEGATIVED.

A meeting of the Australasian Association was held last night. Mr. P. B. Colquhoun was in the chair, and there were also present Messrs. V. V. Rudder and E. S. MacDermott (Q.), T. H. Hicks and H. S. Fox (N.S.W.), J. E. Gosling and W. A. Clark (Vic.), W. P. Dunlop (S.A.), E. Anderson, and L. M. Howell (W.A.), and R. G. Priddle (Tas.), V. H. Baxter, C. T. Metcalfe, and A. E. Witherby (N.Z.).

The Victorian delegates submitted a motion that the next annual meeting should be held in Melbourne, and that the headquarters of the association should be located in that city for a term. Mr. Gosling, in moving the resolution, said that it was desirable that the headquarters should not be permanently in any one State, and that if a change were made, Melbourne should be the headquarters. The proposed change was favoured by South Australia and Tasmania, in addition to Victoria, the other States and New Zealand being opposed to it. The voting was five (one South Australian delegate voting by proxy) for the motion, and nine against.

INTERSTATE TENNIS.

VICTORIAN SUCCESSES.

SINGLES AND DOUBLES MATCHES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An auspicious beginning was made with the interstate carnival organised by the Lawn Tennis Association of Victoria, at the Albert Ground, to-day, the weather conditions, the large attendance, and the high standard of play continuing to make an attractive programme for the opening day. The results of the singles matches against New South Wales, and the doubles matches against South Australia, gave Victoria a good lead over the two visiting State's representatives. The three players that contributed most largely to Victoria's two rubbers' majority in the match against New South Wales were R. W. Heath, A. W. Dunlop, and B. Spence. Heath repeated the achievement against Parker and Rice which won him the Australasian championship at the Adelaide meeting last March, and added two rubbers to Victoria's total in straight sets. Dunlop, after a ding-dong three-set go against Rice, mde a brilliant pull up in capturing the concluding set of the day from Parker after the latter had won the four opening games straight off the reel. The brilliant New South Welshman, E. L. Jones, who was playing for the first time in Victoria in this match, made a very favourable impression. His free, graceful style, in conjunction with his forceful ground work, makes him a most attractive player to watch. R. M. Marsh and S. N. Doust were the most successful players on the New South Wales side, and the latter's brisk, businesslike efforts, in which there was no flash or flourish, gained his State two rubbers in straight sets.

CASUALTIES.

A MARRIED WOMAN'S DEATH.

Minnie Matilda Woolmer, 44, died at Prince Alfred Hospital on Thursday afternoon. Deceased, who resided at 118 Addison-road, Marrickville, complained of feeling unwell shortly after lunch on Thursday. Her daughter subsequently went to her bedroom, and found her in great pain. Mrs. Woolmer pointed to a bottle of carbolic acid, and said, "I have taken some of that." After an emetic had been administered the woman was conveyed to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, where she died.

WOMAN'S THROAT CUT.

Michael Joseph Moriarty found his wife lying at the foot of the stairs at his residence, Ivy-street, Redfern, yesterday morning, with a large wound in her throat. Shortly afterwards her husband heard a noise, and on investigating found his wife in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs. The Civil Ambulance were called, but before their arrival the woman expired. The body was removed to the Morgue.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

At the Theatre Royal, "Salvation Nell" enters upon its third week this evening, the elements of emotional interest which attract being twofold. There is not only the desperate struggle of Nell Sanders to uplift her lover, and in so doing give their little son a fair chance in life, but there is also the intense rivalry between that lover and the Salvation Army major for the possession of a fascinating woman whom both love. This spiritual and carnal battle-field is, moreover, laid in such squalid surroundings as to present a certain effect of novelty. There will be the usual matinee on Wednesday.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"What Happened to Jones" now enters upon its last six nights, with a final matinee on Wednesday, at the Criterion Theatre, where the George Willoughby Comedy Company at the same time makes its farewell appearance after a season marked by bright and clever character work on the part of Mr. David James, Miss Mab Paul, and other leading artists of the combination. "What Happened to Jones," one of the most amusing of farcical pieces, is causing uproarious laughter, with Mr. Willoughby in the name-part, and is pretty certain to run out the last week to crowded audiences.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The rush for "Our Miss Gibbs" is unabated at Her Majesty's Theatre, where the "Almost" duet between Miss Blanche Browne and Mr. Leslie Holland, and the "Little Farm" duet in which that soprano and Mr. Bertie Wright create an atmosphere of almost infantile simplicity, are amongst the many favourite numbers in the new Gaiety piece that are encored nightly. Dances and attractive concerted numbers help to sustain the popularity of "Our Miss Gibbs," of which the usual matinee will be given on Wednesday.

PALACE THEATRE.

Messrs. Allan Hamilton and Max Maxwell's dramatic company now enter upon the last six nights of their season at the Palace Theatre, where E. Hill Mitchelson's spectacular military melodrama, "Revenge," is drawing large audiences. The faithful love of Queen Corona (Miss Vera Remee) for the ultimately blinded hero (Mr. Max Maxwell), and the villainous plots against them of Prince Orloff (Mr. Richard Bellairs) and Draga (Miss Nellie Strong), are the source of many sensational incidents in this picturesquely staged drama.

"SHADOWS OF A GREAT CITY."

After an interval of years, the favourite American melodrama, "The Shadows of a Great City," will be produced at the Palace Theatre next Saturday evening, when Miss Maggie Moore and Mr. H. R. Roberts, who have just been playing the piece with success at the King's Theatre, Melbourne, will star with a new company. Miss Maggie Moore will, of course, appear in one of her most humorous Irish characters as Biddy Roonan, whilst Mr. Harry Roberts will be seen as the hero, Tom Cooper. The cast will include Messrs. A. E. Greenaway, John F. Forde, E. B. Russell, Miss Ethel Bashford, and Miss Beatrice Esmond. Picturesque tableaux have been painted by Mr. Rege Robins. The plan will open at Elvy's on Monday.

"THE WINNING TICKET."

After an absence from Sydney of about three years, Mr. Wm. Anderson's complete dramatic company, headed by Miss Eugenie Duggan, will present the new drama, "The Winning Ticket," next Saturday, at the Criterion Theatre, after a phenomenal run of seven weeks at the King's Theatre, Melbourne. The biggest of many fine scenes in the new drama will be the race for the Melbourne Cup, in which six racehorses will be seen racing, with the familiar landscape of Flemington flashing past them. Another realistic tableau will be the Swing Bridge sensation, showing a full-sized locomotive, a river of real water, and a swing bridge. Many well-known Melbourne landmarks are pictured, including the Melbourne Town Hall, Cole's Book Arcade, St. Kilda, Little Bourke-street. Miss Eugenie Duggan, Miss Olive Wilton, a new English actress, and Messrs. Roy Redgrave, George Cross, Bert Bailey, and other favourite artists will appear. The plan opens at Elvy's on Tuesday morning.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

This afternoon's performance at the Tivoli Theatre is to be the occasion of a presentation of medals on behalf of the Animals' Protection Society and the Dogs' Home Society, to Mr. Barnold, whose treatment of his dogs and monkeys is understood to merit recognition. Both at this matinee, and in the evening, Dan, the Drunken Dog, and the monkey, Constable, will be ludicrously in evidence. The last seven nights are notified by Mr. Harry Rickards. The new programme will include the newly-arrived Les Marias, humorists and eccentric acrobatic dancers, Violet Stockwell, Carl Howard, Larry Lewis, Fanny Powers, and other favourite artists.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

At the National Amphitheatre, where "The Paradise of Flowers" forms the new first part, the new artists from America, Daley and O'Brien, the Tanglefoot Dancers, have joined the combination, which includes the first appearance of Harry Pleydora, of "Mother Goose" and "Aladdin" reputation, Alf. Holt, American mimic, Jules and Marzon, clever athletes, Frank Yorke, and a score of other artists, with new moving pictures by the bioraama. Every Friday night half an hour is devoted to the public trial of amateur talent.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.

At the Alhambra Theatre, both afternoon and evening, the present company will be increased by the engagement of Nolan and Lovell, comedy sketch artists, and the three Racoons and their educated dog Toby, whilst there will be a new first part entitled, "Ye Olde Englishe Village Greene," and new moving pictures.

LYCEUM—SPENCER'S THEATRESCOPE.

At the Lyceum, both afternoon and evening to-day, Mr. Charles Spencer's Theatrescope Company will show new star films, including "Beatrix of Zeada," "The Modern Prodigal," "The Street Barricades and Bombardment in Lisbon," the Japanese story of "Hako's Sacrifice," "Cowboy Chivalry," "The Lakes of Carda," "Muggsby Becomes a Hero," and the latest comic incidents.

On Monday night "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be elaborately illustrated with 3000ft of film and grand organ accompaniment.

WEST'S AT GLACIARIUM AND TOWN HALL.

Mr. T. J. West's new star programme will not only be shown this afternoon and evening at the Glaciarium, but in the evening only at the Town Hall also. Mr. L. De Groen's Vice-regal Orchestra will supply the music. The new list will comprise the Parisian sensational series, "The Spectre, or Murder Will Out," "The Italian Naval Manoeuvres," the "Girl Aids at Darling Point," "Spots of Old England" (Marylands), "The Cowboy's Chivalry," "The Revolutionaries in Lisbon," and such comic stories as "Muggsby Becomes a Hero."

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the subject of a beautiful series of pictures, with special music, on Monday night.

"PETER PAN" CLUB HOSPITAL FETE.

Miss Blanche Browne will open the fete at St. James's Hall this afternoon, continued also throughout this evening, organised by the "Peter Pan" Club in aid of their cot at the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children. There will be a bazaar of Christmas presents, concerts, novel decorations, and forest scenes, a lantern entertainment, showing the whole of the fairy-drama, and Miss Tittell Brune's gramophone greeting from London to Miss Webb and other organisers of the charity fete.

MR. N. J. GEHDE'S SACRED CONCERT.

Mr. N. J. Gehde will direct a sacred concert at the Town Hall to-morrow afternoon, when Miss Elsie B. Peerless will sing Rossini's "Inflammatus," Mr. Eugene Ossipoff will be heard in "Almighty Sire" (Glinka), Mr. Maurice Chenoweth will sing "Where'er you Walk" (Handel), and the choir will render N. J. Gehde's "Australian National Anthem" (first performance). Misses Renee Lees, M. Gibson, Adelaide Cox (elocutionist), Irene M'Pherson, Florence Grant, Mr. Chas. Wood, Signor Torrillo, the Cathedral Choristers, and the Meistersingers' quartet will also assist.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, NEWTOWN.

Mr. N. J. Gehde will direct a sacred concert at St. George's Hall to-morrow evening, when the assisting artists will be Misses Elsie B. Peerless, Irene M'Pherson, Tessie Marshall, Violet Abbott, Florence Grant, E. Abbott, Messrs. M. Chenoweth, Roy Allen, C. Wood, the Cathedral Choristers, and the Meistersingers' Quartet.

BIJOU THEATRE PICTURES.

At the Bijou Theatre, both afternoon and evening to-day, the new programme of the latest films will comprise "The River Danube," "Hunting the Chamois in the Tyrol," the dramatic stories of "The Law of the West," and "The Great Diamond Swindle," comic incidents, and "Police Dogs in Paris."

THE OLYMPIA PICTURES.

Mr. Wm. Anderson's new open-air theatre "The Olympia," Elizabeth-street, near the Central Railway Station, has the exclusive rights of the beautiful series of pictures illustrating "The Squatter's Daughter." All the chief scenes of the popular play will be shown to-night (no matinee).

EMPIRE PICTURES.

This popular Oxford-street Picture Theatre is screening the latest films, including "Texas Train Robbery," "A Modern Prodigal," "Under Western Skies," and a clever comic series, "What the Parrot Saw." Special prices prevail at the children's matinee to-day, at 2.30. A complete change is announced for Monday evening.

STADIUM CONTINENTALS.

Mr. Harry Clay has secured and fitted up the Stadium, Rushcutter Bay, for a season of summer night continentals, opening this evening, and to be regularly continued every evening except Wednesdays. In addition to the world's latest moving pictures, there will be the Ladies' Austral Symphony Orchestra, illustrated songs, and a group of artists, including John Ralston, Post Mason, and Harry Clay.

PAT FISHER'S ENTERTAINMENTS.

At Harry Clay's Standard Theatre this evening, a new series of popular Saturday night vaudeville shows will be opened, with Mr. Pat Fisher's entertainers, headed by Maud Fanning, Elliott Sisters, Arthur Elliott, Ida Bowers, and Tom Selwyn, with a dozen other favourite artists. Up-to-date pictures and illustrated songs will be included in the new programme. Mr. David A. Alexander is in charge as manager.

"FANCIFUL FOLLIES" AT MOSMAN.

Next Saturday evening, Mr. R. L. Mullarky will open "Venezia," a spacious and airy summer-night theatre, newly erected next to the Mosman Bay jetty. English and Australian artists have been brought together for a series of nightly entertainments under the title of "The Fanciful Follies," and will include Misses Nance Nightingale, Tessa Byrne, Mab Fotheringhame, Olive Carr, Messrs. Leith Harvey, Maurice Chenoweth, John Denis Keenan, Harry de Robeck, Courtnay Ford, Reginald Harrison, and Harry Graham.

Captain Penfold, the noted air-man, will make a balloon ascent, and parachute descent, from Clontarf tomorrow. A concert will be given in the grounds, and, with the advantage of a special service of steamers from Fort Macquarie, there should be a good attendance.

CHAMPION SWIMMER.

BEAUREPAIRE AS AN ADVERTISEMENT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An effort is being made to raise £600 or £700 as a presentation to Frank Beaurepaire, champion swimmer, who is returning to Melbourne, after a victorious visit to Europe. The Cabinet agreed to give £250 towards the fund, because "Beaurepaire had proved a great advertisement for Victoria, and a credit to the whole athletic world, by his wonderful performances in Europe."

MINING.

SILVER UNCHANGED. COPPER FIRM.

BULLFINCHES SELL WEAKLY.

There was nothing very striking about the market yesterday morning, either as regards the amount of business transacted, the prices realised, or the quotations for the majority of stocks not dealt in. Simply stated, the position was as follows:—Silver shares were unchanged; copper stocks furnished a very limited business, with some prices on the down grade, and others moving upwards; sales in Bullfinch propositions were all on the weak side; other gold stocks commanded very little attention, while tin was represented by firm sales in Tongkah Harbour.

A notice was posted in the vestibule of the Stock Exchange in the following terms:—"Mount Drysdale, south drive 560ft level, in 87ft. Lode full width of the drive. Assays show 2oz gold and ½oz silver per ton, and lode improving. Will report later, result in northern drive, which looks well." Despite this favourable announcement the shares did not move up in value, for the simple reason that the improvement in the prospects of the mine had been previously anticipated by buying orders from Cobar, executed during the two or three previous days. Indeed, some members of the Stock Exchange grumbled at the fact that the improvement, which it is believed became known in Cobar on Wednesday, was not officially notified to the Stock Exchange until Friday morning.

As before remarked, the swillering of the Bullfinch group was rather feeble in character. Except in one instance, the sales booked were on the weak side. Other gold stocks, including those of New South Wales, Western Australia, and Queensland, were exceedingly quiet.

The reported satisfactory development of the ore bodies in the Hampden-Cloncurry mine was responsible for a further upward movement in the scrip; whilst the ore developments in the Canbelego Copper Mine in this State, firmed the shares materially. On the other hand, Tolwong Mineral was in a bad way, sales being booked down to 11/6, as against 15/ a short time ago. Great Fitzroys, Queen Bee, Kangiara Mines, and Mount Morgans were in request, but holders quoted wide. There were strong buyers of Mount Elliotts at the previous day's advanced rate, but sellers stood off.

The principal feature about an otherwise exceedingly quiet market in the afternoon was the strength of Hampdens and the weakness of Tolwong Mineral, with the other sections as dull as possible.

MINING NOTES.

The Central Red, White, and Blue Company (Bendigo) has declared a dividend of 2/ per share. This makes 5/ per share paid on stock that cost the original holders 1/6 per share, and are now worth 98/ each. A remarkable record.

MINING IN THE STATE.

PAMBULA, Friday.

The drive at the 240ft level of the Diorite Syndicate Extended mine has met good values. It is expected to tap the big shoot of ore by the end of next week. Going south the values are very fair. One hundred tons of ore have been raised. The syndicate has purchased the whole of the Great Morgan plant, and expects to have the battery going in a fortnight.

THE BULLFINCH ELDORADO.

WORK ON SEVERAL LEASES.

SOUTHERN CROSS, Friday.

Among the visitors to Southern Cross is Adam Wilkie, who, in speaking of the Bullfinch Main lode, in which he is one of the principal shareholders, said that the sale negotiations regarding that proposition had not yet been satisfactorily concluded, but he had reason to believe the deal would be clinched shortly. Speaking of the Bullfinch line of lode, he is confident that when exploratory work was begun in earnest some sound gold mines would be discovered.

Mr. Woodward, Government Geologist, has been sent to Southern Cross, and is gathering material for a report on the Yilgarn auriferous belt. Although the geological features of the Bullfinch line are to be specially observed, it is probable that the Bullfinch Proprietary mine will not be examined at present.

Work is in full swing on many properties, noticeable the Bellbird, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, Great Finch, and Young Bullfinch holdings. Operations are mostly confined to costeening. The efforts on Chaffinch were, a few days ago, rewarded by the exposure of the cap of a large lode close to the main lode on the boundary.

Mr. R. E. Evans, formerly manager of the Malcolm Gold Mines, Limited, has secured two 24-acre leases about four chains north of the Bullfinch Yroprietary. Mr. Evans, who is a man of wide and varied mining experience, holds the belief, in common with some prominent geologists, that the Bullfinch lode will eventually trend north and south.

Negotiations regarding the purchase of Bullfinch East by Boyd Aarons have evidently proceeded without any hitch, for the balance of the amount for the property is to be paid over at an early date.

Mr. E. W. Bonwick, an Adelaide expert, has arrived on the field to secure options or leases for the Australasian Development and Exploration Company, a concern that has operated considerably in New South Wales during the last 12 months. His immediate investigations are mostly in connection with Bullfinch.

Since parties representing the Great Boulder Company and other wealthy corporations took up leases about Ennuin and Golden Valley those locations have attracted a large number of prospectors and others. Men returning to-day to Southern Cross speak highly of reefs they saw in those portions of the Yilgarn field.

A BULLFINCH THAT DIED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A meeting of the members of the Bullfinch Main Lode Option Syndicate was held to-day for the purpose of winding it up. The secretary explained that the syndicate was formed for the purpose of providing funds to secure an option over 24 acres of land adjacent, and to the north-west of Bullfinch Proprietary mine. The capital of the syndicate was to have been £1000, made up of 100 shares of £10 each. Seventy shares have been taken up by members of the syndicate, bringing in £700. Of this sum £500 was paid for an option, and a £10,000 deposit was to have been paid on November 7, and they would have to pay another £5000 on December 16. The syndicate had not been able to dispose of the requisite number of shares, however, and there was nothing to do now but wind it up. There was a credit-balance of £27. A motion winding up the syndicate was agreed to, and it was decided that the balance in hand should be paid to the secretary.

THE ZEEHAN LODES.

NOT SUPERFICIAL BODIES.

HOBART, Friday.

A very interesting work in regard to the nature and extent of the ore bodies of Zeehan has been issued by the Mines Department, compiled by the Government Geologist, Mr. W. H. Twelvetrees, and his assistant, Mr. L. K. Ward. It gives a comprehensive account of the history and physiography of the field. Very few of the deeper and more important mines were at work, and the workings of many of the shallow ones were inaccessible, so that the writers were at considerable disadvantage in conducting their investigations. Their conclusions, therefore, were not based on such strong evidence as they would have liked to obtain. The conclusion to which they are led, however, is that the idea that the Zeehan lodes are merely superficial is unwarranted.

STREAM OF IMMIGRANTS.

THOUSANDS FOR WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Friday.

On October 21 3000 immigrants had been booked to leave London for Western Australia during the succeeding three months. About 2000 will arrive during December. A London correspondent writes that, next to Canada, Western Australia now holds the field against all other oversea dominions as a field for immigration.

NO BIGOTRY.

FATHER FLYNN'S OPINION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Rev. Father Flynn was the guest of the Ballarat Catholic Young Men's Society on Wednesday. He said that he had met all the societies in Ballarat. He had even spoken in Orange lodges. (Laughter.) He spoke as a man among men, and had always been treated as a man. It had never been his experience to meet with what was known as bigotry in Ballarat. If they heard a man say that he could not get on because he was a Catholic, they could tell him he was no good, and that it was a lie. (Hear, hear.)

A SPARTAN RESCUE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A spirited pair of ponies, driven by Mrs. Storer, of Strathkellar, bolted when about a mile from Hamilton. Four young children were accompanying the lady, and fearing an accident when approaching a bridge over the Grange Creek, she threw two of them on to the roadway. The runaways were subsequently stopped, and on hastening back the mother discovered that her children had not met with any serious injuries, although several stitches had to be inserted in wounds on the younger child's face.

RAILWAY CAR BOLTS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An amusing chase occurred on the railway line at Koroit yesterday. During shunting operations an empty car broke away. It attained such extraordinary speed that none of the 100-yards sprinters of the Koroit staff could overhaul it, so an engine was sent after it and brought it back. The passenger train was delayed for 25 minutes.

ALLEGED ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

Early this morning J. Ireland, 24, a jockey, living in Doncaster-avenue, Kensington, went to the Sydney Hospital suffering from severe scalp wounds and cuts about the face. He alleged that he had been assaulted by three men in Castlereagh-street, near the Barley Mow Hotel. After knocking him down they robbed him of £3, and a gold watch and chain.

TRAINING SHIP MERSEY.

SALAMIS ON HER LAST VISIT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The late arrival of the steamer Salamis from London this afternoon was due to several causes. She left London on Oct. 1, and was delayed 16 hours in the English Channel by a strong south-westerly gale. Las Palmas was reached on Oct. 8, and the day being observed as a holiday on the island coaling work was not started till the following afternoon. A few hours after leaving Capetown a breakdown occurred in the machinery, and the steamer was hove-to for nearly a day while repairs were effected. Further trouble was experienced with the machinery, and led to a stoppage of several hours.

This will be the last visit of the Salamis to Australia, she having, it is understood, been sold for delivery to her new owners when she returns to London.

A CLYDE RECORD.

Messrs. Alfred Holt and Co.'s steamer Cyclops, now in Port Jackson, drew 28ft of water when leaving the Clyde Harbour. She had two powerful screw tugs ahead and another astern. The journey to Greenock was accomplished in the excellent time of two and a half hours. The necessity for pushing forward dredging operations on the Clyde is (says the Glasgow "Evening News") emphasised by the fact that Messrs. Holt's passenger steamers to be engaged in the new service between Yorkhill and Australia will draw 31ft of water.

BARQUE MARGRETHA.

A four-masted barque, which turned out to be the Margretha, from Rotterdam, arrived in Port Phillip on Wednesday. The Margretha, which is of German nationality, left Rotterdam 82 days ago, and has, therefore, accomplished a smart voyage.

BAR HARBOURS.

Last year the number of vessels that entered, and the aggregate tonnage thereof was considerably greater in the case of this than of any other State, as will be seen from the following table that has been compiled by the Federal statist:—

	Vessels.	Tons.
New South Wales	2801	5,870,634
Victoria	2164	4,506,973

TOOTH'S NEW CAPITAL.

The following resolutions are to be submitted to shareholders at an extraordinary meeting of Tooth and Co., Ltd., which is to be held on November 29 next:—

1. That the capital of the company be increased from £900,000 to £1,000,000, by the creation of 20,000 new shares of £5 each, ranking for dividend and in all other respects pari passu with the existing shares in the company.

2. That such new shares be offered in the first instance to the shareholders at par in the proportion of one new share to every nine shares held by each shareholder on the 31st day of December next, and upon the footing that the full amount of each share taken up shall be paid to the company on the acceptance of the offer, and that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the shareholder is entitled, and limiting a time to be fixed by the board, within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined.

3. That the sum of £100,000, being portion of the amount standing to the credit of the company's reserves, be distributed amongst the shareholders by way of bonus, in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively on the 31st day of December next, and that each shareholder may direct in writing that the amount of bonus due to him be used in payment for the new shares to which he shall become entitled under the preceding resolution, such shares to fully participate in any dividend that shall be declared in April, 1911, in respect of profits which shall have accrued to the 31st March, 1911.

4. That the directors be and are hereby authorised to dispose of any shares offered under the preceding resolutions, and of which no notice of acceptance shall have been received by the secretary of the company on or before the day appointed by the board, to such persons and upon such terms as the board may deem most advantageous, and the premiums received from the sale of such shares—less expenses—shall be divided between the shareholders who have not exercised their right of application pro rata to the number of shares to which they would have been entitled had they made application for same.

5. That any shares left unallotted by reason of certain holdings not being exactly divisible by nine shall be disposed of by the directors, and the premiums received from the sale of such shares—less expenses—shall be divided proportionately amongst the shareholders entitled thereto, according to their respective interests in the fractional parts.

If the new share is worth, say, only 45/, the new issue is equivalent to a bonus of 5/ per share, or 25 per cent.

Commonwealth gold exports to date this year have been of the approximate value of £3,330,000, against £6,114,000 for the corresponding portion of last year.

The shipments of gold from Sydney have been twice as heavy as those from Melbourne, and about £600,000 less than those from Western Australian ports.

The Customs regulation that entries are not to be passed by boys under 18 years of age is producing one or two results hardly anticipated (says the "Argus"). The practical effect in a number of cases is to check the advancement and hamper the business training of juniors, and it is considered in town that the regulation is one that should be reconsidered.

The Union Bank of Australia has opened a branch at Barellan.

An extraordinary general meeting of the North Coast Steam Navigation Company, Limited, was held at the head office, Sussex-street, yesterday, when the special resolutions in connection with the alteration of articles of association were unanimously agreed to, and a further extraordinary meeting will be held on Wednesday, December 7, to confirm the same.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A good market for wheat was again experienced yesterday, but that for flour was rather quieter. The distributing trade in all grocery lines, but especially in fruits, was very brisk. As a consequence prices for nearly all lines were very firm. On spot dates are selling freely at /3 per lb, while /2¾ is being paid to arrive during the first week in December. Sultanas are scarce, and new season's imported (Smyrnas) are selling at /9. There are practically no old season's available. The good prices for the imported have had a hardening effect on Australian, and holders of these are now asking very full rates. Muscatel raisins are selling freely, and among the sales effected is one of 100 trays at 1/1. There have been further sales of Malagas at 1/1½. Dried figs are in request, and are firmly held, and as evaporated fruits are rather lightly stocked buyers have to pay full rates for them. According to private cables, cleaned Amalia currants are now quoted at 26/6 c.i.f.e. in London, which is equal to /6½ per lb in Sydney; consequently it will be impossible to sell them here under /6¾. Nuts are generally scarce, and walnuts, which are in particularly short supply, bring from /9 to /10, soft-shell almonds /7½, Barcelonas /7½ to /8, and Brazils /11. Tinned Queensland pineapples were bought a few weeks ago freely in Sydney at good prices, but buyers now find they cannot replenish their stocks at the same price from Brisbane, the market having hardened. As a result Singapore pineapples have been purchased, and some good parcels have been imported from there. Good business is being done in canned fish. The sale is reported of 200 cases of Sockeye at 9/, and 150 cases of Horseshoe on private terms in one lot. The distributing price for the latter is 8/3. There is also a good demand for Scroll. High rates are ruling for sardines, both here and in Europe. Cable advices having shown a rise in Gouda candles, the local price now stands at /7½. D.R.J. are selling quietly. It was also stated by cable that all new season's Californian prunes are now sold out of first hands, and can only be purchased at advanced rates.

There is rather a feeling of depression in the market for cornsacks owing to the expected arrivals of two Calcutta boats. Holders are, however, firm in their quotations, but buyers decline to operate to any extent, pending the new shipments. Sales of small lots have been made at 4/7½ to 4/8. Bran bags are firm at 3/7½, but the demand is not very great. Woolpacks are inquired for for early next year, delivery in Queensland at 2/3½. Carbide has been sold up to £15 for first brands, and to £14 for second, while cream of tartar and tartaric acid are in quiet demand; metals are quietly held.

The quotations for Victorian maize were unreliable. They ranged from 2/9 to 3/. This was caused through some holders forcing values. Onions were in good demand. Small river supplies of potatoes sold splendidly. Chaff was being readily cleared from store. Dairy lines were moving off well. Northern river eggs were firmer. Butter met fair business.

TARIFF ALTERATIONS.

A bundle of alterations in the items mentioned in the Tariff Guide supplement has been issued consequent on the amendments in the tariff now before Parliament. They would of themselves, make a respectable-sized supplement to the guide.

The Comptroller-General has directed that the following amendments of the Tariff will operate from to-day:—

Item 107.—Material to read "materials."
Item 2[illegible].—Insert "solid headed" before short toilet.
Item 256 (1).—Make following words plural; brown, cap, casing, sealing, nature or ochre brown, sulphite, sugar. All other items passed without amendment.

As a consequence of the alterations, 2/ per cwt was added yesterday to the price of paints in oil, and for 7lb and 14lb packages of whitelead the same addition was made. These are now quoted—7lb, 36/ to 38/; 14lb, 35/6.

BREADSTUFFS.

WHEAT STILL FIRM.

The wheat market remains firm, and millers, who have not yet obtained enough of the old season's crop for their requirements are willing to give up to 3/9½ per bushel. Shippers also are rather more inclined to buy, though they do not care to give more than 3/7½, unless the parcel be a particularly good one. News from London indicate a slightly better market there, and that the reports from Argentina indicate damaged crops there. Sales of 20,000 bushels of new wheat were made during the day at 3/8.

No change is observable in the flour trade, but bakers are still buying to lay in stocks. The price remains at £9 and £8/17/6 for town and country brands respectively.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 738 tons of wheat and 191 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

TEA.

The tea market is now very firm, especially on the lower-priced Indian brands, and inquiries are being made in Sydney from Melbourne and Adelaide for them. Sales have been effected during the past few days of upwards of 5000 packages of these teas at varying prices, and stocks are therefore becoming low. At the same time there is a good demand for Ceylon teas, which are, however, generally at a higher level of prices than the Indian.

Messrs. H. W. Carey and Co. submitted at their saleroom yesterday about 980 packages Ceylon tea on account of Messrs. Parbury, Henty, and Co. and Gibbs, Bright, and Co. They report having cleared about 950 packages up to /10¼ per lb to more animated competition than has been in evidence for the past two months. Good common and medium broken pekoes in many cases showed an advance of ¼d to ½d per lb.

Mr. C. J. Gant will sell on Tuesday, for Messrs. Calude, Healy, and Co., 700 packages Indian teas.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

MAIZE MARKET UNRELIABLE.

PRICES "BOOMED."

A reliable market value was very hard to secure for Victorian maize. The quotations received ranged from 2/9 to 3/. Very little of it changed hands during the day, owing to the uncertainty of values. There was no doubt that some sellers were trying all they could to "boom" values. These had stocks in store in Melbourne awaiting a favourable market in Sydney. There were plenty of sellers quoting lower than 3/, and they seemed exceedingly anxious to do business. The cautious retailer, therefore, had no reason to give the top value that was asked. There were 100 bags of Hunter River onions marketed, and the best of these realised £6/10/, which was the same price as was ruling. About 900 bags of Clarence River potatoes were placed under offer, and they sold remarkably well at £11. The supply was far too small for the demand. There was a splendid draw on good chaff. All the stores were losing a large quantity of their holdings. The top qualities had been cleared from the wharfs. Oats were steady, 2/8 being well maintained for best White Giants. Close on 750 bags of onions were marketed from Melbourne. Silverskins realised up to £8, and Brown Spanish to £6.

NORTHERN EGGS BETTER.

BUTTER SELLING STEADILY.

Northern River eggs were in lighter supply than last Friday. The really good brands showed most shrinkage in quantities. For this reason, salesmen secured an extra ½d per dozen for the best of the shipments. Not very many went out at the extra amount, but just sufficient to give the values a better standard. New-laids and railways were unchanged in tone and price. Duck-eggs continued to meet a large proportion of the orders. Bacon and hams were moving well, whilst cheese was in fairly good request. Butter was in good demand locally, whilst shippers to the old country were looking for good parcels.

USE "SIGNALS" IN YOUR OFFICE

and relieve your mind of the burden of remembering. They keep Slow A/cs. under constant notice, draw attention to quick and slow moving lines in your stock, prevent quotations from being forgotten, and indicate prospects that should be followed up. The System is applied to Cards, Loose-leaf, or Bound Books with equal success. We have introduced it to hundreds of Houses, who use it for all these purposes, and also for every kind of indexing. There is no end to the utility of "Signals."

Our Steel Grip "Signals" and Adjustable Tabs will not fall off, however carelessly handled. But they can be slipped on to the Cards, Sheets, or Pages quickly and easily. Call or write, and we will explain the uses of these infallible memorisers.

TWO TYPES OF SUMMER SUITS

THESE SUITS APPEAL TO THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BE AS WELL DRESSED AS HIS FELLOWS WHO PAY HIGHER PRICES.

Our 3-Piece Ready Tailored Suits are Distinctly Superior.

Time was when the Ready-made Suit was abjured by every man who made any pretensions to be a smart dresser. But we have initiated reforms and improvements in Ready-to-Wear Clothing that quite differentiate these garments from those generally termed ready-made.

There is nothing skimped about them—the very best work is embodied in their make-up, whilst the style and cut is similar to that expressed in a correctly-tailored made-to-order Suit. The collar's set snugly to the collar, the edges are neatly sewn, whilst the pressing and finish stamp them as something quite superior to the regular standard of Ready-to-Wear Clothing.

The materials are of the most modern designs, and we offer a big range of distinctive patterns, in all tones of Greys, with varied colours interwoven, as well as those subdued shades of Browns and Greys, that still find favour. Come and buy one of these Suits with an open mind—there's one to exactly fit you, for we carry a large number of between sizes, to suit every figure, whether slight, normal, or stout.

Prices - 35/-, 42/-, and 45/-

The Peapes 2-Piece Crash Suit, 21/-

(Buff ground with Blue, Green, or White Stripe),

Posted 1/ extra; Interstate 1/6.

This is made of very superior Crash, shrunken in the piece beforehand so that the Suit will wash and launder without shrinkage. The Buff ground relieved by a blue, green, or white stripe forms a cool, pleasant colour, and one that does not easily soil.

The cut and finish in these Suits is high-class, whilst they are delightfully cool and comfortable in the Summer.

Please state colour of stripe when ordering.

WHEN ORDERING BY POST

MOUNT LARCOMBE ESTATE.

THE LEASE of this well-known ESTATE having expired the Trustees have been instructed by the Beneficiaries, who live in Scotland, to make an EARLY REALISATION OF THE ESTATE with a view to winding up the Trust.

The property has an area of 14,404 acres, and is highly improved. It was for many years used as a fattening property, but the advent of the Gladstone to Rockhampton Railway, which runs right through the Estate, has brought it within about 14 miles of Gladstone at the nearest point, and this makes the property very suitable for dairy farming and other close settlement.

A handsome profit should be available from subdivision.

ON THE GROUND.

This Afternoon a Salesman will be on the ground of Sylvania Estate for the convenience of those inspecting. Sylvania Estate was offered in subdivision last Saturday, and well over £1000 worth has already found new owners.

Sylvania Estate has over a mile front to Maint Port Hacking-road, is only 5 minutes from new Cronulla Beach tram, Piper's Store, Public School, Public Telephone, etc., or 10 minutes from the punt at Tom Ugly's Point.

Every inch of the soil is good, and will grow anything; while for poultry, bees, fruit, flowers, or vegetables the Estate may not be excelled. Look at the size of the blocks—66 x 600 is about the average—and Title is Torrens.

From 8s to £1 foot is the price—read it again, from 8s to £1 per foot. Within two years from this date we guarantee every foot of it is worth well up to £2. Buy now, and make money. Terms, from £1 down, 10s month.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN BEAUTIFUL HOMES?
Then HABERFIELD COTTAGES MUST
interest you.

Whether you purpose purchasing a house or not, there is so much unusual merit and beauty about a Haberfield Cottage that it at once impels your attention and creates a desire to own it.

Here are places that are quite distinctive—built on original lines, embodying all the most desirable features of pretentious mansions. They are away ahead of the times in interior effects and decorations. They have made Haberfield famous as the "PLACE OF BEAUTIFUL HOMES."

Recreation reserves, tennis courts, bowling green, swimming baths, churches, etc., go to make up an ideal suburb. You will be enchanted with all you see—the cottages themselves especially.

A FINE NEW HABERFIELD RESIDENCE for £1145. Situated on a fine corner block, most artistically designed, built of brick on solid stone foundation, with slate roof—a modern residence of most superior style. Dining, drawing, and breakfast rooms, 3 bedrooms, spacious verandahs back and front—the main rooms most beautifully decorated with stencilled friezes, fibrous plaster ceilings, and fittings to match. You simply can't help but like it. It is conveniently situated, handy to tram and train, with all conveniences, such as linen presses, pantry, laundry, wood and coal shed, sewerage, gas and water—undoubtedly a magnificent residence. Land 53 x 150.

ANOTHER CHARMING HABERFIELD COTTAGE—£750. This cottage has unusually large frontage, within a few minutes' walk of the tram, and wonderfully good value. The lowness of the price makes it a strong inducement, and the general treatment, both inside and out, is specially good. In a few days it will be sold. Don't lose any time in coming out to see it.

Notice is hereby given that an EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the above Company will be held at the Head Office of the Company, No. 3 Sussex-street, Sydney, at 11 a.m. on WEDNESDAY, the seventh day of December next, when the subjoined resolutions, which were passed at the Extraordinary General Meeting of the Company held on the 18th day of November, will be submitted for confirmation as special resolutions:—

That the Articles of Association of the Company be altered as follows, namely:—

That from Article 72 (confirmed 18th August, 1909) the following words "and one of such Directors may from time to time be appointed by the Board a Managing Director, and at such remuneration not exceeding the sum of £500 per annum (in addition to the remuneration provided by Article 76) as the Board may from time to time decide upon. And the Board may also at any time remove or dismiss such Managing Director from office, and appoint another in his place," be eliminated, and that, as thus altered, the said Article shall stand. And that the following Articles be added immediately after article 72:—

72a.—The Directors may appoint one of their number to be a Managing Director of the Company, either for a fixed or indefinite period, and may from time to time remove any such Managing Director from such office of Managing Director, and appoint another of the Directors in his place, and may at their discretion fill up any vacancy that may occur in such office.

72b.—The Directors may at their discretion delegate to any Managing Director such of their powers as they are not for the time being expressly prohibited by the Articles from delegating for such time, and subject to such conditions and restrictions as they may think expedient, and either collaterally with or to the exclusion of the powers of the Directors in that behalf, and may at any time revoke or vary any of such delegated powers.

72c.—The Directors may pay to any Managing Director such salary as they may think fit, provided that a majority of all the Directors (exclusive of such Managing Director) vote in favour of such salary, or of the Agreement with such Managing Director under which such salary is to be payable.

72d.—A Managing Director, while he continues to hold that office, shall not be subject to retirement under Article 77, nor shall he be taken into account in determining the number of Directors to retire, but he shall (except as next hereinafter provided) be subject to the provisions of the Articles as to disqualification of Directors. He may also be removed from the Directorate by the vote of a General Meeting, and if, from any cause, he ceases to hold the office of Director, he shall ipso facto cease to be a Managing Director. Provided that his office of Managing Director shall not be taken to be an "office of profit" within the meaning of Article 83.

NOTICE is hereby given that an Extraordinary General MEETING of the Shareholders will be held at the Kent Brewery, George-street West, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, the 30th day of November, 1910, at 2.15 p.m., for the purpose of considering and, if deemed advisable, passing the following resolutions with or without modification:

RESOLUTIONS.
1. That the Capital of the Company be increased from £900,000 to £1,000,000, by the creation of 100,000 new shares of £1 each, ranking for dividend and in all other respects pari passu with the existing shares in the Company.
2. That such new shares be offered in the first instance to the Shareholders at par in the proportion of one new share to every nine shares held by each Shareholder on the 31st day of December next, and upon the footing that the full amount of each share taken up shall be paid to the Company on the acceptance of the offer, and that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the Shareholder is entitled, and limiting a time, to be fixed by the Board, within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined.
3. That the sum of £100,000, being portion of the amount standing to the credit of the Company's reserves, be distributed amongst the Shareholders by way of bonus, in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively on the 31st day of December next, and that each Shareholder may direct in writing that the amount of bonus due to him be used in payment for the new shares to which he shall become entitled under the preceding resolution, such shares to fully participate in any dividend that shall be declared in April, 1911, in respect of profits which shall have accrued to the 31st March, 1911.
4. That the Directors be and are hereby authorised to dispose of any shares offered under the preceding resolutions, and of which no notice of acceptance shall have been received by the Secretary of the Company on or before the day appointed by the Board, to such persons and upon such terms as the Board may deem most advantageous, and the premiums received from the sale of such shares—less expenses—shall be divided between the Shareholders who have not exercised their right of application pro rata to the number of shares to which they would have been entitled had they made application for same.

WEDNESDAY, 30th NOVEMBER,
AT 3 P.M.

O. H. FURNER AND CO., LTD., have received instructions from Mrs. Neve, of Tarago, to sell by auction, at their Rooms, on WEDNESDAY, 30th NOVEMBER, at 3 o'clock,
HER PROPERTY, CONSISTING OF STORE, RESIDENCE, AND PADDOCK ADJOINING.
Situated within 200 yards of the Tarago Railway Station, central position, having a frontage of 132 feet to the Main-street, by a depth of 405 feet; area, 1 acre 2 roods 1½ perch.
The whole of the Shop and Dwelling is built of Brick and Weatherboards. Size of Shop, 44 x 17, with all the necessary shelves, fixtures, and bins, inclusive of seven Storerooms and Cellar.
The Residence has six rooms and kitchen, lined throughout; stables, and outhouses.

Mrs. Neve has carried on a lucrative business on these premises for over 30 years, and taking into consideration the large farming and grazing interests that are around Tarago, and the probability in the near future of a railway being constructed from Tarago to Braidwood, this investment must appeal to speculators or anyone looking for a good paying business, with a good connection, and with even better prospects for the future, as one of the soundest propositions ever offered to the public.

The property is for absolute sale, as it is Mrs. Neve's intention to retire from business and live in Sydney.

WHEREVER LAND, and the sale of it on easy terms, is being discussed, you will find opinions freely offered as to its value. Recognising this, and knowing the value of a good advertisement, C. J. TURNER offers £10 in prizes for the most correct estimate of the average price which will be obtained for TRAM HILL LOTS, BEXLEY, at Auction NEXT SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26. All you have to do is to carefully look the various allotments over, note the price per foot of other land in the vicinity, compare (be sure to do this) the areas, that is frontage and especially depth, then write in and tell us what, in your opinion, TRAM HILL LOTS are worth. The competitor who estimates nearest to the average price obtained for lots sold on sale day will receive £4 in cash. The second nearest, £3; third, £1. Fourth and fifth, 10s each; and sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth, 5s each—that is, nine prizes altogether. The act of competing signifies an acceptance of C. J. Turner's ruling in the competition; but so that everything may be beyond suspicion, the full list of competitors and their efforts will be published in S.M.H. and Daily Telegraph of November 28th—that will be some hours before the sale. Competition positively closes at 6 o'clock on FRIDAY, November 25th.

1st PRIZE £4, 2nd PRIZE, £3, 3rd PRIZE, £1.

CRAIG AND AITKEN,
654D GEORGE-STREET, SYDNEY,
Established 30 Years.

BORN into the world without our consent, and sent out of it against our will, we are only here during good behaviour.

We may escape punishment for our breaking Man-made Laws, but surely we are laid low by our sins against Nature-made Laws. "I didn't know" protects us not. Why not understand men—anyhow?

We have formulated the Science of Health, and gladly and dare say intelligently talk to average men and women, even as you and I, collectively and individually.

Mondays, 3 p.m., we address ourselves to Woman.

Mondays, 8 p.m., we talk to Men, at our Rooms, which are at the Equitable-building, and ask for no reward save endorsement if deserved.

The liberation of our thoughts may change the whole current of your Life. We are here for Human Service, and want to help those who need us, thereby we help ourselves.

We have put some helpful thoughts on 400 pages, bound in cloth, called "Viavi Hygiene," sent anywhere for, say, 1s. Money returned if not appreciated.

KRYPTOK BIFOCALS.

Ordinary Bifocals are a mere makeshift—conspicuous to others, and by the eyes most encountering the sharp line of division between the near and distant lenses irritating to the wearer!
Then the cemented on segment loosens, gets rough at the edges, collects dust at its junction—whilst the differing thickness of the two lenses often causes very bad prismatism!

KRYPTOKS.
Hence none of these disadvantages. The reading segment is actually enclosed within the distance lens—no apparent division lines, no apparent difference to others from ordinary glasses, and no call for constant repairing.

QUALITY COUNTS IN KITCHEN ENAMELWARE.

Look for the "Lion and Mug" brand—it stands for quality. Inspect Nock and Kirby's low-priced new shipment.

Where merit is sacrificed for the sake of cheapening the price—then "cheapest" is dearest in the end.

This is very true of enamel ware—for cheap enamel flakes off, cracks and lasts next to no time.

We sell only the very best in Enamel Kitchenware, because we want everything we sell to be reliable. But it is cheap, too—in a money sense. Here are some instances:—

GREY ENAMELLED COVERED SAUCEPANS, straight sides, long handle, 2¼ pints, 1/6; 3 pints, 1/9; 4 pints, 2/; 4½ pints, 2/6; 6 pints, 2/; 8 pints, 3/6; 9 pints, 3/9 each.

GREY ENAMELLED COVERED STEWPANS, flat-bottomed, 2¼ pints, 1/8; 3 pints, 2/; 4 pints, 2/6; 5¼ pints, 2/9; 7 pints, 3/3; 9¼ pints, 3/9; 11¼ pints, 4/9 each.

GREY ENAMELLED COVERED SAUCEPANS, two side handles, 4½ pints, 2/4; 6 pints, 2/9; 9 pints, 3/6; 12 pints, 4/; 15¼ pints, 5/3; 20 pints, 6/; 24 pints, 7/3; 30 pints, 8/6 each.

GREY ENAMELLED LIPPED MILK SAUCEPANS, with covers, 1½ pints, 1/6; 2½ pints, 1/9; 3¼ pints, 2/; 3 pints, 2/3; 4 pints, 2/6; 5¼ pints, 3/ each.

GREY ENAMELLED SEAMLESS FLAT-BOTTOM KETTLES, fitted with fixed or drop handles, 1¼ pints, 2/9; 2¼ pints, 3/3; 4¼ pints, 3/6; 5¼ pints, 4/9; 7 pints, 5/9; 9¼ pints, 6/9.
